Deer Hunters Have 'Messenger Service'

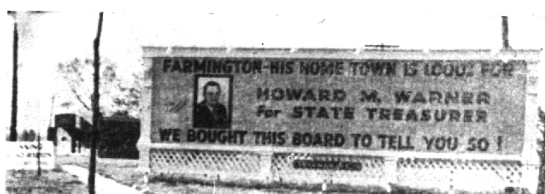

Deer hunters whose cabins in the north woods are likely to be at out-of-the-way places or distant from telegraph or telephone stations, may again have the facilities of the department of conservation "messenger service" this season—merely by registering their names with directions as to where they may be found in an emergency. Last year when the messenger service was instituted in the neighborhood of 200 sportsmen registered with conservation officers in the county in which they were to be located or at district conservation posts just "in case" of possible emergency calls from home.

LARGER COTTON CROP

Washington—This year's cotton crop, as indicated by October 1 conditions, would total 11,669,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, according to a Department of Agriculture report. Last year's production was 10,636,000 bales and that of 1934 was 9,693,000 bales.

The Home Town "Goes To Town"

Probably the most unique billboard in all of Michigan is attracting attention on G and R ave just outside of Farmington, a town of 1200 near Detroit. When Farmington's mayor, Howard M. Warner, won the Republican nomination for State Treasurer, citizens of the town decided to "go to town". They raised money overnight and got the billboard shown above, to tell Michigan and the world what they think of Howard Warner. The second contributor was a leading Democrat of the town.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Campaign Sets New High in Bid for Important Farm Vote Nov. 3

WASHINGTON—More of an effort has been made to get the farm vote Nov. 3 than has ever been made before in the memory of political leaders. Both the Democratic and Republican parties claim late-comer drifts among the farmers. The farmer is an important state, well removed from the so-called "grain belt". The extent to which voters in rural New York, rural Michigan, rural Ohio and rural Pennsylvania will repudiate or approve the New Deal will decide whether large Democratic majorities in these states can be overturned. The farm vote is hard to guess. Political scouts of both major parties report that the farmer as a general rule is uncommunicative. Republicans believe their stress on increased agricultural imports since 1933, and increased federal expenditures and national debt, have appealed strongly to the thirty farm population. Democrats have been trying to offset this impression with comparisons which point to a definite improvement in the average farmer's economic position under the New Deal.

UNITED STATES REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE A. DONDERO REPUBLICAN

LYNN D. ALLEN REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY CLERK OAKLAND COUNTY. Federal and Church Affiliations: Member of the Masons, Elks, Eagles, American Legion, National Rifle Association, and First Presbyterian Church. Member of Following Committees: Appointed by the Governor as a member of State Traffic and Safety Committee, and the State Election Commission to recommend certain changes in the election laws. He is also Chairman of the American Committee of the 10 & 4 (branch of American Legion) by the State of Michigan. Resided as County Clerk: Despite the passage of some 45 new laws affecting and increasing the duties of his office, and notwithstanding the fact that the budget for his office was reduced approximately $29,327.00 over a period of four years, Lynn D. Allen has maintained one of the most efficient County Clerks' offices in the State. In addition to a greatly reduced budget, many of the duties formerly retained by the County Clerk are now turned back to the County, and these alone will offset a saving to taxpayers of approximately $200,000.00. All those having business with the County Clerk's office appreciate the very friendly, efficient and courteous manner in which their matters are handled. Lynn D. Allen's record of efficiency and courtesy was largely responsible for the County Clerks of the State electing him as President of the State Association of County Clerks.

The BOOK SHELF Late Book Reviews and Literary Criticism by Doris Flint

MICHIGAN'S HARVEST: This season has witnessed the publication of several books written by our own Michigan authors. August 20 was the release date for Carl Sandburg's "The People, Yes"—Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.50. A commoner in every sense of the word except intellect Mr. Sandburg in his latest book has shown more than ever his love for his America—the America of grime and smoke and sweat. His new book is one long poem about the American people including everything from the payments on the car to the handmade milkstool. Having already achieved a very high place in American letters Mr. Sandburg will by no means endanger his standing with the publication of this splendid new book. Perhaps we should not claim Lloyd C. Douglas as a Michigan writer since he now lives in Montreal. However, he has spent several years in our University city of Ann Arbor and many people are of the opinion that the background for his "Magnificent Obsession" lay in our state. "White Barnacle" by Houghton Mifflin ($2.50) is his latest book in which Hannan Farmhouse takes charge of the Ward household and sets them on their feet financially as well as spiritually. Not a few readers will feel a trifle reluctant in accepting Dr. Douglas's doctrine of turning the other cheek even though it means to work out in the story. "Valiant Dust" by Helen Green with illustrations by May Hayes is the story of an Irish woman tyrant who rules her husband and four children with a rod of iron but
