Intelligent Buying was the subject of a talk given by Mrs. Royce Beers to Miss Purcell's Economics Class Tuesday morning. She said that people should consider value for money expended and they should realize that the most costly article might not give them the most service and satisfaction for their money. She also discussed the value of labeled goods to the buying public.

Miss Evangeline Purcell's Modern History Class is going to begin work on two newspapers reported to have been published in Europe during the French Revolution and Reign of Terror. Some of the people will work on furniture and interior decorating, some on music and art, and others on costumes of the period of Louis XVI.

The topic for discussion in the homerooms Wednesday, November 4, was, "The Relationship of Homerooms to the Student Council and Student Congress."

Alumni Notes

Sunday afternoon there was held a formal initiation at the Betty Barbour House in Ann Arbor. Conducting the ceremony was Betty Roara, as President of the House. Janet Peabody, the former president, presented the girls for initiation. The new girls from Baldwin were Ruth Smith, Patricia Hugg, Jean Rutherford, Betty Bricker, Betty Hill, and Agne Rutter.

This winter Julia Ellis and Lucille Preston are up at the outcure Business Institute taking a secretarial course.

Jerry Hart was one in about 20,000 at the Michigan Illinois game Saturday. John Hulbert was there, too, munching on a "hot dog." Virginia Osterman had a happy expression on her face as she left the stands, but this was very likely not caused by the outcome of the game. Ralph Dufus was inside a navy blue hooded coat and seemed to be helping at the bench. We did not see Jean Rutherford at the game, but she and Jim Taiman (He's not an alumni, but you remember him, don't you?) attended a "musical" in Ann Arbor Saturday evening, and we saw her there.

Pierce School News

Pierce School students held a Halloween celebration on the athletic field this week. Relay races were run between Mrs. Hinkley's room and Mrs. Grinnell's and between Miss McMinn's and Miss Swanson's, with team representing Mrs. Hinkley's and Miss McMinn's room winning. The sisters were awarded attractive scrap books. After the outdoor celebration the students returned to their respective rooms and frayed.

Mrs. Grinnell's room presented a clever Halloween assembly last Wednesday. The dance of the scarecrow was particularly good. Ann Hall played and sang with the guitar and Doris Andrade danced a sprightly autumn dance.

The kindergarten and second grade children were so cleverly costumed at Halloween that when they paraded through the halls many of them went unrecognized.

The children in the third grade each have a book shelf. After reading a book they may put it on their bulletin board shelf. We wonder who will read the greatest number?

Adams School News

The big Halloween Dance at Adams Friday night was a huge success. The turnout was astounding and everyone had a good time. There was a door prize, a prize for the best girl, most original boy, prettiest girl, the best couple, funniest boy and girl, character costume, folk costume, and for the best dancing couple. There was every kind of a costume ranging from that looked like a girl in an escaped convict, No. 202. It will be hard to beat when our next Student Council puts on the next Masquerade at Adams! There was even a floor show, in which Robert Bird and Gloria Graber sang "When did you leave Heaven?" Charles Sawyer played and sang "The way you look tonight." Natalie Schumacher did a toe dance, Nancy Walker did a Spanish dance, Nadine Becker recited "Sisters' Beau," and Gordon E. finished with a tap dance.

The entire Adams Junior High was very much surprised when it was announced that the 6th's had won the Booster subscription contest. They reported 109 per cent, four days before the contest was scheduled to close. The 6th's and home-rooms, who run most of the race backwards, suddenly shot up to second and third places and would have won if the 6th's had not been quite so fast in getting their subscriptions into the hands of the manager, Sheldon Olson. We need them in the Junior High right now, but Mrs. Moore said we couldn't have them yet. Hurry along 6th's and lend us a helping hand!

The 7A's are making an exhibit of their class hobbies. This showing of hobbies will consist of stamps, badges, foreign dolls, scraps, labels, coins, materials, and different species of woods. It will be done in a short time and promises to be both colorful and inviting. Maybe they'll let us see it.

The 8B's welcome a new student from Grosse Pointe, Jane Bronson. She started in Adams last Monday and likes it here. She likes our homeroom meetings because they have something to do with what is happening in this city. During Safety Week, Charles Bay led a discussion on the safe way to drive and explained a few questions. We discovered that most accidents are caused by anxiety and impatience. Let's have a safety Week every week and all do our part.

Monday night of this week the 8A's played volleyball. The 8A's defeated the 2B's, two games to three. The 9A's won over the 8B's after a hot battle, two games to nothing. These are the first volleyball games this year; there have been more in which the losers may strike back and win to their credit.

Barnum School Notes

The Barnum masquerade was, as most people phrased it—"a huge success."

Just before the refreshments were served a Grand March was held and prizes were given to Betty Wilson, dressed as a comic lady, for the funniest girl, to Glen Watson, dressed as an old man ready for bed in nightshirt and cap, for the funniest boy, to Joan Haddisy, Eugene Haddisy, and Spencer Peck, dressed as the Three Little Pigs, for the funniest group, to Perry Carl, dressed as a farmer, for the most original girl, and to Gene Richardson and Dean Firth, dressed as a cemetery for the most original group.

A floor show was held in which Marion Kirk, toe dancer, Harold Jones, imitator, Harold Bollen, singer, and Perry Carl and Harold Wangberg, who gave a dialogue, figured prominently.

A special meeting of the Barnum Home Economics club will be held Thursday afternoon at 4:15. Miss Huggert of the Baldwin faculty will talk on "How to buy stockings wisely." Refreshments will be served.

The safety patrol of Barnum is experimenting with two new signs which will be placed at the intersections of Pierce and Frank, and Purdy and Frank Streets.

The students are urged to cross at these intersections under the supervision of the patrolmen.
