YOUR DOCTOR IS YOUR BEST FRIEND

It has been said, and frequently confirmed, that most students who decide on a medical course are primarily actuated by an unselfish desire to aid humanity in the maintenance of health. This desire is as sincere in the case of the physician as it is in that of the missionary who devotes his life to the heathen of cannibalistic lands. The physician works untiringly, night and day, when called upon to attend either the sick or the aged, and therefore, should have the cooperation of his patients. They should follow his instructions implicitly, and thus help him to bring them back to health most readily. Then take his prescriptions to the drug store you know to have a reputation for painstaking care in the compounding of medicines. This is the second of a series of Editorial Advertisements appearing in this paper each week.
