The Janitor's Hypothesis A physiologist claims that if one leaves a room though he gets deliciously warm. That's just the principle on which the janitor of our apartment house operates the furnace.—Herald Times.

Jest For Fun

Quality Author—I have a story that everybody ought to read. Editor—Sorry, if it were a story nobody would read. I would like a chance and publish it in book form. 'Say, did you go to Sunday school when you were a little boy? 'Yes, sir, regularly. 'I'll bet it won't do me any good either.'

Falsehood Elsie—Perry is such a prevaricating flatterer. 'Cora—Has he been telling you that you were pretty? 'Elsie—No, he said you were.'

Cooperation Walter—I'm afraid we can't cash a check, sir. You see, we've a little agreement with the banks that we cash no checks, and they serve no soup.

Slight Jimmy—Why are all the women campaigning against Bagley? 'Jimmie—Hain't you heard? The woman's club put on a big parade in his honor and that night he referred to it in his speech as a "women's parade."

Give-Away 'Why don't you give your new bungalow a name? 'Something appropriate. Other people do. 'There's 'Section Five,' 'Walk Inn,' 'Coy Inn,' and lots of others. 'That's an idea. As I've just finished paying for it, I'll name it All Inn.'

Nature Study Teacher (to girl class)—Now, children, if the donkey's head points to the north, where does his tail point to? 'Small Boy—To the ground, miss.'

Millicent—Grampa, I saw something running across the kitchen floor without any legs. 'Grandpa—Great guns! What was it, Millicent? 'Water.'

Washout Might Help Instructor—Suppose you were at 10,000 feet and your plane burst suddenly into flames. What would you do? 'Cadet—Try to keep cool, sir.'
