BACK FENCING

By A MAN ABOUT TOWN

Everybody seems to be particularly concerned about the weather these days. It must be that the coming week-end Holiday carries a heavy schedule of out-of-doors activities.

Well, we will hope along with the others that the weather man will be correct in his forecast of a week around the yard and garden with a nice warm sun shining down on the bark.

More of our local towns people are going to Europe this coming summer. Not that the Steins and the Arvillars have announced their plans, we find that Ken Bingham is about set to buy his tickets for the foreign shores and that Clarence Blennan is also making plans to "Go Abroad" during the summer months.

Speaking of getting around places, word came from Birmingham that the Birmingham delegation of Lions saw quite a bit of that faculty during their stay there last year.

Some of the traveling Lions stopped off at Jackson and visited Walter Huffman and Doc Lowe at their new Sales & Service place of business.

Joe Purvis, over at the Goodyear Station on Pierce Street, is usually a pretty good natured sort of a duck. The other day we came across him out on the drive and he was really "burned-up".

The Baldwin publication, The Piper, recently published by the students of our local High School is a very fine piece of work and those who were responsible for it are to be congratulated on their unusual publication.

Some one remarked the other day that it was a shame that so many of the stoves which were formerly scattered about Birmingham's Springdale Park, have been neglected to the point of ruin and finally disposed of without replacement.

Heinie Heimiller has a banquet pipe which he claims is all the rage in the colleges of the middle west. He has gone "Collegiate" and unblushingly produces it at social occasions and laughs gleefully when someone inquires as to just what that thing is that is puffing out of any place in weeks. June is almost here, at that!

Erwin Neff, Jr. must be getting serious about something. He seems to be dashing around with the car and truck a lot more consistently of late. And his visits seem to be of shorter duration around the park. We haven't seen his truck parked for over an hour at any one place in weeks.

Baptists Are Given Brief Bible Sermons

Doctor A. F. Johnson, pastor of the local Baptist Church, announced that an increasingly large number of persons attend the Sunday evening services at the church.

In speaking of his friends of other faiths who make it a practice to attend his services, Dr. Johnson says, "All my Sunday night messages will be evangelistic in form, and will not deal in doctrinal differences of denominations."

Doctor Johnson submits the following as a complete minute series: "Some people are so good that they are good for nothing."
