"Pa," said Willie, "a man's wife is his better half, isn't she?"

"Well, we are told so, my son," said father noncommittally.

"Well, then," continued Willie "if a man marries twice, there isn't anything left of him, is there?"

GRAPHIC OUTLINES OF HISTORY

By S O WYLIE BELL & SON

CINCINNATI IN 1810
(from an early print)

In the last part of the 18th century, settlers poured into the Northwest. New communities started on the Scioto River and also at Losantiville, now called Cincinnati. About the same time, Cleaveland, an agent of the Connecticut Land Company, founded the city now named after him—Cleveland—on Lake Erie.

Beats Hat In Race Down 150-Foot Tree

The thing that most impressed George Brent, star of "God's Country and the Woman," while making the picture in the wilds of Washington state, was the agility of the lumberjacks who climb 200-foot trees, hacking away the limbs as they ascend.

"They slide down like sailors down a rope," Brent says, "using their safety belts as brakes when necessary. One of them bet me a dollar he could toss off his hat at the top of a 150-foot tree and beat it to the ground. And he did it! He reached terra firma 10 feet ahead of the hat."

"God's Country and the Woman," showing many feats of the lumbermen, will come to the Birmingham Theatre on Sunday.
