Fashion Tips

Before most of us have a chance to get any wear out of our Summer clothes, the smart shops begin displaying Fall fashions and we are apt to get just a bit dissatisfied with what we already have.

Before planning that trip in August, it might be well to shop around a bit and add a thing or two to your wardrobe. Especially is this true of one's hats.

Our Summer straws are likely to look a bit frazzled by this time and in order to "perk us up a bit," we might select a new one in one of the latest materials, such as antelope, velvet or felt.

According to latest reports, Fall hats are going to be colorful, furnishing the color interest, with trimmings giving the accent. Often two and three colors are blended together in a single hat—one such combination being lime, rust and brown.

Feathers are being used to introduce startling colors, while quills stick out in all directions. These two are often in such colors as brilliant reds, bright greens, royal blues and the like.

Although there are still many high hats, the tendency seems toward lower crowns, with the beret, always a favorite with many, in the foreground still.

Hollywood Says It's Fall

While the rest of the continent swelters, Hollywood proclaims that the time has come for fall costumes. Here is Gerfrude Michael, film player, with one of the outfits she has selected for her fall wardrobe—a dark green jersey suit trimmed with black Persian lamb and highlighted with black braid frogs. Her hat is a Cossack turban of black Persian lamb, matching the suit trimming.
