

Phil's Look Better Than Figures Show Cause They Hustle

APPEARANCES—ever say de covers—are at it again. Right now they are making mugs out of the records and laws of probability by indicating that the Phillies are among of the classiest clubs performing in these parts.

It is upon the playing field, rather than upon paper, that appearances do best for Jimmy Wilson's young men, too. Judged solely off their Grapefruit league box scores they are not impressive.

These present Phillies hustle. In marked contrast to their Shibe park rivals, they seem always striving to do the most with their opportunities. Such spirit in itself often enables them to come up with plays that night, otherwise seem impossible and, given reasonable opportunity for expression, might well win many hard-fought games next summer.

Yes—since Baker bowl has so frequently had a wearing effect upon their briskly-moving springtime favorites—baseball men here hold out little save sixth place for the present team. Even though the pitching must surely be improved over 1935, the Phils lack a punch of the one Ruth, Chuck Klein, Jimmy Fox variety.

There are eight infielders on the roster. Only one of them—Gene Corbett, who did it for Wilmpep and so has little chance of winning a regular job anyhow—hit better than .300 last year. Leo Norris, the shortstop who served such a long term with Minneapolis, has lower. Dolph Camilli, the first baseman, slaps a long ball.

In the outfield there is no vast improvement. Ethan Allen is a far more hitter now than in his youthful Cincinnati days, but his shrewdly placed blows no longer carry so much distance. He hit .307 last year and is the best of the gardeners.

Need Superior Pitching When Lacking Sluggers

Since no one of the catchers, Wilson, Bob Grace, or Bill Atwood the rookie, are notable sluggers, the Phils, thus, would seem to need superior pitching and slight defense if they are to climb out of their accustomed depths.

Undoubtedly they will field better than most Baker bowl representatives have fielded in the past /undoubtedly also one or two veteran pitchers are improved, while there are recruits whose forthcoming efforts can be noted with prayerful admiration.

Buck Walter's fast ball makes the former infielder a subject of praise whenever other players disleave the team. Joe Bowman now knows how to slow up on the batter and can handle other trick stuff better than when he was a Giant. The big Indian, Earl Moore, is improving physically over last season and declares that his arm is as good as in his rookie year.

Among the youngsters there is Ray Casper, reluctantly given up by the Pirates in the Todd deal. He is one of the most eminent of trike-out artists, having fanned 239 batters in 244 innings, while hurling for Charleston in 1934. When the usually self-contained Wilson talks about him, the air is filled with jestive observations concerning one of the best fast balls in the business.

That is, of course, if the aging Davis is around Philadelphia at the time. Right now Curt, bigger and better than ever, is the star of the Phils. If he stays with them he can be counted on for pitching may—although the chance is no more than a slight one—that he will be in the place. Yet, swell pitcher that he is, there is reason to believe that his departure would be the club's best break.

With Davis in their lineup—the Phils would be 4-1 to win the pennant. Fortified with the three or four good young men who could be obtained for him, the already improved Phils would be well advanced toward getting some place next year.

The best guess, incidentally, is that the Cubs and Phils will get need of outwitting one another and get together on the deal soon.

For as little as 23 cents you may invest in the A.V.A. AD in the column of The Eccentric. Try one when you want to buy or sell, locate a house or well owned property, or hire a maid. Telephone 11 before the daily noon each week. —(ADV.)

IF BREVITY ever gives up racing he should have a great future as a movie star or congressman. The bay three-year-old, who still would be the best-looking thing on the turf if he could not breeze Derby distances in record time, can act. Furthermore, he has that sort of appeal which puts the crowd on his side from the moment when he is first led into public view.

Most of the truly successful thoroughbreds of other years have had these qualities, which are far more enduring than the records when indicating real class.

Exterminator was so far from being a handsome horse that he was called "Old Bones." But the words always were uttered with affectionate admiration. Billy Kelly, Commander Ross' little sprinter who was so well loved by the crowd of 18 years or so ago, had a similar way of comming with his audience. Billy, who, like Brevity, had a great fondness for lumps of sugar, used to thrust his muzzle over the rail in search of stray offerings of sweetmeats.

Man O' War Had "It"; Was Champ of Champs

Man o' War, who knew his true worth and never let anybody forget it even though success never went to his head, was another personally horse. Being a champion of champions and the Joe Louis of his day and business, he must occasionally have been bored by the feeble competition provided for him, but he never let on about this. At ways when he passed through the paddock gate some spark seemed to flash between him and the crowd. Then people settled back, calm in the perfect knowledge that here was a champion dead set upon doing his clampon stuff.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

Suggested sign for Shibe park home of the ailing A's—"Abandon hope all ye who enter here" . . . Although some umpires are making a dozen times as much as their former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

Man O' War Had "It"; Was Champ of Champs

Man o' War, who knew his true worth and never let anybody forget it even though success never went to his head, was another personally horse. Being a champion of champions and the Joe Louis of his day and business, he must occasionally have been bored by the feeble competition provided for him, but he never let on about this. At ways when he passed through the paddock gate some spark seemed to flash between him and the crowd. Then people settled back, calm in the perfect knowledge that here was a champion dead set upon doing his clampon stuff.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

I mention such items of the past and present without any desire to compete with writers of the Black Beauty fables. There are people who regard horses as the dumbest of all animals (not excepting the 42 bettors who occupy their days in being touted onto hopeless long shots). Then there are jockeys such as Wayne Wright, who has ridden winners in the three richest stakes of the current national campaign.

A reddish-haired youngster, rather taller than the average jockey, Wright is much to comming with his fellows. A quiet, thoughtful lad, who is more in the manner of Sande than of the rough and ready jockeys of the playful Silvio Council, he has confided to his friends that Brevity can understand, react and communicate much like a human. Having observed that perfect communion between horse and rider when they were winning the $200,000 feature at Miami, I do not doubt it.

Wright, who rode Top Row in the Santa Anita, also says that Brevity is the best horse of the year. Probably at the moment, he is correct in that, too. Yet for the benefit of newspaper brethren who, short weeks ago, were beating the drums for Discovery and the N. Y. Basketball team one or two things might be hinted at before the Kentucky classic is permitted to go by default.

Prize fighters who are seeking their fortunes down in Florida are getting little saye snuburn this season. I saw two fast light-heavyweights perform, and the other night before a crowd of 600. There were four knockdowns before the final knockout was put on in the fifth. The winner's end was $8,000.

Miami would like to persuade one of the New York team to train there next year, but citizens still are putting the rap on Bill Terry. The year-old complaint concerns the admission fee charged by the Giants. . . . Phil Weintraub, the hard-hitting outfielder peddled by the Giants no longer loves his former boss. . . . Young Eddie Thomas, who got them off so neatly at Santa Anita, is the best starter since the celebrated and departed Dade, according to horsemen. He will work at Detroit this summer and they are hoping that the New York state racing commission will acquit him.

What would be finer for your Easter Dinner than a prime rib roast of beef . . . or genuine spring 1936 lamb . . . the first genuine spring lamb of 1936. . . . We are featuring both for Easter.

OMAHA PRIME BEEF SALE!

PRIME RIB ROAST 23<sup>c</sup> ALL 33<sup>c</sup>

Beef Standing L.B. STEAKS

Prime Well Aged Sirloin T-Bone Club Porterhouse L.B.

SWIFT'S PREMIUM SMOKED HAM Shank End L.B. 29<sup>c</sup>

FRESH Beef Tongues L.B. 18<sup>c</sup>

GEORGIA Peanut Ham A Real Treat L.B. 36<sup>c</sup>

Fancy Young Duckling

From Swift's Experimental Farm at Alma, Mich.

• IN OUR CHEESE DEPARTMENT •

French Blue Cheese L.B. 59<sup>c</sup>

KRAFT ROQUEFORT

2 SPREAD Jars 41<sup>c</sup>

MEDIUM CHEDDAR CHEESE L.B. 33<sup>c</sup>

GENUINE EASTER LAMB

The First of 1936. A Real Treat For Easter

HIND QUARTER Lamb lb. 33<sup>c</sup>

FORE QUARTER Lamb lb. 24<sup>c</sup>

Rinso large 2 pks. 37c

Lux large 2 pks. 43c

Lux Soap 4 bars 25c

Lifebuy Soap 3 bars 17c

LIBBY'S SPECIALS

Apple Sauce 3 No. 2 Cans 25<sup>c</sup>

Tomato Juice No. 10 Cans 39<sup>c</sup>

Small Cans — Doz. 89c

Corn Golden Bantam 2 No. 2 Cans 23<sup>c</sup>

Corn Whole Kernel—Golden Bantam 2 No. 2 Cans 27<sup>c</sup>

Salmon Red Alaska—Sockeye 2 Tall Cans 49<sup>c</sup>

Fancy Mackerel 3 Tall Cans 25<sup>c</sup>

Sunsweet Prune Juice Qt. 21<sup>c</sup> Jar 21<sup>c</sup>

Miracle Whip Salad Dressing Qt. 37<sup>c</sup>

La France Washing Powder 3 Pks. 23<sup>c</sup>

SUGAR Pure Cane C & H 5 D<sup>5</sup> bag 26<sup>c</sup>

FLORIDA ORANGES Extra Large Sweet and Juicy 3 doz. $1.00

Florida Seedless Grapefruit Large Ripe 4 for 29<sup>c</sup>

IDAHO POTATOES Fancy No. 1 10 lb. bag 29<sup>c</sup>

That name on a bottle of catsup

NEW NUT BRAND TOMATO CATSUP

2 Large Bottles 35<sup>c</sup>