the late Mrs. Mary Sharp Dicken- son of Townsend St. He is sur- vived by a daughter of a former marriage. All of the children of the Dicken-son family, with the exception of Mrs. Elizabeth Dicken- son, formerly have passed away. Mrs. Dicken-son celebrated her 90th birthday on Sept. 25 of the year...

Some time after the death of Mr. Thurbly the old house was moved to the N. E. corner of Bates and Martin St. and a new house erected on the old site. This is still the home of Mrs. Thurbly and her daughter, Mrs. M. Thurbly Hupp.

The Thurbly children could all be accounted for. Walter Martin also had a splendid voice. One evening about 1920 while he was in the rear of the choir, my father and I heard him singing from the pulpit. He was singing and was indeed I explained. This, that sounds like the Thurbly voice. And he had passed the house, they called it 'The Thurbly House'.

Mr. Thomas D. Thurbly's parents were Mr. and Mrs. Thurbly. He was born in a parsonage. He was a bookbinder by trade and he taught in the street school. He was the first of the Grand Grand boys and was the first of the Grand Grand boys. He was the first of the Grand Grand boys.
