King Edward VIII

1—Oscar's parents had great ambitions for the boy.
2—When he was a little fellow they used to take him around the house and point out the oil paintings of his ancestors.
3—Most of them had been statesmen.
4—They sent him to the best schools and then to a university where he would get the democratic touch.
5—They never ceased emphasizing that in the United States every boy had a chance to become President, and they liked to impress upon him that his chances were better than average.
6—Their idea was that he should get a broad education and then enter the law. Most Presidents came from the law, they said.
7—He inherited certain statesmanlike instincts and the ability to mix well on necessary occasions.
8—After graduation he went into politics and his folks saw that he had the right sponsors.
9—He was soon looked upon as a rising young man in the affairs of the state and won a state senatorship in no time.
10—Everybody liked Oscar. He had a way with him.
11—After a few years he became governor and acted with distinction and the attendant publicity.
12—Then they began to talk of him as a favorite son.
13—He looked like a cinch for the White House.
14—Then came the 1929 collapse and chaos. Oscar observed the troubles of a President with a considerable cooling of his ambitions.
15—But the party went on booming him until there seemed no way out.
16—Oscar fooled them, however.
17—He suddenly quit the state and became a professional tester of experimental parachutes over the Grand Canyon.
18—He left a note saying that he figured it was less strain and worry.
MORAL—Now and then you find a man who can sidetrack an ambition.

McGofoey's First Reader and Eclectic Primer

What have we here? We have an automobile. How big is the automobile? It is a four-passenger automobile. How many people are in the automobile? Eight people and a dog. How can eight people and a dog get into a four-passenger automobile? We're often wondering about that.

Are the people comfortable? Certainly not. Even the dog is suffering. Where are they going? They are going to the country or shore on the regular Sunday motor trip. How long will it take them? They will be all day getting there and all night getting back. Why? On account of traffic congestion. They will enjoy the outing? No, in fact they will be pretty miserable every moment and spend midday the suffering will have become pronounced. Then why do they take this trip every Sunday? It's an American custom.

HEALTH RHYMES
Masticate each mouthful well,
Never overeat;
Always wear your rubbers in Snow or rain or sleet!
Brush your teeth quite carefully,
Don't neglect your sleep;
And in anything you do
Look before you leap!
Watch your calories and don't strain or hurt your eyes;
Strain in mind that you must have Abundant exercise!
Guard your health from more to night—
Over your diet fuss;
And you'll probably expire Underneath a bus!

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS
The Robin
The robin is a hardliner of spring, but you can get influenza through trusting it too implicitly. It comes north in early April and people who have been sitting around in heavy underwear waiting for it promptly get into lighter weight apparel and begin raking the lawn, planting flower seeds and developing a cold in the head. No bird has been responsible for more pneumonia.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THESE SENTENCES?
