Fashion Tips

The boy-friend needn't think he can pick out his spring togs in a haphazard hit-or-miss manner, and get away with it. Fashions for men this spring, are very much top hat for formal wear, according to the best authorities.

For sports and country wear, even the most sedate man must go completely rainbow, if he wishes to fall in step with the style parade.

From head to heels there are certain rules he must follow. Masculine millinery decrees that: The homburg hat is good but it requires town clothes. The snap brim models have lower crowns and wider brims.

Easter eggs and shirts vie for depth in color motifs. White shirts are in the background and deeper colors are prevalent. Widespread collar may be had, soft or starched.

Shades of Beau Brummell! Blue tails for evening! For formal evening wear a mid-night blue, high waisted tail coat is the thing with the tails reaching a few inches below the crook of the knee.

For daytime wear: Double-breasted coats seem to enjoy increasing popularity. Smooth material are expected to return this week-end after a visit of several weeks in Hollywood, Fla. On their return journey, they came by boat north to Baltimore, and are motoring home from there.

On all occasions: Trousers should fall to the knee and fall straight without a break. Spring socks are gay. The scientific way. SAFE, SANITARY IS THE MILK WE BRING YOU EVERY DAY.

And as for shoes: Tan and brown shoes are very good.

Saturday Club Closes Season With Exhibition

The advantages to be gained by supervised recreation were demonstrated Saturday afternoon at the Saturday Club, a play project for children between the ages of eight and ten years, sponsored by the Birmingham Branch of the American Association of University Women, closed with an exhibition and program.

Parents and friends were invited to visit the various classes, while the children were engaged in a number of handicrafts, and later to attend a program, similar to one staged each week.

Among the interesting articles exhibited were examples of knitting and sewing, ably performed by the small girls, and bird houses, brackets, and paper traps and boxes done by the boys in the wood-working and metal classes. A particularly interesting exhibit was that of the clay-modelling class, in which embossed figures, clay carvings and soap carving classes, in which emporic figures cleverly fashioned a variety of interesting objects. Carrots, beets, turnips and other vegetable figures were cleverly molded out of clay, and realistically colored. Animals were carved in soap with skill worthy of more experienced craftsmen. Two delicately fashioned Japanese garden scenes were complete with tiny figures and animals modeled in clay. Another interesting exhibit was that done by the class in free-hand drawing.

Mrs. John F. Hollister was in charge of the class in drawing. Charles Huns instructed the clay modelling class, and Miss Marjorie Votey taught the class in free-hand drawing. Mrs. J. N. Halajsky, who is a six-month by profession, had charge of the class in metal work, and Boy Scouts added the smaller boys in the manual training class. After the interesting tour through the building, parents gathered in the auditorium to witness a remarkable exhibition of folk dancing by a group of small girls under the direction of Fred D. Farrar. Old English folk dances, handed down from generation to generation for many years, were skilfully performed by the class without any assistance from the instructor.

The dances were presented with grace and ease, quite unusual considering the limited time allowed for rehearsal.

The program also included a clever presentation of Grimm's fairy tale "The Snow White" by a group of children in quite a spontaneous manner.
