Years of work in a newspaper office have convinced me that there are two kinds of old-fashioned pencils: one for writing and one for gnawing.

As the complexion of life increases, bringing added speed and hurry to one's activities, one tends to hasten through the "Merry Christmas to you, and a Happy New Year" salutations.

Nations spend hundreds of millions to maintain fire departments, yet they everywhere ignore in wholesale endeavor anything when they go to war.

New Year's Day found me in Lansing where, in a crowded House of Representatives chamber in the State Capitol...
