Little Women Club Seeks House Like Authoress

Plans are being made and a suitable location sought for the permanent establishment of "The Little Women Club" of Birmingham, by Mrs. George Donaldson, manager of the Birmingham Woman's Exchange on South Woodward Avenue.

Classes in dancing, drama, chorus work, as well as thorough training in the art of being a good hostess and of getting along with others will be given.

Mary Helen Benedict of the welfare of children. Forty little girls were members. Classes in drama, French, singing and dancing were carried on in the gardens of her home in Bloomfield Hills.

It is Mrs. Donaldson's belief that play and work should be combined; that children can be taught to be useful and happy at the same time.

"Today, little girls are, at heart, just as interested in the real world as their mothers were in the little world of the garden. They are interested in the real world as their mothers were in the little world of the garden. They are interested in the real world as their mothers were in the little world of the garden."
