

VICTORY ENDS GRID SEASON

Howe Academy Defeated by Cranbrook With Score of 24-0

Before a crowd of over 600, Cranbrook School brought its 1937 football season to a close Saturday by marching to an easy victory over Howe Academy, 24 to 0, at Bloomfield Hills.

Playing on a slippery field and relying chiefly to power plays, the victors managed to score in every quarter but the third. Fullback Harold Miller started the tallying by plunging over from the 35-yard marker in the middle of the first period and added six more

BALDWIN RE-LIGHTS

By Ann Nonimus

Say now, wasn't that an ultra ultra dance the Town Club staged last Saturday night? Well, cross my heart double or nothing, I'll say it was! Orchids to the decoration committee for the swell job it pulled, especially the idea of the spotlights that shone on the club's emblem. Very clever, yes, VERY clever.

This was the first red dress-up dance we've had in quite a spell, so everybody turned out as formal as anything. Frannie Chandler, in white satin tied up with red velvet bows, came with Steve Wynnast. Cute Madeline Pease was squired by Don Matthews and sister Betty Ann came with Hoyt Morris. Alice Painter walked in with Rex Oberbeck. Duke Peters brought Ruth Anderson, who looked simply swish in black with a veil in her hair. Also noticed Joanne Wake, field all done up in light blue taffeta, in a delicious gold formal, was noted by Glenn Wagoner, and Genevieve Gay ambled in with Glenn Hoover.

Noticed Nancy Jones in white Chiffon and gardenias, coming down the stairs to join Bob Myers. Also Betty Russell, in blue with a gold Juliet cap on her curls to meet Bill Price. Evelyn Wright, danced by Dick Smith along with Nancy Fisher, looking very regal in black velvet, with Dave McKinney. Other people coming Anne's line of vision were Jack Reynolds and Shirley Cole; May, Jean Gracey and Ed Purman; George Mallens with Janie Thomas;

Baldwin Brevities

Miss Genevieve Gay and brother, Jack, attended the Michigan State-Carnegie Tech football game at Lansing last Saturday.

Marilyn Fly and George Gorman, Peg Janisse and Leonard Young spent the week end in Lansing for the festivities preceding and following the game.

Don Bottomly will spend his Thanksgiving Holiday in Chicago. He expects to visit his brother, Kenneth Bottomly, a graduate of Baldwin.

A great many of Baldwin's grand old alumni showed their faces at the Charity Ball last Saturday. A few of them were Harry Whalen, Dick Debusch, John Owens, Bill Moss, Gerry Anderson, Peter Rose, Frank Cavan and Ed Purman.

CAGERS START SOON

The Baldwin High School basketball season begins Wednesday when the Varsity play a Baldwin Alumni team.

Coach Franklin Whitney hopes that his new system will bring him a successful season. In January Baldwin loses Captain Fritz Adams and Nick Vicario, both of whom leave vacancies hard to replace.

The first real practice was a game with the high school Alumni on Wednesday, Nov. 10. Although the score was not kept the totals were about equal.

Each Whitney hopes that the intramural schedule, which starts on Monday, Nov. 15, will develop future talent for his squad of 1938.

ADAMS PUPILS TO SEE 'LIVING BOOK'

'Rip Van Winkle' Will Visit Junior High Students and Parents

A living picture book will be brought to the pupils at Adams Junior High school, tomorrow, at 11:30 o'clock Thursday.

The story portrayed will be Irving's "Rip Van Winkle," and those parents who want to participate in the fun will be welcome. There will be an admission charge of ten cents, to reimburse the actors.

John Ellis, a former member of the well-known Joseph Jefferson stock company, will play "Rip." He will be assisted by Beta Baird, whose rapid and complete changes during the course of action, which the impersonator has won her much praise.

The actors will appear in costume, and will present enough of the play to give the audience a very complete picture. This is done by a clever combination of narrative, acting and music. The performance acted out in full. This is not a benefit performance, but merely given in order to entertain and instruct the students.

Congress Group To Attend Conference

The Student Association of Grosse Pointe High School has cordially invited four members of the Baldwin Student Congress and the adviser, Mrs. Edwin E. Darland, to attend the second annual conference of Student Councils of the Border City League on Tuesday, Dec. 14, from 9:15 to 2:30. The program of the day will include luncheon, a discussion of the problems of the different Student Councils, and a tour through the school.

Five dollars was donated by the Student Congress of Baldwin High School for the purchase of two magazines, Popular Aviation and Popular Photography, for the school library. The magazines will be ordered by Bill Vinton.

A committee selected from the Student Congress will confer with Principal Ray H. Brechtold sometime this week on the question of lengthening the Christmas vacation. The members of this committee include Bill Vinton, Beth Navin, and Frances Chandler.

Varsity Club Plans Case

Baldwin High's Varsity Club held its weekly meeting last Friday in the home room of Coach Franklin Whitney, faculty advisor of the club.

The main part of the meeting was spent in a discussion of methods for raising money for the trophy case.

Members of the committee are chairman, several companies for bids on the proposed case.

MARK ARMISTICE DAY

Rev. W. Hamilton Aulenbach, of Christ Church Cranbrook, addressed the students of Baldwin High School in a special Armistice Day program Thursday morning, Nov. 11. Rev. Aulenbach stressed the point that we must be unselfish towards our friends in order to have real peace. He was introduced by Frances Chandler, president of the Student Congress.

The Assembly was part of the Armistice Day observance which began at 11:00 o'clock Thursday with a full minute of complete silence throughout the entire school.

Sports Showup

Narman Lyle, Jr.
The play of Robert "Georgia" Bolson was outstanding in the Mt. Clemens game. It was Georgia's best performance of the year.

"Georgia's" running mate, right tackle Phil Pollock, also was a vital factor in the Maroon line. Time and again he broke through and tossed the potential ball-carrier for losses. Once before he laid the tackles cold make or team. A great pair of tackles certainly "made" the Birmingham team last Friday afternoon.

Followers of the Baldwin football team will be somewhat saddened to hear that "Bud" Chamberlain, Royal Oak's one-state man, ball team and All-Star man, is out for probably the rest of the season and possibly next year also with a badly wrenched back.

Baldwin griders are saddened because it is indeed sorry news to hear that so great a high school player has received an injury which might possibly end his whole future football career. This department sincerely hopes Chamberlain will be on his feet and able to attend the game on Thanksgiving Day.

When Samuel Emanuel Vittorio Giuseppe Briant entered the game with Mt. Clemens in its late stages, he was as were all the other members of the team, the recipient of blows from a Mt. Clemens hand with its fingers tightly closed.

We don't know whether Samuel Emanuel gave in kind or not. At any rate, little Giuseppe "pulled" a smart piece of head play. He did not complain to the referee until Birmingham had just been penalized. Then he asked the referee to watch the man who played across the line from him.

The referee did so, caught the Bather in the act of slugging, and promptly nullified the Birmingham penalty by penalizing Mt. Clemens fifteen yards.

Aside to the football team: The Football Dance show-up, night is one game where you don't wear cleated shoes, boys. And watch your holding in the clinches.

CAMERA CLUB BEGINS WORK

The Baldwin High School Camera Club got under way slowly this year due to the apparent lack of interest on the part of the new members, but the club has now organized and ready for active work.

The officers for the current season are: President, Bill Vinton; vice president, Dave McKinney; secretary, Bill Price; treasurer, Quentin Bredford.

There are to date 34 registered members in the club. Meetings are held at 11:15 every Tuesday.

The club is seriously considering buying a miniature enlarger because of the large number of miniature fans in the club. This is the only enlarger that the club could accommodate larger negatives bought last year. John Howlett, Bill Price, and Quentin Bredford formed a committee appointed to appraise enlargers and select one for the club's use.

The program committee selected at its first meeting, has provided some interesting programs. Bill Vinton gave a talk in portrait with artificial lighting, demonstrating his methods with Dave McKinney as a model. Members were invited to bring their cameras and enough light was provided so that most members could experiment with portrait. Faye Anderson acted as model. Members of the program committee are Quentin Bredford, John Howlett, Bill Price, and John Ferris.

Averil, publisher of The Eccentric, gave a talk on his recent European tour. Mr. Averil illustrated his lecture with a number of slides, quite a few of them being in nature camera work. Mr. Averil presented an invitation to attend the lecture with the Camera Club.

French Play Staged By Baldwin Group

The French Club, composed of six members, has been meeting with Miss Mahel Stickle, who is serving as adviser. They have been reading short stories and playing various card games in French. Last week, Max Horton and Charles Turner presented a short French skit, a conversation that might be heard in the meeting of when two friends meet at a street corner.

Miss Stickle and one of the students attended the French movie which was shown in Detroit last week and the play was discussed last Tuesday.

Many of the students are corresponding with boys and girls in France and have brought letters and postcards which were also read at the meeting. It was interesting to note on the map the various parts of France from which the letters were sent.

ADAMS DRAMATIC CLUB GIVES PARTY

Presents Life of Stephen Foster, Assisted by Chorus

Dramatics rank largely in the lives of Adams junior high school students at the present. Not only will they give a play, "The Day After Tomorrow," but on Tuesday, at 10:20 a. m., during the regular junior high assembly, they witnessed a dramatization of the life of Stephen Foster, by the Adams Junior High Players, in which the school's chorus also participated.

The cast reads as follows: Stephen Foster, Jacqueline Lamb; Mary Foster, Stephen's mother, Mary Averil; publisher of The Eccentric, Roger Stallberg; Morrison "Millie" Foster; David Kennedy; MacDowell; Dorothy McNellis; Oswald Robertson; Nancy Walker; Susan Hamilton; Grace Staples; Old Black Joe, Virginia Fellows; Mrs. Schick; Doris Palmer; Miss Fifth; Florence Berntson.

Phyllis Olsen served as student director for the production, assisting Mrs. Alvina Johnson, faculty director. Miss Edith Roach conducted the Chorus during its vocal presentations.

The songs offered by the Chorus included "Oh Susanna," "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," "Camptown Races," "Oh Uncle Ned," "Nelly Bly," "Oh! Black Joe," "Ring Around the Rosie," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Folks at Home."

This presentation was given during the regular student assembly hour, for grades seven through nine. It marks the first appearance this year of the dramatics society.

BALDWIN ARCHERS LEARN TECHNIQUE

Members of Club Study How To Weigh, Balance, And String A Bow

An archery club has been introduced into the Baldwin High School activity program this semester. Franklin Whitney, the adviser, is instructing the members on the following ideas: how to weigh, balance and string a bow; how to aim; how to fetch arrows. He has also given them instructions on the proper grip and method of drawing a bow, and the equipment to have.

It is Mr. Whitney's plan to organize girls' and boys' clubs in the Birmingham Archery Club has extended several invitations to the group to use the Club's indoor range in the Briggs' Building, and many members have taken advantage of this invitation. The Birmingham Archery Club has also given a reduced membership rate to members of the high school club.

Parties such as balloon shoots and wild game hunts, where the archer shoots at targets on which moving pictures of wild game are shown, have been suggested by Mr. Whitney as a source of funds for their activity for the club.
