Life's Little Laughs

Hi, Wares
A kind old gentleman, seeing a small boy who was carrying a lot of newspapers under his arm said: "Don't all those papers make you tired, my boy?"
"Naw, I don't read 'em," replied the lad.

Lucky
"I shot a derby off a man's head with a bow and arrow yesterday." "Gosh, you must be an expert with a bow and arrow." "No, I was aiming at an archery target."

Bright Boy
A little boy, after his first day at school, was questioned as to what happened on his first day. "Nothing much," he said, "except that a lady there who didn't know how to spell 'cat' asked me, how, and I told her."

Nudist
"You poor man, how did you get into all that trouble?" "Oh, I stood up like a gentleman when a lady entered the room." "But how could that get you into trouble?" "I was taking a bath."

Naughty! Naughty!
"You mustn't use that word," said mother. "Shaw and Maxwell use it," replied the growing son. "Then you must not play with such naughty boys."

Hot
"And I really do set you on fire, my sweet?" "Yes, precious, you're certainly a match for me."

That Meek Look
Pete—You don't look like you did when I saw you last winter. When I saw you then you looked like a dude.
Ray—Times are different now, I'm married.
Pete—What has married life done with it?
Ray—Why, I'm subdued now.

Not Bad
Detective—I've got great news to report to my chief. The guy we want for those robberies is the swimming instructor at the Hillcrest nudist colony.
Couple—Nice work?
Detective—Yeah, if you can get it.

And How!
"I'm sure I'll get all confused and mixed up when I meet your father."
"That's all right. He'll help you out."

Discovery
"Shuf!—There certainly are a lot of girls in town who do not wish to get married."
Riffle—How do you know?
Shuf!—I've asked 17 of them already.

Sure Enough
Dick: There must be some truth in the saying nobody loves a fat man.
Tom: Sure? Why, you are sort of plump yourself, and you have had four love affairs and lost most of 'em many times.
Dick: Well, isn't four proof enough?

Kitchen Kink
"Yes, I like to give my husband variety in his meals, especially at dinner time."
"Really, how do you manage it?"
"Well, I love him boiled ham, but I buy it from a different shop every day."

Information
The lady with stern face glared at the post office clerk and said: "I sent away for a bottle of medicine, and it has not arrived."
"In that case," said the clerk in soothing tones, "I must get you to fill in a form. What is the exact nature of your complaint?"
The lady looked taken back. "I don't see what my complaint has to do with it, but it is chronic indigestion if you must know."

Safety First
Dr. Cattermole: Oh, you needn't be so afraid after I remove your appendix.
McLavis: I'm not going to say you now. I was merely counting my money before you gave me the other.

At Last
Mr. Timmons was always thinking he heard burglars. Generally there was no reason for alarm, but one night when Timmons was investigating he found there really was a burglar in the house.
"Wait a few minutes, will you, I've just heard the intruder."
"While you get the police?" came the sarcastic response.
"No, I'm not going to do that," explained Timmons. "I only want to call my wife. She'll be glad to meet you. She's heard you accidentally spill some rice."

Warning
"I made a bet with Harold that I'd kiss the first girl I came to," declared Clarence, the professional shirk.
"Huh?" said Betty grins. "If you try it on me, I'll be a long time before you come to."

Tim Flies
Postmaster—The weather we're having now isn't anything like that 20 years ago.
Farmer—Neither is it anything like it was six months ago.

Artificial
"How do you know my father was a druggist?" "Well, you said you got all your good looks from him."
