6 CONCERTS FOR WEEK SCHEDULED

Three Of Detroit Symphony Programs Are Free To School Children

With six concerts scheduled for the coming week, three of them free to school children, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra faces one of the busiest periods of its season.

The most important program of the week will be the ninth popular-priced Saturday evening concert of March 6, at which time Jascha Schwarzman, first desk 'cellist of the orchestra, will be the soloist in the Beethoven Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra, in B Minor, Op. 104.

Victor Kolar will conduct this concert as well as the remaining five other programs. The orchestra's contributions to the Saturday night program will be Rimsky-Korsakoff's Overture to "The Tsar's Bride" and the rhapsodic Symphonie Suite, "Sheherazade."

The sixth program in the Lecture-Concert Series for Adults will be given at 8 p. m. Monday, March 1. The Tchaikovsky Fourth Symphony in F Minor and Liszt's Symphonie Poem, "Les Preludes" will be played. Explaining the material will be provided by Edith Rhett Filton.

At 2 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday, March 2 and 3, the orchestra will give the fourth pair of free concerts for school children. The third free concert will be played at 10:30 a. m. Saturday, March 6. Pupils of Wayne County rural schools will be guests at this performance.

A special invitation concert sponsored by the Detroit Edison Co. will be given Thursday night, March 4, in Orchestra Hall. The director of Frank Wright, will take part in the program.

Manager Murray G. Patterson of the symphony, has announced the four programs to be given by the Monte Carlo Russian Ballet, together with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, March 11, 12 and 13, in Orchestra Hall. Each program will be completely different and of a total of 14 ballets, say will be given for the first time with the orchestra.

Attitude Of Youth Toward Church And World Is Reviewed

At the Community Vesper Service in the Methodist Church last Sunday Rev. J. E. Marvin, Associate Editor of the "Christian Advocate," discussed the attitude of youth toward the church and the world. He declared that youth in the Christian church is realizing to put into practice the principles of the Christian faith.

Showing that the present day youth lived in a different world than their fathers, he declared that the methods of a new generation were demanded for the Christian church to realize the program of the Christian religion.

Since the beauty of the world order of the world was one objective of the constructive program of youth, he had to speak of world wide peace, economic justice and fairness, attitudes toward the evils of our time, especially that of drink and unemployment.

Rev. Marvin pointed out that the church must wake up to the necessity of giving youth a voice and a place in its task, or youth would find its place outside the church in other organizations set for these ends. He quoted evidence to show that this movement is now on. He challenged the church to a new appraisal of youth and a new interest in the claims of youth upon the church leadership.

Next Sunday Rev. Ralph Harper, Ph. D. (University of Michigan) will speak upon the subject of "Christian Art." The lecture will be illustrated. The Community Vespers are for all and especially the young people. The young people of the church serve tea and light refreshments at the close which social time is followed by a discussion of (Marcelle's "Christian Art"). In the morning service at eleven-fifteen o'clock the Pastor preaches on the subject "Realism Versus Idealism."

Women's Chorus Of Pontiac Will Sing At Christ Church

Next Sunday afternoon in Christ Church (Granbrook) at the four o'clock vesper service the Pontiac Women's Chorus will sing under the direction of Thelma Allen. Their accompanist is Helen Douglas. The program includes the following numbers:

- Vere langoures nostro . . . Lotti
- Nobody Knows the Trouble . . . I've Seen, arranged by Crowle
- To Morning . . . Mendelssohn
- Life Time Eyes . . . Mendelssohn
- A Celtic Lullaby . . . Robertson
- Morning Rymn . . . Henschel
- Lullaby . . . Brahms

At the eleven o'clock morning service the Rev. W. Hamilton Aulenbach will preach on the topic, "Certainly! Men Do Good Deeds."

Lae White, local resident and an executive of the Detroit News, will address Sunday's young people's supper meeting, speaking on "Authenticity in the News." March 3, Christ Church will present William J. Camaron of the Ford Hour, who will speak on "The Bible and its use in the World."

TALLULAH STARS IN CASS COMEDY

"Reflected Glory" Will Open Feb. Week's Run On Monday, Mar. 1

Tallulah Bankhead in "Reflected Glory" begins an engagement of one week on Monday evening, March 1st at the Cass Theatre, Detroit.

Lae Shubert made the production of "Reflected Glory" last July in San Francisco and it continued there and in Los Angeles until the New York opening at the Morosco Theatre September 21, where it ran for over four months, closing then to allow Miss Bankhead time to tour the principal cities before returning to Cleveland, where, according to reports, she is scheduled for the role of Scarlett O'Hara in the screen version of "Gone With the Wind."

Margaret Mitchell's famous story of the Southland.

The theme of this new George Kelly comedy is based on the colorful life of a successful actress who long for a home in the place of hotels and railroad trains, but who, after all, is merely dramatizing an opinion and cannot resist the lure of the stage.

The role of the temperamental actress is exactly suited to the glamorous Tallulah and this talented daughter of William R. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives, is supported by the original New York cast including Clet Gennons, Ann Andrews, Philip Lloyd (of the movies) Alden Chase, Elizabeth Dunne, Madeline Hughes, William H. Turner, Chester Miller, Robert Bordoni, Edmund George and S. T. Bratton.

The play was staged by the author and the settings are by Norman Rock.

Miss Bankhead is famous on two continents. Her exotic, virile individuality has found outlet as artist, madcap, beauty, wit and stage star. And now it is that, cast as an actress, Muriel Flood, in "Reflected Glory," she has opportunity to portray just such a woman with a fiery storm of talent and great dramatic force.

Tickets for "Reflected Glory" went on sale at the box office of the Cass Theatre on Monday, February 22, but spectacular attention is being paid to mail orders.
