CLUB PLANS STYLE SHOW AND BRIDGE

Guests Will Breakfast While Models Promenade in Fashion Parade

A bridge breakfast and fashion show will be the order of the Day, Friday, for members of Pine Lake Country Club. While members are breakfasting at 12, they will have an opportunity to observe the models, who will promenade about the tables clad in smart costumes for various occasions.

Among those making early reservations are Mrs. William McCallister, Mrs. Leslie C. Altman, Mrs. Harry Deynes and Mrs. Burl Schmitt, who will entertain jointly, and Mrs. H. D. Harris.

During the summer, the first and third Wednesday of each month will be reserved for bridge luncheons, with the month of June as the only exception. The first Wednesday has been set aside also as women's golf day. Mrs. A. B. Knight of Detroit is chairman of the committee in charge.

Family to Leave for West Point Monday

Mrs. Robert Bradley, of Mohegan avenue, and her daughter, Elinor Gley, will leave Monday for the United States Military Academy, at West Point, N. Y., where they will attend the graduation, on Saturday, June 12, of Mrs. Bradley's son, Cadet Gibson Gley. They will be accompanied by Mrs. May Griffin and her daughter, Catherine, of Chicago. Miss Griffin's engagement to Cadet Gley was announced recently.

Both Miss Griffin and Miss Gley will attend the Graduation Ball on the night of Friday, June 11, the latter as the guest of Cadet James Smiley, of Grand Rapids.

On July 1 the two families will journey to Omena, Michigan, where they will open their summer homes for the season. The wedding of Miss Griffin to Cadet Gley, which will be an event of early August, will be held at the cottage of the bride's mother at Omena.

Mr. Fred Farrar and his daughters, Virginia and Diggins of Kenosha Drive, spent the weekend with Mr. Farrar's mother, Mrs. Frank Farrar, in Cadillac.

U.S. NAVAL OFFICER TO MARRY IN EAST

Ensign Denby and Bride To Be Stationed At New London 6 Months

When Ensign Edwin Denby, Jr., U. S. N., arrives today from the Naval Station on Puget Sound, where he has been stationed, it will be to meet his sister, Marion Denby of Bloomfield Hills, and with her hasten eastward to Washington for his nuptials.

Miss Elizabeth Bissell Lyster, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William Lyster of Washington, will be the bride of Ensign Denby Thursday, June 10, at a late afternoon ceremony in St. John's Episcopal church in Washington.

Ensign Denby is the son of Mrs. Edwin Denby of Bloomfield Hills. George Barbour of Detroit will be best man for Ensign Denby, and Miss Marion Denby will be maid of honor.

Ensign Denby, who has served for the past two years on the U. S. S. Oklahoma, has been transferred to the submarine school at New London, Conn., where he and his bride will be stationed for the next six months.

For as little as 25 cents you may insert a CLASSIFIED AD in the columns of The Evening Try when you want to buy or sell, locate a house or sell one, or for hiring a maid. Telephone 11 before Wednesday noon each week. —(A-9)

HILLS CHURCH TO GIVE PARISH PICNIC

Supper On Grounds Will Be Followed By Surprises And Organ Music

The grounds of Christ Church Cranbrook will be the scene of a parish picnic Tuesday evening, when an outdoor supper will be served. There will be games for the children, and a series of surprises of interest to the adult guests.

In the evening, those who care to, may enjoy a program of organ music by members of the American Guild of Organists, which will be visiting the church at the same time.

Mrs. Raymond White, chairman of the house committee, is in charge of arrangements, and those assisting will be Mrs. F. W. Shuell, Mrs. Henry Scripps Booth, Mrs. Fred M. Brooks, Mrs. Lewis B. Sappington, and Mrs. Aaron H. Webster.

Those planning to attend are asked to make reservations through the church office not later than Monday.

The Kitchen Korner

By Sally Lunn

Dear Diary,

Lately I've been trying to improve the various branches of my cooking. Seeing that I'm not a very good cook yet, it seemed like a smart idea to have what I can prepare, the best ever. With that wonderful cook book Mother gave me, I don't lack for recipes, so it makes me very proud to be able to send her back—not the actual rule for cooking, but ways to make cooking more certain and easier.

Cake making is one of my worst trials. But since I've been taking a few of these hints, it's not half so bad. For one thing, my short-cakes and loaf cakes always got soggy when I cut them while they were still hot. Then I learned that smart cooks marked off the place where the cake was to be divided with a sharp knife, inserted a piece of string in the mark, and sawed back and forth with it. It cuts as evenly as a knife and there's never a trace of that dreadful heaving.

Speaking of shortcake, which is a favorite in this household, the whipped cream was another thing that put up an awful struggle. Now and then I'd try to be economical and use thinner cream to whip, and it just didn't work. The girl next door told me about one good way to fix it. "Whip up the white of an egg until it is stiff but not actually dry," she told me. "Pour the cream over this and set it in the icebox. When it's thoroughly chilled it'll whip like a charm." We got so silly with laughter over whipping the whipping cream, and beating it as its own game, that Jack thought we were hysterical, and came rushing in to find out what was the matter. Sally also told me to dust a little flour or cornstarch over a cake, either home made or baker's cake, before I frosted it, to keep the icing from dripping off or going on unevenly. She says that the frosting will be thicker and softer if two tablespoons of cornstarch are substituted for the same amount of sugar in the rule.

For cakes which are scorched, I'm going to tell Mother to grate off the burned part with a nutmeg grater instead of using a knife. My way will leave a much smoother and more even surface for frosting. I've heard that a good way to keep things from scorching is to sprinkle the bottom of the oven with fine dry salt, and an even more convenient method is to cut a piece of wire door screen to fit the oven, and put it under the cake tin.

Is there anything more maddening than to bake something which turns out perfectly and then have to chop it all to bits to get it out of the tin? That happened to me last week, but it won't again. I've learned three ways to prevent it, and the owner of every oven swears it's certain to work. The first is to place the cake tin on top of the hot oven for a few minutes, just after you take it out. The second is to put it on a damp cloth. The third is to grease the pan and then spread flour into the grease. Tap out the loose flour, leaving only what sticks. I'll be a master housekeeper yet if this keeps up, won't I, Diary?

A Bride.

Many Classes Open To Children In Annual Spring Flower Show

As an encouragement to youthful gardeners, the Birmingham Unit of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association has set aside two sections of exhibits in its annual flower show at the Community House June 11, for juvenile exhibitors. All Birmingham children interested are invited to enter, and the only provision regarding them is that their exhibits must be arranged without assistance.

Mrs. Alan W. Joslyn is in charge of classes for children, which include those in Section E, for exhibitors under 11 years old, and those in Section F for children from 11 through 15 years old. In both sections, the classes provide for the arrangement of flowers in the exhibitor's own manner, for miniatures under three inches as over-all dimension, and for miniatures between three and seven inches. Younger children may try a hand at table setting, and those in the older group may arrange occasional tables for the fourth class in each section. Arranging trays for invalids will offer another opportunity to young exhibitors in both sections. Another class which will provide an outlet for children having a flare for the artistic, is that for shadow boxes. The child must furnish his own box, and arrange it without assistance.

Judges Named
Judging exhibits for children will be Mrs. W. D. Thompson and Mrs. Edith M. Forbush. Judges for the classes open to adult exhibitors will be, for artistic arrangement, Mrs. D. D. Dunlop of Redford and Myron Bloy of Detroit; and for specimen blooms Jacob Bauman and Arthur Claxton.

Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the number of points, in the entire show, and in each class, and will be contributed by Birmingham merchants. The first prize to the one receiving the greatest number of points in the show, will be an order from the Pontiac Nursery. The second prize to the exhibitor receiving the second largest number of points will be an order from the Corry Nursery.

Winners in the first section of which Mrs. Charles H. Welch, Jr., is in charge, will be awarded an order from Peck Cleaners for the highest number of points, and a quart of varnish from Green's Wall Paper store, for the second prize, to the exhibitor with the second highest number. In this section are the classes for table setting, the "budget table," and the shadow boxes.
