

REALTY HEAD NAMES GROUPS

National Association Has Defined Objectives Says Bennett

Five committees for the coming year were appointed at the Thursday night meeting last week of the Birmingham Real Estate Board, held in the Community House. President Clyde Bennett was in charge of the session and appointed the various groups.

The committees include: Property Owners Committee; Whiting W. Raymond, chairman; Legislative and Taxation, Herbert S. O'Brien, chairman; Membership, L. E. Helton, chairman; Publicity, G. W. Smith; Appraisals Committee, G. W. Smith, chairman, Herbert S. O'Brien and J. B. Howarth.

It was announced that at the next meeting, which will occur on April 2, the real estate brokers here will report on their activities during the past month.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards states in its constitution, according to Mr. Bennett, the following objectives of the organization:

"To promote and maintain high standards of conduct in the transaction of the real estate business."

"To formulate and enforce a code of ethics for members of the association."

"To license its members the right to use the term or symbol 'Realtor' which is hereby defined to mean a person engaged in the real estate business who is a board member or individual member of the national association, subject to its rules and regulations, observes its standards of conduct, and is entitled to its benefits and protection."

"To protect the public against unethical, improper or fraudulent practices by use of the term 'Realtor' as well as enable the public to recognize it as identifying persons who have agreed to observe the standards maintained by the association."

S. J. Skinner, instructor in Birmingham Community College, is impressed by the smoothness with which the schedule of affairs operated at the Baldwin High School. The courtesy extended strangers by students on all duty is especially to be commended. He has had many years of teaching experience and enjoys seeing such a school in action.

DISINHERITED?

By RAYMOND PITLAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinel of the Republic

Through successive generations the American people have continued to receive one of the richest heritages in all history.

Freedom of speech and of opportunity, the right to a decisive voice in the government on each stage of a national crisis, a public wealth beyond the dreams of Croesus—

These are but a few of the treasures won in the blood and the sweat of hard-working, hard-fisted pioneers and left to us as a natural birthright.

How are we preserving that heritage? What is America doing to maintain or increase for posterity the things our fathers won for us? What will this generation leave to those who follow?

Today the act seems discouraging. Its items would include:

A burden of national debt which, as this is written, exceeds $1,000,000,000—instead of an increasing national wealth.

The threat of a new, alien philosophy of dependence and fear—instead of the spirit that sent Daniel Boone into the wilds of Kentucky and whole families over the hardships of the Oregon Trail.

A glorification of the economic goose-step—instead of the bold, free tread that could carry youth to whatever heights its strength and ability permitted.

No wonder, as it regards this prospect, youth in America feels disinherited. No wonder thousands of older citizens remembering the opportunities of their own youth, are protesting against a philosophy which robs their sons of similar freedom. No wonder the true descendants of the American pioneer are insisting that personal liberty and personal opportunity must be preserved in this country.

Thousands of our ancestors fought and died to win for us these liberties and opportunities. Thousands more fought to preserve them. The newer generations have a right to enjoy the heritage. We cannot let them down.

Unchanged
Visitor—May I come in? It's the room I had when I went to college in '09.

College Student—Sure, come right in.

Visitor (muttering, lost in reverie)—Yes, sir. Same old room. Same old windows. Same old furniture. Same old view of the campus. Same old clock.

He stepped over and opened the closet door. There stood a girl.

Student—Er—oh, this is my sister.

Visitor—Yes, sir. Same old story.

Birmingham before today

By MINNIE HUNT SALTZER
The house that was recently razed at the S. W. corner of Brown and Woodward Aves. was the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Camp. Mrs. Nellie Conroy Camp was the mother of Maude Stanley Camp and Nille Camp. Mrs. Camp was the son of Mr. W. H. Camp by a former marriage.

In the Eccentric of May 2, 1878 Mr. Camp had an advertisement in which he stated that he was a "Horse and Cattle Farmer" and an "Auctioneer."

Luther Stanley were business associates for several years.

During the pastorate of the M. E. Church, Mr. the church at the time Mrs. Camp became converted and I recall that one Sunday P. M. during his last illness, a prayer and praise service was held at the Camp home.

at Mr. Camp's request, to advise that he might give; his testimony as to the saving grace of Christ. I believe that he died in the spring of 1885. At any rate we had a very severe snow storm the day before the day appointed for the funeral and the services had to be postponed until the men of the town could dig out the snow that blocked Woodward Ave. and Cemetery Road. The snow drifts were so high it was utterly impossible for the younger school children to get to school.

Mrs. Nellie Camp was for many years an active member of the M. E. Church and I believe she served on the Official Board of the church at the time that Mrs. Helen Carson was a member of the board.

Miss Nellie Camp was a member of the Epworth League.

From the age of six years Maude was an invalid. She had a tricycle on the wheels of which were large wheels at the back, the seat at built between them, and a small steering wheel attached to the handle at the front of the tricycle. The pedals were removed and a platform put in its place. Maude would guide the tricycle and I would push it and there she and Nellie and me would go and Nellie and I did not venture. Sometimes we would become too venturesome and the tricycle would get stuck. Then it was "little Nellie's" job to go after the tricycle, who would be Mr. Mr. Camp, to help us out of our difficulties. Our favorite trip was down the high bank on the hill, Maude would sit in her tricycle up on the old board walk bridge and I would walk beside her, quite low and low would be a strip of sand on its north side under the street bridge. When it would see a team or a horse and carriage coming down the hill Nellie and I would hurry under the bridge and listen to the clatter of horses feet and the roll of the wheels on the wooden planks of the bridge.

Maude was the oldest and the captain of our trio and Nellie and I would attempt any stunt which she suggested, even though it ended in failure. There was a row of black cherry trees on the outside of the walk on Brown Street and each year they bore plentifully. There were also large cherry trees on the front lawn of the Camp property. These were of the large sweet red and white variety. At the S. W. corner of the house there was a large black Oakham cherry tree, with branches nearly reaching the ground. This was one of our favorite spots. Another was the large feathery spreading bush at the S. E. corner of the garden. Maude always had many pets in those days and at one time had two tame field mice.

Mrs. Camp was always very sweet and kind and never gave us a frown no matter how much mischief we got into.

Will Taber, son of M. K. Taber, gave Maude a music box that was run by means of a handle and our happiest moments were those in which we took turns in pulling out the old time popular music.

When with my parents, I went to live at the corner of Bates and Brown Streets in the fall of 1886 our happy pilgrimages around the town and our close companionship became past history.
