L longing For Homemade Cookies Overcomes Wanderlust And Local Boys Return Home

Two boys who have spent over a year in the United States, returning home, found that the longing for homemade cookies overcomes wanderlust and local boys return home.

First, the boys discovered that they had missed the home-made cookies which they had never again to wander as far from the coast as Italy. Sometimes, even though they forget momentarily about the matter, they find that they still miss them. When two boys, one of 12 and 14 years, came home, they naturally wondered what they had made them for home was the best.

When they reached Toledo, their parents were invited, and the boys held at the Junction Hotel, where they were invited to stay. The boys found that they had missed the home-made cookies, and they found that the longing for homemade cookies overcomes wanderlust and local boys return home.

"Things don't taste right away from home," Eugene told his brother. "Are I glad to be back?"

SYMPHONY SERIES OPENS ON MONDAY

Eight Adult Educational Programs Planned At Orchestra Hall

With the opening of the Lecture Series for Adults at the Detroit Symphony Society will begin the most important educational feature for adults in its history. This series of eight consecutive Monday night lecture-concerts has been designed to acquaint all who would know of the why and how of music. Offered at popular prices, these lecture-concerts will be given at Orchestra Hall.

The only other educational concert of the series will be the eighth subscription program of Thursday night, Jan. 28, with Bernardino Molinari, guest conductor from Rome, Italy, directing.

Molinari has arranged an engaging program which will include his own transcription of Vivaldi's "Winter" from that composer's work, "The Four Seasons"; Haydn's Thirteenth Symphony in D; George Carpentier's Suite, "Les Processions d'Italie"; Liszt's dramatic Symphony Poem, No. 2, "Les Preludes"; and a first performance in Detroit of Maurice Strakosky's "Nocturne."

The first of the lecture-concerts Monday night will be devoted to a study and demonstration of the string and percussion sections of the orchestra. Since first announced several weeks ago, interest in this series of programs has mounted. It is reported and orchestra officials are certain that a large number of Detroiters will take advantage of the opportunity to become acquainted intimately with the symphony. The series is being offered because of the many requests received in recent years for such a course.

Among the musical numbers to be played Monday will be the Suite from Handel's "Water Music"; Dabrowski's "March for Julius and Vilias, Saint-Saens' "The Swan" and "The Elephant"; Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice"; and Schukovsky's Waltz from "Serenade," Op. 48.

The demonstration will feature all of the instruments of the percussion group.

Victor Kollar will be in charge of the lecture-concert series and conductor Edith Rhett Tilson, educational director, will provide all of the explanatory material.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY— James Schermerhorn Jr. of Franklin

"We heard it said by— James Schermerhorn Jr. of Franklin. 'Why can't we do anything about the Social Security Act which cancelled our individual payroll?' I remember when the employees' liability insurance laws were written and industry expressed fear and concern about them, but now industry wouldn't want to get along without this protection. I believe the Social Security Act will work out the satisfactory way."

Final Examinations To Cover Jan. 25-27

Final examinations for all schools of Birmingham will be held January 25, 26 and 27. Students will attend school in the morning only, while the afternoon will be given over to the teachers for correcting papers, recording grades, and holding necessary teachers' meetings.

There will be no school on Thursday, January 28. Friday, January 29, the students will return at 1:15 P. M. to receive their report cards and examination papers.
