Gertrude Michael was the target for a lot of remonstrating when she left Paramount, there were people who said she'd find that free-lancing was a lot worse than sticking with a big company, even though that didn't seem to be doing a great deal for her. Some of them predicted she'd be out of pictures, for a thing she knew.

Whereupon she lined up with RKO and now she's headed straight for the top.

That brand new motion picture company, Grand National, has just signed up a young man who looks like big star material. His name is Brilliant Chapman, and he's a dancer—has appeared in solo numbers for the past four years with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Recently he has been dancing at a night club in New York, and now he's in Europe on a vacation before he starts work before the camera.

Lily Pons is all set to begin picture work again, although she has said that she doesn't care too much about it. She spent her vacation in Connecticut, its climax being the arrival of her mother from France.

John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor, sang "Edith Piaf" and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" in England the other day for 20th Century-Fox's "Wings of the Morning" and if you see the picture you'll see the famous singer in natural color—it's the first feature picture produced in England.

The football broadcasts are being lined up, so that all who don't want to go to games, or can't make it, can sit at home this fall and hear what's happening on the gridiron. The big company is acting as sponsor for the broadcasts of one hundred major games, over thirty-five stations on the coast. The first one, which you've heard doing another sort of announcements with Jack Benny, will do some of the announcing.

If you listen to the Music Hall of the Air, on the radio, you probably know that you know Ted Hammerstein, he is the grandson of the late Oscar Hammerstein one of America's most illustrious theatrical figures.

Ted tells this a story about himself. He began into the theatrical business by working for a Broadway looking agent.

This theatrical agent was one of the important ones, and his waiting room was usually filled with people clamoring for work. Keeping them from storming the inner office was Hammerstein's main duty. He did his job as bouncer. He was very effective, and some of the people he threw out later made good—among them Richard Dix, Chester Morris and Ben Lyon!

ODDS AND ENDS ... Her admirer is declaring that Yvonne Snow's performance in "Roman and Juliet" makes her the greatest American actress, but none on stage or screen. ... Marlene Dietrich says she'll never return to Germany, not because of the Nazis with the government, but because the German people don't like her in pictures. ... And it's Donald H. who has come on strike on the Warner Brothers lot. ... Wonder who it is causing that epidemic. ... Betty Davis must be glad that she walked out on Kodak Company and the Borden Company has been having a run of accidents on location.
