PARAGRAPHS

It Does
The strongest army conqueror the world has ever known still gets its business—Helen (Mont.) Independent.

Always
Physicians advise folks to lie on the right side. Yes, if you must lie always on the right side—Jackson (Miss.) News.

He Would
If P. T. Barnum were alive today, he wouldn't start a circus. He would start a "movement" at twenty-five cents each—American Lineman.

Only
Regarding the war debt, France and Great Britain should realize that we stand for the principal involved—Dallas Morning News.

Too Bad
It would be too bad if that grand prize in a stark derby would end up in the hands of a lawyer who is an only child—Detroit News.

Badly Needed
Camels have been barred from some of the streets of Palestine because they slow up traffic. What we need in America is camels—American Lineman.

Not Likely
Some critics of the State of Agriculture have called him Lord of the Wallaby. But nobody is likely to do him, Chief Complaint—Philadelphia Inquirer.

It May Be
A Tennessee woman, eighty years old, has never seen an automobile. Which may be the reason she is eighty years old—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

Improvement
"Back in the old home town there were half a dozen of those 'hook derby' kamies," says Senator Snapper, "who didn't know a 'combs' was a comb."—Kansas City Star.

Possibly
Window glass never has appeared on some trailer homes, thus making it possible to introduce new short people simultaneously into forty-eight States. Advance (N. Y.) Citizen-Advertiser.

More Than Likely
That New York voters who protest a two-year moratorium on planning probably reasons that the moratorium will be a boon, and contrary, it would not have to change the number of voters in the State. Advance (N. Y.) Citizen-Advertiser.
