PARAGRAPHS

Not One
 A 'book attacking Mussolini can't be sold in Italy. Old Benito won't let the author make a lire out of him.—Albino Statesman.

More's Likely
 Publicly we condemn them, but privately each of us would give not a little to be next heir to an economic royalist.—Omaha World-Herald.

A Mighty Man
 A German tailor has been interned for tuning out Hitler on the radio. One gets a totally new conception of Hitler's might if he can interrupt a barber.—Barron's.

Wondering
 Another group wondering what to do about the new leisure, probably is Spain's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Bulls.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Missing
 In Boston a truck crashed into a barber shop. The fellow who all ways misses out on excitement of this kind was under a hot towel.—Atlanta Constitution.

Merely
 "All persons who take cold showers take in the morning are fools," declares a physician. Oh, no; not all. Most of them are merely liars.—Atlanta Journal.

Probably
 Several able observers see no chance of war in Europe. Others have more faith. They believe some kind of misunderstanding can be worked out.—Atlanta Constitution.

You Next, Hitler
 "Thirty thousand cattle passed in review before Mussolini in one day at Bologna. This is up to Hitler to give a frankfurter parade.—Tulsa Blade.

Risky
 Babies today run more risk than those of yesterday. Modern babies often get burned by cigarettes, while fifty years ago a baby never got burned except when he sucked his grandpa's pipe.—Florida Times-Union.

The Gauge
 "Now even the best standards, and now we see that the feminine gauge of sobriety in Ohio says a woman isn't drunk as long as she can hold a glass of beer in one hand and powder her nose with the other.—Kansas City Star.

Surely Not
 We patriots feel an indignation that the Supreme Court followed the German returns in its decision on unemployment insurance. Surely the venerable justices have not heard about that affair already.—The New Yorker.

Jest For Fun

Chances Galore
 "Any chance for a man to work himself up in your company?"
 "Certainly. Why, nearly every minute there's something to work a man up."

"How is it that you always let George kiss you goodnight?"
 "On his lap."

For a Chance
 "You are looking happy. I must write you some poetry," remarked the contributor.
 "Nothing you could do would make me happier," rejoined the editor.

"This seal coat is very fine but will it stand rain?"
 "Listen, lady. Did you ever see a seal coat in an umbrella?"

Can't Wait
 "Notice two great determination after numerous attempts, I'll stay here till I hit this hot air balloon. Well, so far, I'm somewhat liable to haul yer socks, for this is on both night."
 "Are you really going with this hot air with a view to marriage?"
 "Sure; just as soon as I get his money I'm going to marry the man I want."

Naughty! Naughty!
 "You mustn't use that word, said mother."
 "Shaw and Massfeld use it," replied the growing son.
 "Then you mustn't play with such naughty boys."

"I hear the songs you boys are writing are getting recognition from the publishers."
 "Yes, they must recognize what songs they were stolen from."

Polite
 "Sorry I gave you the wrong number," said the police telephone operator.
 "Don't mention it," said the man who had made up his mind not to lose his temper. "I'm sure that the number you gave me was much better than the number I asked for. Only it just happened I wasn't able to use it."

Advice
 "A young man who wished to get married wrote to his father for some advice and received this reply:
 "My dear son, your mother and I would like to see you happily married. She tells me to point out the many advantages—cozy fireplace, chair, slipper, pipe, your darling wife, beside you. I am proud to know, my boy, that you have decided to settle down."
