Frank F. Tillstoon, prominent better benker and well known reades to get it, spend even learned to get it, spend even learned to get it. If you do all these things of lookin, hand your envelope over to your wife, don't sell the United State, and the spending of the project of the spending of the project of the

My own idea of the sti-erson is he or she who eavily upon the church for al support, yet doesn't allo urch to lean as heavily upo her for financial support.

I recently heard a preacher say that the real trouble with the buth of today is that it lacks old-shioned, honest-to-God parents too many cases.

Isn't it true that the greatest of our national movements on foot today is that of pedestrians trying to get out of the way of automo-bites?

When I was a boy whisky was and evil thing. Any young man in the lique-yeen occasionally—vas practically ostracised. But immes have changed. Which realls the statement out.
