The Editor,
Birmingham Eccentric.
Dear Sir:

The other morning I was in at the Old Snug Restaurant a little early and in came Bacon Eaterbrook and said:

"I'm goin' t' have t' do something with my trophies."

I asked him what trophies?, and he said principally his accumulated pickled heads which were down in the cellar where his butcher shop used to be—and he was going to move them to his new place. Then he said: "I'll never forget when I took 'em."

It was out at Fisher's Lake—Butch was fishing through the ice. He caught the usual fish, an occasional bass, one weighed 22 pounds—the other 20. And when he brought them in, Butch said, they had their backs up—and they cut the cake just like a crosscut saw. By the time he had hauled in the two pickerel the ice of the lake was cut to ribbons. Butch nearly slipped off the floating cakes three times, getting to shore. When he got to town he told Max Houghtaling, the restaurant about it, and that was the year Max didn't have to cut ice on the mill pond. And the only trouble with the ice-harvest at the lake was that so many cakes were round—where they picked pirate effect—that the cakes would roll out of Max's ice wagon.

Butch said: "Them was real pick'rel! They don't grow 'em like that only bigger."

And after Butch went out I got to thinking this over—and I decided Max was in about the same boat with the fish-chicken Dominecker—that their cakes keep rollin' out of the back of the wagon—while here in Michigan Governor Fitzgerald lets loose a curtin' some good square chunks that stay put.

Maybe it's a pretty far cry from Butch's ice-cuttin' pick'rel to the present campaign, but I don't think so. And I think there's a lot to what Aunt Addie Orton said here a while ago about Old Grandpap Cleveland. Old Granpap lived up near Tinkertown—(Aunt Addie lives out south and east of town on the Angling Road)—and he had the loudest and biggest set of sleighbells in the county—so big and loud that you could hear 'em ten miles on a clear day and everyone would stop and listen and say:

"Here comes Grannpap."

And Granpap Cleveland said that Education would be the ruination of the nation yet.

He said that better'n fifty years ago and it begins to look as if it'd be about right since Prof. Tugwell's joints have all gone flabby but there's still time to save that Old Grannpap was saying and elect somebody to Sleighbells Like Grannpap's on all Loans.

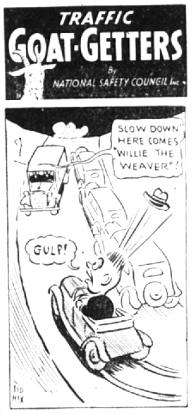
Anyway—that's the way it looks to me—and winter ain't far off either.

Yrs. (s-c-t) Chet Shafer.

"With a Hey-Nonny-Nonny!"

P. S.—I see our former Pontiac Grampa, Mrs. Welch, is at it again—doin' more slippin'.

P. S. S.—"I'll take Manilla".



THE HILL PASSER

If the Dumb Stunts of the present decade should be recorded by future historians this amazing chronicle of those drivers who attempt to pass cars on hills and curves will be found high on the list. The tragic experience of those who have failed does not seem to deter them in the least. Such boobs cannot get it through their heads that every time they pass on a blind curve or near the top of a hill, the wings of Gabriel are swishing the cheek of the car, and the Grim Reaper himself is perched on the running board.

"HOSE" A SNAKE

Frederick, Md.—Stooping to pick up a section of water hose near a flower bed, to the surprise of Mrs. Lewis A. Moberly, the "hose" wriggled and struck a neighbor, hearing her scream, killed a six-foot blacksnake.

State Historical Data Is Guarded

Among the vast stores of valuable historical data guarded under lock and key at the Michigan State Library, none is more highly prized nor more significant to the citizens of Michigan than a group of papers added to the collection only a few years ago which include original documents that for the most important steps of the Federal Government in the matter of admitting Michigan to statehood as the 26th state. Included among these papers are the original petition of the people of Michigan for admission to the union, the original act of congress admitting Michigan to the union, the original constitution of Michigan, and the original act of congress admitting Michigan to the union. Also included in the group are the original petitions
