AWARDS GIVEN AT ANNUAL BANQUET

G. A. A. Members Gather At House For Meeting

Forty-four girls were presented with athletic awards at the first annual Girls' Athletic Association banquet, held Tuesday night at the Community House. The awards are given on the basis of points earned through the recipients' participation in organized sports at Baldwin High School and in the Junior High. They were presented by Miss Miriam Brown and Mrs. Helen Hammond Richards.

Barbara Pratt was toastmistress for the affair, and Virginia Bell accompanied the group singing on the piano. The Varsity "B," awarded for 2,000 points, earned in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades, was awarded to: Anna Mary Adams, Iris Beavers, Clara Chapman, Caroline MacClean, Louise Moorehead, Elizabeth McCony, Barbara Pratt and Mildred De Lee. Those who won the B.H.S. monogram, by earning 1,500 points in the senior high division, were awarded to the following: Mary Bassett, Ellen Hemmery, Caroline McClean and Louise Moorehead. Class numerals were earned to the following: Virginia Barden, Mary Bassett, Mary Jones, Mary Sheridan and Margaret Correll.

Installation of officers to serve during the coming year was also held at this time. The officers elected for the senior high division are: Anna Mary Adams, president; Mary Bassett, vice president; Caroline MacClean, recording secretary; Barbara Rhodes, corresponding secretary; Ruth Savage, treasurer; Mary Sheridan, social chairman and Virginia Barden, publicity chairman.

To serve the Junior High division for the coming year, the group elected the following: Carol Clark, president; Joyce Webster, vice president; Patricia Kuer, recording secretary; Virginia Nicholson, corresponding secretary; Catherine Carr, treasurer; Joyce Roberts, social chairman and Mary Gardner, publicity chairman.

Awards to the junior high members of the G.A.A. were made on a point basis as well. The following girls earned the 100 points necessary to the seventh, eighth and ninth grades to win a major award: Phyllis Babcock, Mary Clark, Jane Collins, Carol Clark, Peggy Clarke, Esther Farr, Marion Hoover, Virginia Nicholson, Martha Phelps, Virginia Olsen, Fort Quinn, Elaine Staples, June Weller, Helen Rounds and Sue Sharp.

Minor awards, earned with fifty points, were presented to Betty Steil, Phyllis Babcock, Catherine Carr, Helen Tippet, Caroline Wright, Jean Roberts, Carol Chaudron, Loretta Peck, Eleanor Wideman and Patricia Kuer.

Pattie Main and Ruth Cowan were also notified that they will receive an Archer's Cap for having scored 250 or more points three consecutive times in matches. The festivities were concluded with the showing of Mediterranean Cruise pictures by Mrs. Richards.

Honor guests at the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Melvin C. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hubbard and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richards.

Fashion Tips

Long and short gloves are being shown by Parisian Houses to wear with the new clothes. One house is featuring gloves and matching scarfs in pastel colors to wear with black costumes.

And speaking of scarfs, some of them are covered with historical sayings or episodes. Needless to say, red, white and blue are the colors.

A clever bridal bouquet recently appeared in the form of a fan. The sticks were of bamboo, and the fan proper, of bliss.

Wedding gowns are of all-white this season in contrast to the off-whites of a year ago.

Pants or skirts may be your choice when selecting a bathing suit. The former are so cut that they resemble a skirt. Some of the more attractive suits are of silk or singham lined with white jersey. These have pleated or flaring skirts.

The beach coat which just comes to the knees is the smartest length although longer one are being shown.

The Kitchen Korner

By Sally Lunn

Dear Diary:

Our dinner party was a howling success, and everybody had a wonderful time. Jack brought me a dozen gorgeous roses as a reward, last night, and also a lot of handy ideas on ways to handle flowers, which the cute old Irish florist gave him for nothing. I wish I could imitate his brogue the way Jack did, but the most essential thing is that I have all these good ideas.

Of course I can't tell yet how any of them work, but here are some original ways to keep cut flowers fresh. Add any one of these things to the water before you put them in the vase or bowl, and they'll stay fresh about two weeks: sugar, a drop or two of ammonia, an aspirin, one-half teaspoon of soda, a tablespoon of powdered charcoal, salt-peter or common salt. With all that variety, at least a few of them ought to work. Another favorite way to keep flowers fresh is to add a little mild white soap to the water.

To keep my flowers from fading, when I wear them in a corsage, this florist told Jack to tell me to dip the ends in melted wax. That's one thing I'm certainly going to try. Nothing makes me madder than to have one of my prize outfits spoiled by the wiles of a corsage. Oh yes—this sounds a little out of the ordinary, but hear that: the way to revive faded flowers is to dip the stems for a few seconds in boiling water and then put them in water that is very cold. It can't hurt to try, because ordinarily when they fade they're no good anyway.

An event happened in this economical family today, and I both bought a pair of shoes at once, to get ready for Memorial Day weekend. And now that we've become such snoopers for crazy hints on how to exist easily, we each got a tip on our purchases. Jack's foot hasn't been quite the same since he broke his toe in college, and his new white buckskins hurt in one place, though they were the right size. The salesman told him to wring a cloth out in very hot water and lay it across the tight spot while the shoe was on his foot, changing it as soon as it cooled. He says this will shape the shoes right to your feet.

I fell for a pair of those daring new patent leather shoes in a pastel shade which will be just the thing to brighten up my old suit. I felt actually wicked to buy patent, when it's so fragile, but the clerk made me feel better about it. He said to rub them all over occasionally with flannel soaked in a little vaseline, leave this on all night and polish them in the morning. Glycerine, olive oil or sweet oil is also very good to use, he told me.

And now I'm very proud to set down a little thing I invented myself. My last year's sandals are as good as new but they don't cling to my feet when I dance. I gummed adhesive tape around the inside of the heel, and then rubbed the heel of my stocking with soap. It worked like a charm, and eliminated all danger of getting a blister. My, but I feel proud!

—A Bride.
