Jim Taylor and his wife are back after Floridating... Note to Kirk Martin, who scampered away from college for a visit with his folks in Deland, Fla.:

It may sound queer but 3,500 men students attending Michigan State College in the past ten years did not know how to swim...

The explanation, according to R. B. Daubert, MSC swimming instructor, is this: Those accustomed to scooping up water with their hands when they wash out eyes and ears have no confidence when they meet with the water in a swimming tank.

One of the world's leading department stores, in issuing their 1937 book of rules include the following from a set of store rules given out 83 years earlier:

- 1854- The Following Rules Will be Put in Force at Once
Store must be opened promptly at 6 A. M. and remain open until 9 P. M. the year around.
Store must be swept, counters, base shelves and show cases dusted, lamps trimmed, fitted and chimneys cleaned; pens, needles, dollys and windows opened; a pail of water, and a sextile of coal must be brought in by each clerk, before breakfast if there is time to do so, and attend to customers who call.
Store must not be opened on the Sabbath Day unless absolutely necessary and then only for a very few minutes.
Any employe who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, getting shaved at a barber shop, going to dances and other such places of amusement, will most surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and all around honesty.
Each employe must pay not less than $5.00 per year to the church and must attend Sunday School every Sunday.
Men employes are given one evening a week for courting purposes, and two if they go to prayer meeting regularly.
After 14 hours of work in the store, the leisure time must be spent in reading good literature.

I love hats! Perky hats with a devil-may-care tilt! Saucy hats with that up-and-at-'em air! Hats that give one something to live up to—which, by the underworld, is no pun. Haven't you ever had a hat that seemed to enfold you with certain characteristics when you put it on?

There are hats like that. They are not only becoming, but they actually do something for a woman—bring out the best points in feature or expression—add dash and verve—going up the tempo of last year's down-at-heel outfit.

Sometimes a trim bit of headgear, picked up for a mere song, will pay a million dollar dividend. One look in the mirror, and you want to climb right up on top of the world.

A hat should be to a woman what frosting is to a cake—the finishing touch in adornment. But if some women see their cake's the way they buy their hats.

This brings us to the point of what not to buy in hats. Seems as though every woman should know her A-B-C's in the matter of hat selection. But judging from some of the misfit hats going about town:

For instance, why in the name of all that is smart, does a short plump woman wear a little round hat closely resembling a muffin, and just as unsuited to be worn on her particular head?

On the other hand, why does a tall spare woman choose a tall spare hat with severe lines? Something seems to oppress this type in favor of sharp silhouettes, a Bellinger feather, an angle in line with the chin, and so on.

But why? Our guess is that women will buy a hat, right or wrong, because they admire the style on someone else to whom it is well adapted, or because it happens to be the red hot number of the season.

Some women seem utterly lacking in hat-sense. Since it requires tact, delicacy, diplomacy and sheer statesmanship to offer personal suggestions in the matter of hat selection, it seems safer and more discreet to give a bit of impersonal advice. So you can take it or leave it as the case may be.

Of course you're hat-minded right now. Who isn't with Easter just around the block? Here are some tips for this spring season, along by Marian Hillhouse, instructor at Michigan State College.

If you are a little phlegmatic and look like that is if you need something to snap you up from the head down—this might be the hat for you. It is a flat sailor with a crisp brim line and shallow crown. A knot of wired ribbon shoots briskly upward. The effect is one of action and vitality, to add a spark to the quiet type who needs color and life.

If you have personality-plus and youth in the bargain, try the perky rolled Breton. That little hat has poise—it's casual but oh so smart!

Don't be discouraged if these are wrong for you. Your next best bet is the "cheek". Remember, you probably were one 10 years ago. They are snug fitting, big white crown around the brim. They are to be found in felt, straw or fabric, and the little matter of selection is for you to decide. Just be sure to get one that suits your type of face and personality.

The conservative—but not too much so—remember it's spring!

From the Community House comes the news that the women of the new phys. ed. class are "cutting" so much that the powers that be may have to drop the class from the schedule of Monday morning work. Seems that the enthusiasts went in for the exercises with so much vim that they crippled themselves all up and suffered scandalously from stiffness and "muscleitis."

Jay "I Hearl" Lowman tells us that several couples over at the high school are enjoying spring fever at this point... His rumored that some of the dittle girls in town are forgetting about being well groomed in their quest for glamour...

Ransom Lake, the janitor over at the library, says that if your sons and daughters don't refrain from riding their bikes down the terraces in front of the lib there just isn't going to be any lawn left at all. With this muddy water the ground is soft and the bikes are ruining all of Mr. Lake's attempts to have a beautiful lawn for the building.
