Stripes Are Tops for Summer

Stripes predominate the summer wardrobe of 1937 and Rosalind Russell, above, follows the trend. Here she wears an afternoon dress of uneven stripes of green, blue, black and maroon against a background of white crepe. A crepe sash of maroon ties at the side. Her wide-brimmed straw hat features a crown of white crepe. Harmonizing accessories set off the ensemble.

Red Coral Always Prized

It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

Errol Flynn

Errol Flynn plays the masculine lead in the classical Mark Twain production, "The Prince and The Pauper," which appears at the Birmingham Theatre beginning Sunday.

Husband Visits Wife Marlene

★★★By VIRGINIA VALE★★★

ALWAYS a dauntless trail blazer, Sam Goldwyn has just announced that in future all of his productions will be filmed in Technicolor.

Where Sam leads, others feel that they must follow, and the chief drawback is that it is going to be very expensive, because Technicolor film costs considerably more than black and white. First of the Goldwyn Technicolor films will be "Follies" with Helen Jepson, the Ritz Brothers, Zorina, the great Russian ballerina, Virginia Verrill, beloved of radio fans, to swing those blues and a vast array of comics.

Robert Young got a wonderful break when M-G-M loaned him to play opposite Claudette Colbert in "I Met Him in Paris." His own studio officials who lately had been treating Bob rather like a comfortable old shoe, went to the preview and came out raving about him as if he were a new discovery. Right away they went out and bought the screen rights to a grand story called "Witness to a Murder," and presented the star role to Bob.

There is a pretty thrilling story of grit and courage connected with the Hal Roach picture "Pick a Star." A blonde beauty named Rosina Lawrence who sings and dances light heartedly in that and in "Nobody's Baby" was paralyzed as a child as the result of a back injury. After months of consultations, her mother heeded a doctor who thought he might improve her condition by giving her exercises. Now she is strong and healthy and agile—much more so than other girls who did not have to fight for a chance to walk and dance.

There isn't a busier girl in all Hollywood than Dorothy Lamour, which is a break for film fans, but bad news to the many radio fans who have been wishing she would find time to sing regularly on a radio program again. She has just finished roles in "High, Wide, and Handsome" and "The Last Train From Madrid" and will start any day now on "Her Jungle Love."

Her first big success, you will recall, came when she played "The Jungle Princess" and Paramount has been looking for a sequel to it ever since.

Connie Boswell is the latest radio singer to succumb to the pleas of motion-picture producers. She will warble in Paramount's "Artists and Models." But the most exciting news on the Paramount lot is that Mary Livingstone, the giddy comic of Jack Benny's program and in private life, his wife, is such an inspired screen comic in her first picture that all her supporting players are sulking. The picture, called "This Way Please," was supposed to star Shirley Ross and Buddy Rogers, but Mary is just romping off with all the scenes.

It looks as if Kenny Baker of the air waves will be a strong rival of Bing Crosby's on the screen just as soon as "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air" is released. Walter Wanger, who has been searching for a good - looking young singer to play the lead in "52nd Street" persuaded Mervyn LeRoy to let him see as much of the picture as has been filmed. Immediately, he decided Kenny Baker was just what he had been looking for. Kenny Baker will have Pat Patterson, wife of Charles Boyer, playing opposite him in the Wanger film. That's a break for him, because she is one of the most utterly charming young women in all Hollywood.
