L. Cowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. Cowen of Birmingham.

The bridal party advanced up the long center aisle which was marked off by ropes of greenery and led from the portico of the garden to an improvised altar on the upper terrace. The aisle was illuminated by lights hidden in the ropes of greenery. Floor lights were concealed in shrubs and trees to light the pretty scene.

The altar was placed before the fountain which was flanked with ferns and gladioli. On either side of the altar three sets of candles were placed on the different levels of the terrace. A stringed orchestra played the wedding music. The Rev. Francis B. Creamer, Caywood, Mrs. Robert Paisley of Linden road was hostess at luncheon at the Detroit Athletic Club tomorrow in honor of the two visitors.

Fashion Tips

Daytime gloves grow shorter as summer advances. Some stop at the turn of the wrist while others have a shortened effect by the use of a turn-back cuff which extends over the hand.

With linen suits, linen gloves of a contrasting color are chic.

With a day costume, gloves of lace, mousseline, or paper are worn. Thin dresses call for gloves in silk, cotton tulle or flit.

Even the beach frock and shorts wear their accompanying gloves of white cotton crocheted over navy kid.

The latest thing is to match one's bag and belt with one's sandals and to wear plain gloves that match the frock.

Bright colored sandals with a short jacket of similar color look smart with a dark costume.
