NUPTIALS READ AT HOME CEREMONY

Mary Isabel Davis To Wed John Blanchard At Morning Rites

Miss Mary Isabel Davis and John Wild Blanchard will speak their nuptial vows at a quiet ceremony at 11:30 o'clock, today, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manley D. Davis of Oak Knob Farms. The Rev. Dr. S. S. Marquis, Rector of Christ Church Cranbrook, will officiate. The ceremony will be read in the hall, before a studio window flanked with white lilies, stock and snapdragon, arranged between tall standards bearing lighted tapers. Miss Sally Davis, sister of the bride, will attend and H. Kenneth Bingham will be best man for Mr. Blanchard.

For the ceremony, Miss Davis will wear a traveling frock of navy blue sheer wool with white collar and cuffs, and a navy blue cape, lined with white. Her hat will be of navy blue silk trimmed with a white veil, and white gossamer hand around the crown. She will wear a spray of white orchids. Miss Sally Davis will wear a simple street costume of gray wool crepe, made in the jacket style. She will wear white garties.

Mrs. Davis has chosen a blue afternoon dress trimmed with touches of violet, for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Bert Morley, mother of the bridegroom, will wear a black and white costume for the ceremony.

Disposals of white lilies, stock and snapdragon will be used about the house, and white potted geraniums will be placed on the lower steps of the stairway in the hall, where the service will be read. White flowers of the same varieties will be used to adorn the bride's table for the wedding breakfast.

Following a trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Bingham will make their home on Long Lake road.

Fashion Tips

A new party box suitcase has its handle in the middle of the flat side instead of the opening so that the clothes will lie flat while being carried.

Spring tattering makes one think of taking a trip so if it happens to be a week-end party, and the weather is warm, a dark linen dress with a printed linen coat makes a snappy costume combined with gloves and hat which harmonize with the predominant color in the print.

Cottons are sweeping the country. They have been enjoying a vast popularity at Palm Beach. Handkerchief linen, cotton crashes and broadcloth, all make lovely frocks.

The newest color in Paris for evening frocks is "lampshade." Two or three layers of transparent materials are used and give changeable color effects.

Chiffon is a favorite material for these "lampshade" dresses but bright prints over-laid with colorful tulle or mousseline are also popular.

'Outward Bound' Is Given Fine Performance By Guild

By MARJORIE ELAINE PORTER

To these seeking mental or spiritual stimulation in the theater, the play "Outward Bound" by Sutton Lane, produced Friday and Saturday evenings by St. Dunstan's Guild in Cranbrook School, offered a genuine inspiration.

But those who look to the stage for diversion and relief from the more serious moods of life, may have been disappointed in the grave and somewhat tragic tenor of the play. "Outward Bound" is a serious drama that causes one to pause and take account of his own stewardship, lest he should find himself suddenly on the mercy of a ship making the voyage from "Here" to "Hereafter," as do the characters.

"Plays The Thing" But the play possesses elements of great beauty—its spiritual quality, fine lines and skilfully constructed plot, and its subtle mingling of humor and pathos. In all sincerity, one may say of "Outward Bound," "the play's the thing." The scene does not change from "Here" to "Hereafter," as do the characters. The play's little action, its stark simplicity, it depends on the artistry of the performers for dramatic effect.

And there was a touch of genuine nature in the intelligent performance given by the Guild. The perfecting of the virtues of unity with the efforts of the players directed toward a common ideal.
