Remember When Sloan Got $40,000 Without Ridin' Nag

DO YOU remember 'way back when—

A jockey received $40,000 because of a race in which he did not ride, own, officially train, or bet on the winner?

That was in 1902 when the French filly, Rosé di Mai, won the Prix de Diane at Chantilly. Tod Sloane, perhaps the greatest jockey of all time, had been barred for two years by the English Jockey club because he had committed the heinous offense of betting on his own mounts. So he had come to Paris and it was charged that he had worked the filly in trials for the stake.

This annoyed the French Jockey club, which then had a tight working agreement with the British lords of the turf. The stewards contended that Tod had been refused a jockey's license and consequently was not in good standing. So, as punishment for his reported appearance as an exercise boy, they expelled him from the French turf.

Tod sued and the case excited comment over all the racing world while it dragged on into the highest court of appeals. Finally when the high-stepping jockey, who had arrived in Europe several years previously with a $250,000 bankroll, was down to his last pound the verdict arrived.

It created a legal precedent for the turf but probably Tod never concerned himself about that. Starting with the $40,000 received in damages he soon was happily engaged in winning (and losing) a new fortune almost as large as the one he previously had accumulated.

A group of American Olympic athletes were forced to replace their drinking water with light wines? That was when the U. S. team was on the way to Athens for the 1906 games. A stop was made at an Italian port and customs inspectors noted the huge jars of mineral water.

Such a new-fangled aid to the well-conditioned athletes was beyond the comprehension of the inspectors. Visitors always were trying to work new smuggling tricks on them and they thought they knew gin when they saw it. So they confiscated this contraband "gin."

But even though they were weak on Yankee dollons, the Italians were as strong on international gallantry as they were on red tape. Even now there are members of that team who smack their lips as they recall the gallons of vino which replaced, at the inspectors' expense, each drop of "gin" water.

Bill Tilden turned down a $60,000 offer to turn pro?

That wasn't so terribly long ago at that—a matter of about a dozen years. But since the lion of the tennis courts did make the switch he has harvested a crop of dollars that is not to be sneezed at. And his example has been followed by other lights of the racket game from Vinny Richards down to Fred Perry. The odds, though, are that Tilden's earnings are a good deal ahead of any of his fellow tennis pros.

A player, dusting himself off at third base, received the greatest surprise ever to come the way of a hitter of a game-winning triple. That was years ago when Moose McCormick had been with the Giants only a few days. He had been told to bunt but a ball came across the plate to his liking and he swung with full force.

He was met at third base by a red-faced, highly excited little fellow. A season or two later Moose came to bat as a pinch-hitter six times in a six-game series while winning five of the games and tying the other with his hits. But such fame was in the future.

He snapped the dust from his clothes with one hand while he extended the other for the expected congratulations. Then he listened in awe. The red-faced little fellow was not in a congratulatory mood. Instead Manager John J. McGraw was fining Moose $50 for disobeying the order to bunt.

Bob Fitzsimmons was preparing to win the heavyweight championship of the world from Jim Corbett at Carson City? A visitor one day discovered Ruby Robert standing just outside the Fitzsimmons bedroom door listening intently. Inside the room Mrs. Fitzsimmons could be heard lifting her voice in prayer for victory.

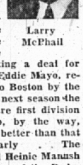
NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

BIG-TIME baseball men who for years have conducted their business with scant regard for the rights of customers probably will behave for a while now. The reason is they have been tipped off that continued mismanagement will result in a governmental bureau taking charge of the national game—in order to preserve it from the fate of the buffalo . . . The thirteen-year-old national diving queen, Marjorie Gestring, is an accomplished pianist . . . Contrary to reports, there is a stone on Tex Rickard's lot at Woodlawn. There is, however, no marker on the great fight promoter's grave and no provision for upkeep.

That pass interference rule will not be changed in spite of the clamor of the losers and the sillier reporters. So far only one game remedy has been proposed although dozens were discussed and laughed down during a meeting of the Eastern Association of Football Officials. This was Bill Crowley's suggestion that only one pass should be permitted during each series of downs in the last five minutes of each half. It would minimize one of the two real causes of the trouble, the number of desperate heaves that are made when scant scoring time remains . . . Big Leo Durocher, Cubs would do well to consider Smokey Joe Martin, shot to Baltimore by the Giants last summer. Since receiving a chance to play regularly Martin has become the best third baseman in the minors . . . Bill Powers, secretary of the New York Hockey Writers association and one of the game's best informed reporters, was born in Florida.

Giants to Put McPhail in Charge of Farms

The Giants are planning to put Larry McPhail—who provided the Reds with night baseball and other circus features before departing suddenly from Cincinnati—in charge of their farm system . . . Lee Handley, the young infielder the Dodgers tried so hard to get, has a weak arm . . . The strident objections of one of the powers about the throne prevents the Dodgers from making a deal for Joe Stripp . . . If Eddie Mayo, recently transferred to Boston by the Giants, can hit .260 next season the Bees believe they are first division bound . . . Mayo, by the way, should hit 20 points better than that when played regularly . . . The slump which caused Heinie Manush to fall into possession of the Dodgers was due not so much to failing eyes as a persistently ailing charleyhorse . . . The forwards for Pittsburgh in the Eastern Amateur Hockey league are Crossley Sherwood and Colin Sherwood. They are twins.



Larry McPhail

Lawrenceville coaches speak with awe concerning the end play of fifteen-year-old Puffy Bigler, son of Princeton's very good 1919 tackle. He is six feet one inch tall and weighs 175 pounds . . . Tony Justice, Gonzaga's 195-pound end, is another player who will bear watching in 1937. Big Brother Eddie, of the Boston Redskins, claims the kid is due to be one of the nation's best . . . Aside from the fact sidearmers always did worry him there was another reason why Wally Berger had hitting trouble last year. Pitchers found they could keep the big Bees' outfielder under control if they threw at him . . . Ralph Guldahl, leading pro golf money winner, is not superstitious about it but his two Pekinese dogs are named "In" and "Out."

Ted Kid Lewis has found a use for yesterday's newspaper. He uses it for wallpaper in his London cafe. Lewis's son, Morton, is one of the more eminent British movie camera men and soon will visit Hollywood to observe American film methods . . . The Stadium club in London, where Georges Carpentier and Joe Beckett once drew $175,000, is no bigger than New York's St. Nicholas Palace . . . Jimmy Walsh, the hard-hitting lightweight champion, is England's best fighter . . . Benny Lynch, claimant to the world's flyweight title, is a crowd pleaser while Johnny King, bantamweight, is fast and clever.

Comment on the legalistic legerdemain by which baseball's high commissioner insured the extinction of all independent minor league owners and enabled the rich Cleveland club to retain the sensational Bob Feller—"The Supreme court follows the elections. Judge Landis follows his $50,000-a-year salary."). . . Art Chapman, probably the best playmaker in the National Hockey league, comes by his skating ability naturally, his mother having been one of the best figure skaters in the Winnipeg neighborhood. Incidentally he met his wife, who has won numerous trophies for speed skating, when the two of them were appointed instructors at a Winnipeg playground.

Walter Brown, the Bostonian who coached the United States Olympic hockey team, has discontinced his five-year-old practice of touring Europe with American amateur sextets each winter. Can't get any fun out of it any more. Feels that European "amateur" teams have so many Canadian ringers these days that it would take a pro outfit to beat any of them.

Congress Faces A Double Opportunity

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Since its first session back in 1789, the Congress of the United States has represented to the world the American principle of Government by the People.

Through almost a century and a half it has remained one of the greatest Representative Legislatures on earth.

That is something for its members to remember during the session now in progress.

For the present Congress of the United States faces a double opportunity. It can translate into action the will of the public; and it can continue to prove to the world that Government by the People offers the surest road to the continued well-being of a nation and its individual citizens.

At this time such a demonstration could prove of immense value to both the Old World and the New.

To Europe it could emphasize the significant facts that nations rattle the sabre less violently and men live in greater happiness where Public Opinion, rather than Dictatorship, rules.

At home it could remind us that under the American form of government, authority resides in our elected representatives—not in the hordes of appointed Bureaus and Commissions which through recent years have increasingly expanded in size, in power, and in arrogance.

During past weeks official Washington has strongly indicated an intention to curtail both in numbers and in power our growing army of Bureaucrats.

If the 75th Congress backs up that promise it can win the widespread approval of the country. But this will not end the achievement. It can also take a significant step in strengthening throughout the world the principle of Government by the People—a principle on which our Nation was founded and has risen to greatness.
