FELLOWSHIP IN CLUB IS TOPIC

Two Detroit Rotarians Are Speakers At Monday Luncheon Here

Fellowship in Rotary was discussed by two Detroit members of the organization, H. C. "Buck" Murray and Elton Hassall, Monday noon at the local Rotarians' weekly luncheon in the Community House, Forth St. Hassall presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Murray, first to speak, pointed out efforts being made by the Detroit club to get new members acquainted, among themselves and the older Rotarians. A fellowship club has been organized, he said, and at the meetings of this group every effort is made to break down formality and promote close friendships. Speakers before the group have to give their names, nicknames, and classification.

Educational work is carried on in this fellowship group, Mr. Murray said. Past members of Rotary International and others well versed in Rotary explain principles of the organization and trace the growth of the Detroit club as well as the district, national and international Rotary group. Discussion groups are held for new members and questions on policy and activity of the organization are explained.

In concluding, Mr. Murray stated that the Detroit Club has invited all new members and their sponsors in the 81 clubs of the 23rd District to attend a dinner meeting at the Statler Hotel on Tuesday evening, November 10. Dick Hedke, past District Governor, and G. R. Averill, present Governor of the 23rd District, will speak.

Elton Hassall spoke next, elaborating on some of the points made by Mr. Murray and stressing the fact that the Rotarian should be credited with starting a valuable movement in suggesting instruction classes for new members. Mr. Hassall, in explaining how new members are instructed, stated that the history of Rotary growth is traced as part of the work. Some of the facts presented, he said, include: Detroit was one of 16 clubs that formed the first national association of Rotary at the Chicago conference in 1911; International association formed in 1912 at Duluth, Minn. convention; Name of Rotary International changed at Los Angeles, Cal. convention, 1922. Rotary now has 3,429 clubs throughout the world with an approximate membership of 170,000.

Light Poles Once Used As Gallows

Those rustic, modern looking street lighting poles you've been admiring along Woodward Avenue were used in the Sixteenth Century but not for hanging lights, according to R. W. Yeats, of Brook Road, who spends considerable time browsing through old, rare documents of historical interest.

Mr. Yeats happened on Jeffrey Road in the Broad Highway the other day and in scanning the contents of this 16th Century treatise he noted a picture of a traveler being held up by a highwayman on an English turnpike. Clearly shown in the background was an exact reproduction of the poles used for street lighting on the new two-mile experimental stretch along Woodward Avenue. Instead of a light, the body of a man was hanging from the horizontal piece attached to the pole near the top. "It's too bad that we have to revert to old style gallows to hang a light on," said Mr. Yeats.

SCHETTLEURS URGE CARE OF HEALTH

Educational Program to Be Published Weekly By Drug Company

Beginning today the Schettler Drug Company will publish each week an editorial advertisement on the importance of the proper way to maintain good health, and how wise it is to consult a physician at the first signs of expanded health. Also why physical examinations at regular intervals may prove advantageous.

In this series Schettlers will discuss the danger of self-medication is uncertain and of time leads to serious complications. Also that a physician at the first signs of expanded health. Also why physical examinations at regular intervals may prove advantageous.

First, because he has no license to prescribe. Second, because he does not measure up to the knowledge and training of a physician. The Schettler Drug Co. hopes that by making the public more conscious of the services of the medical profession a higher health care may be maintained in the community. It was stated the company's appreciation of the public's interest regarding the statements made in this series.

WPA NURSERIES FEED 1400 NEEDEY KIDDIES

More than 1,400 children below the age of two and two from needy families are being cared for and given nourishing meals by 43 nursery school units operating under the WPA in Michigan.

As soon as possible 20 more nursery schools with an enrollment of 700 little tots will be added, according to Miss Roberta Henningsway, state supervisor of the project.

Coming from families of low incomes or those working on the WPA, the children attend school meals by 43 nursery school units under the guidance of trained educators, including a registered nurse, experienced teachers, and a cook employed by the WPA to prepare meals.

BOOK LECTURE TUESDAY NIGHT

Paul McPharlin Will Speak On Ways To Build Home Library

Building up a home library with special reference to individual interest will be the subject of Paul McPharlin's address, which he speaks at the Baldwin Public Library auditorium next Tuesday night. The lecture, which will begin promptly at 8 P. M., is open to the public.

Mr. McPharlin is an authority on publishing and collecting books. In his talk he will point out the best procedure to follow in obtaining artistic and quality books at low cost. The questions of how a book is made and the value of first editions will be elaborated upon in order that the audience will be able to differentiate between good and inferior works and, also, when and when not to buy first editions.

Fall Party October 28

Miss Helen Norman, who conducted the Summer Vacation Reading Club for over 100 children here, announced that the Fall Halloween Party, promised to all members of the group completing ten or more books during the time the club was active, will be held at the library, Wednesday, October 28, at 7:30 o'clock. Invitations to the affair will be mailed out to 25 young girls. The number of filling their requisites.

Halloween costumes will be worn to the party. Miss Norman stated, and there will be games and various contests for the entertainment of the children. Prizes will be awarded winners after which all club members present will be given certificates as members of the reading group. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Norman stated that those receiving invitations to the party must present them to her in person to be valid.

Five New Books Added

Three novels, one mystery thriller and a humorous story on present day events comprise the list of new books added to the library during this week.

Westbrook Pegler, famous for his humor and alert observation, has written "It Ain't Right." The work contains a quiver-full of Pegler's observations of events in the foreign and domestic big tent and side shows—journalistic jabs hurled at regimented education, English humor, and the American panorama. Both the New York Times Book Review and the Sunday Review of Literature have commented on this new edition in highly favorable terms.

Preval of Christopher Wren presents his latest book, "The Fort in the Jungle." Not only about Gales" has the author written a more thrilling novel. D'Arny, a terrific hero of "Action and Adventure" and "The Soldier," again comes to life in this gripping story.

D'Arny guarantees to thrill and delight with his latest mystery book, "The Falcon's Prey." The plot centers around the elusive Falcon, perhaps the most unusual character operating outside the pale of the law in fiction writing. Author Drake's book was one of three runners-up in the $7,000 Lippincott-Harper Mystery Contest.

A rich and snowy tale of a woman's gallant fight against the odds of her sex are related in E. P. O'Donnell's "Garden Margins." Life along the Mississippi River delta is unfolded in all its true color. This novel was selected as the Book-Of-The-Month choice for October. It was picked as the best from among 500 manuscripts submitted in a prize contest. Nora Lotis relates the glamorous life of Sir Walter Raleigh in "Here Was A Man." The author pictures the famous Englishman in two worlds—Shakespeare's Elizabeth's. His life as a soldier, poet, historian, lover, explorer, politician and courtier is related.

YOUNG GOP DRIVE UNDER WAY HERE

Members To Canvass City In Effort To Build Up Registration

Members of the Young Republican organization here have initiated an intensive drive, through out the city this week, in connection with a county-wide canvass by the same group, to register all eligible voters for the November 3 presidential election. R. J. Meisner is supervising the campaign. The deadline for registering has been moved up to Saturday, October 17.

A booklet, presenting statistics showing that many citizens who are eligible to vote do not register and cast their ballot, is being circulated by the group in their effort to rouse up those delinquent in registering. Figures are quoted to show the percentage of voting to the population in cities, counties and states, based on the 1930 Federal census.

Among the 81 counties in Michigan, the booklet shows that Oakland County ranked eighth in the 1932 balloting for governor. The census shows that there were 211,253 people within the county and only 62,222 cast their vote for a percentage of only 31.8. The percentage for the state was slightly higher, being 34.9. This figure gave Michigan a rank in prof 43 among the 48 states. Birmingham ranks sixth among the ten cities in Oakland County with a 26.3 percentage for the 1934 election. With a census total of 9,550 people, this community had only 2,514 voters. The best record was made by South Lyon with a 42 per cent average while the worst mark was set by Pontiac with a percentage rate of 17.6.

The last page of the booklet is given over to a listing of Republican candidates for national, state and county office, Lynn D. Allen and G. Dewey Kimball are the only local men whose names appear on the list. They seek county offices of Clerk and Coroner respectively.

BLOOMFIELD GLENS

at the northeast corner of W. Maple and W. Bloomfield Roads

Bloomfield Glens was planned for those who feel cramped on a city lot, who care enough about their hobbies to live with them, who want a country home with city conveniences in an environment of woods, hills, and meadows. Only in Bloomfield Glens can be found small acreage with all the things we are so often asked to find—"A few acres with a hill, some trees and a stream . . ." Each parcel is distinctive—the stream has unlimited possibilities for pool and rock garden development. The view from the hills in all directions is magnificent—rolling meadows and wooded slopes stretch out in peaceful quiet. Specially restricted for your own protection, priced below raw acreage levels; here is a community for those who like to ride or garden. There is a good school 1/2 mile away. Bloomfield Glens is unqualifiedly recommended for the investor. A descriptive brochure will be submitted upon request.
