Highlights Of American Music, Theme Of Young People's Program

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will play four concerts during the coming week, all under the conductorship of Victor Kolar. At 8 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 7 and 8, in Orchestra Hall, the orchestra will play the second pair of programs in the series of Free Concerts for School Children at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Dec. 10, the Symphony, assisted by the Choral Male Chorus, Thomas Lewis, conductor, will offer the fourth program in the Industrial Concert Series. At 10:45 a. m. Saturday, Dec. 11, the second concert in the Young People's Series will be played. Edith Rhett Tilton will lecture at the latter performance, and also at the Tuesday and Wednesday programs.

Friday's concert, played especially for the benefit of the Chrysler Corporation, will include orchestral compositions of Dvorak, Massenet, Goldmark, Tchaikovsky and Elgar. The 200-voice chorus will contribute four groups of songs, including the writings of Bach, Handel, Shaw, Jenkins, Beethoven, Buzzi-Peccia, Jones and Schubert-Liszt.

"The Dance" will be the subject of the free concerts Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The composers who will be represented on the program will be Schubert, Thomas, Paderewski, Mozart, Germain, G. F. Haescher, Brahms and Ponchelli.

"Highlights of American Music" will be discussed and demonstrated at the second concert in the Young People's Series. This offering will be in the nature of a sequel to the first of these programs, "American History Through Music," played by the orchestra Saturday morning, Nov. 20. Music by John Alden Carpenter, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Minnie Augusta and Herbert Wright will be played.

'Cholly Knickerbocker' On Town Hall Program

Speaking on "How society moves and breaks itself," Mr. Paul will take his audience behind the scenes with the society editor, revealing the whys and wherefores of social success and failure, the story behind big social events and other things which do not get into print.

SO QUICKLY AUTUMN COMES

Summer is gone. Only today it went. Yesterday was so bright and beautiful, but this day's sky is overcast and dull. And every bit of bloom is here and spent. The wind blew very gently yesterday. I watched my marigolds sway to and fro. The sun turned earth into a paradise; But sturdy and soft winds had to go. No sunlight filters through the linden skies today. The wind moans dimly. Summer has gone away. Beatrice McDonald

Michigan Mirror
NON-PARTISAN STATE NEWS LETTER

LANSING, Dec. 2.—The national business recession may be a "blessing in disguise," as the invariable optimist would call it, but it's just another administrative headache to Michigan's Governor Frank Murphy.

The reason is easy to find. The legislature's unrestrained liberality left the budget $18,000,000 out of balance, the said budget being made in anticipation of $107,000,000 tax receipts. With falling off of business, sales tax receipts on which the state depends for 56 per cent of its revenue have slumped $500,000 below the figures for last summer. And instead of the budget being only $3,000,000 in the red, as a result of appropriation trimming by Budget Director Harold Smith, the prospective deficit has been boosted to nearly $5,000,000.

More slashes are coming, so Smith warns. Governor Murphy is still determined so to appear as to "balance the budget." And the outcome is being watched closely by the voters, with an eye on the coming 1938 election, away the answers to (1) will Michigan's state budget, with an eye on the coming 1938 election, away the answers to (1) will Michigan's "New Deal" face a financial deficit? (2) Will the budget, if balanced, be higher than previous state budgets—and if so, why?

Increased Payrolls
Leaders of the administration—Secretary of State Leon D. Case, State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry and Auditor General George Gundry—have already indicated that the main reason for increased state payrolls in recent years is the shifting of governmental responsibilities more and more upon the state.

If more money is needed for schools, highways, welfare, snow removal and other public services, then the Piper must be paid in the form of an increased budget, so the argument goes.

As the secretary of state pointed out at Grand Rapids, 3,000 employees have been added to the state payroll in recent years to administer new departments and bureaus created by legislative enactment.

Cooking the Goose?

That the radical element in C. I. O. ranks have been "cooking their own goose" is a conclusion favored in official circles here. Recent facts bear out the theory. U. A. W. workers in the Fisher Body plant at Lansing voted "100 per cent" against going on a strike at this time. Cadillac plant employees rejected a strike last week and put Pontiac's small minority of 400 U. A. W. workers, who tried a sit-down strike last week and put 14,721 workers into payless idleness, evacuated the plant without benefit of music or cheers. The reception of fellow workers was decidedly hostile.

With winter advancing and jobs none too secure, organized labor in Michigan is becoming more conservative and stable. Wildcat strikes will be few, according to present indications. If the business recession puts the broken rat tail on leaders and excessive taxation, the optimist may be right, after all.

Training for Jobs

One of the problems of the depression, so educators declare, is training young people to earn a living in the business and industrial world. Congress recognized the need for vocational training when it passed a federal aid appropriation. From Lansing has come word that the state department of public instruction, headed by Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, is formulating a program whereby public school training may be correlated with community needs. Apprenticeship courses at business and industrial concerns would be offered to high school students as a means of helping them to prepare for useful work after graduation. Of the 1937 high school class at Plymouth, a suburb of Detroit, only 36 per cent continued educational studies, the remaining 64 per cent getting jobs in factories, stores, etc. The after-graduation percentages of the 1936 class was 53 per cent continuing education further, while 77 per cent sought to earn their own livelihood.

Adult Education

To provide apprenticeship courses for high school students, as Dr. Elliott proposes, the community must have an understanding of the problems. This situation implies that adult education is a corollary to any movement that seeks to extend public school training into the field of adult leadership. That there is an "immediate and even desperate need for adult education" is the contention of Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan who outlined a six-point program for "community colleges" in a recent address to newspaper editors at Ann Arbor. Dr. Ruthven envisions "off cam-

50,000 OF YOUR NEIGHBORS

YOU are shopping for a new kitchen stove and you look at two stoves, both the same price. One is an ordinary stove and one is an electric range. Which should you buy?

Outwardly, there is little difference in appearance. Both stoves are attractive, both have enamel finish, both are about the same size. Apparently, there is little to choose between them. YET THERE IS A BIG DIFFERENCE!

Electric cooking is the latest and most modern method of cooking. That is what appeals to most of the 10,000 families in and around Detroit who have switched to electric cooking during the past year. And today you can purchase an electric range for just about the same price you pay for an ordinary stove!

But in addition, an electric range gives you advantages you obtain in no other stove. It brings you CLEANLINESS, with pure heat from a glowing wire—heat as clean as sunlight. It brings you BETTER FLAVOR—the delicious natural flavor of meats and vegetables cooked in their own juices. It brings you healthful WATERLESS COOKING, with precious minerals and important food values sealed-in, without requiring special waterless utensils. It brings you more LEISURE—extra hours of freedom away from the kitchen. And it brings you a bright, sparkling kitchen, with less frequent need for re-decorating, and practically no scouring of cooking utensils. It is a big time-saver—of your time!

Remember these ADDED FEATURES when you go shopping for a new stove. Remember that stoves may look alike, but you pay no more for a stove with these advantages of the electric range than you do for one without them. Buy wisely... choose an ELECTRIC range for your kitchen!
