Mrs. W. G. Lewellen of Pilgrim road will be hostess Friday to 12 guests at luncheon in honor of Mrs. E. A. Nimnicht of St. Louis.

The Kitchen Korner

By Sally Lusa

Dear Diary: I've made a discovery. It's quite an important one too. That is, it's important for us because we love onions and use so many of them. Joe likes onions with steak, fried onions, baked onions, creamed onions—and so do I. The only part of it I did not like was peeling them. My eyes always watered and smarted so, that I dreaded the ordeal. But now I know what to do, and I wish I had known sooner.

You see, it was this way. I had promised Joe his favorite French fried onions for dinner last night as a birthday treat. I would peel for a while, then wipe my eyes and go out into the air to relieve the stinging. But my eyes were all red and I looked as though I had spent the day in tears, when I had done nothing.

It was Joe's Aunt Mary. She looked surprised when she saw me and asked, "Why, has something gone wrong?" I laughed and told her I was just peeling onions.

"Don't tell me you're a martyr to the cause, and allow yourself to weep over onions," she exclaimed. "Well, I wouldn't if I knew any other way to do it." I told her, "Oh that's easy. Just pour boiling water over the onions. Then cover and leave them five minutes. Drain, add cold water and you can remove the skins without tears or trouble."

I had a bright idea then. I escorted her to my desk, put a pen in her hand and gave her a nice little notebook.

"What's this for?" she asked. I asked her if she would jot down a household hint in that particular notebook every time she came to visit us. So she began by writing down the hint on how to peel onions, and followed up with another. This is what she wrote:

"Because cracker crumbs absorb fat more than bread crumbs, the latter are preferable for fried foods, the former for baked dishes."

Later, she thought of something else she said she thought I ought to know, and going back to the notebook wrote:

"Fresh lean pork shoulder, seasoned with carrot, celery, onion and green pepper, and simmered until tender, almost equals stewed chicken."

She said now that she had started ed the book for me, she would look up more hints.

"But it won't do you a bit of good if I write them down, and you keep the book put away in this desk," she warned me. "Young woman, you learn what I write down, and each time I come, I'll read your lesson. Then you will learn and get the benefit of the experience of others."

So now I have my work cut out for me.

HOME CEREMONY UNITES LOCAL PAIR

Dr. Marion K. Hain Becomes Bride of E. J. Harrington At Simple Rites

A pretty wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon at the home of the bridegroom on Quaton road united Dr. Marion K. Hain of Detroit, formerly of Bloomfield Hills, and Edgar John Harrington of Quaton road. The marriage service was read at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Hamilton Magabaly of Utica, Mich.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Anne Ritzenthaler of Detroit as maid of honor, and Dr. Thomas Kears of Utica, brother of the bride, performed the duties of best man for Mr. Harrington.

Dr. Hain chose a floor-length gown of blue lace, fashioned on princess lines, with a cowl neckline and puff sleeves. She wore with it a corsage of pink roses. Miss Ritzenthaler's gown was of blue velvet, similarly made on long princess lines. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

The vows were spoken at one end of the living room, before a large basket filled with white chrysanthemums and pink gladioli, and flanked with palms. Disposal of souvenir and reparafite roses were placed about the rooms.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for about 100 friends of the couple. After a brief wedding journey the couple will reside on Quaton road.

CHURCH GROUP TO GIVE LUNCHEON

Presbyterian Women Plan Annual "Birthday Party" and Play

An original and unusual scheme of decorating will distinguish the third annual Birthday Luncheon of the Women's Union of the Presbyterian Church, to be held next Wednesday at one o'clock, at the church. In former luncheons, each table has represented a month of the year, with those who were born on that month sitting at the appropriate table. Under this year's plan, each table will be decorated to represent a foreign country, with the table accessories in keeping, to follow out the general scheme.

Mrs. L. A. Volberding is chairman of the ticket committee for the affair, and Mrs. E. Dow Ellwood is publicity chairman.

Following the luncheon, there will be a play, "The Faith Chest," directed by Mrs. Howard Coe. Included among the members of the cast are Mrs. B. Dow Ellwood, Mrs. M. D. Watts, Mrs. Verne Griffith, Miss Loretta Povritt and Miss Ruth Povritt.

Manuscript Club To Hold 3rd Annual Tea

Miss Dorothea York, of York Place, Royal Oak, will entertain the Birmingham Manuscript Club, of which she is Director, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Sattie York Osborne, of Pierce street, at its third annual Fall Tea, of Friday, October first, at 2:15 p. m. Mrs. M. L. Stannard, of Detroit, and Mrs. Duncan McEae, of Royal Oak, will preside at the tea table. Mrs. Stannard and Miss Beatrice Plumb, of Detroit, will be the honor guests. Miss Plumb will address the club under the title of "I Take My Pen in Hand," in which she graphically outlines the joys and sorrows of literary life. She has built her reputation as the author of numerous articles and stories for magazines and newspapers.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Ted R. Ahlich of 747 Henrietta street announce the birth of a daughter, Sandra Ann, Wednesday, Sept. 15.

J. Kenneth Bottolfo of Cranbrook road will return Friday to Central College in Chicago to begin his senior year.

VOWS EXCHANGED AT AUTUMN RITES

Mary Louise Johns Becomes Bride At Ceremony In Hills Church

A lovely wedding of early fall was solemnized at Christ Church Cranbrook Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, when Mary Louise Johns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Johns of Birchcrest drive, became the bride of John Louis Shepherd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMillan Shepherd of Bates street. The Rev. W. Hamilton Aderbach performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride wore a stately gown of ivory satin, reminiscent of medieval times, with its standing collar of Brabant lace and warts-shaped neckline. The sleeves were also characteristic of this period, with their full ruffs from shoulder to elbow, and light fitting to the wrist, edged with the same lace. The skirt fell from a high-cut waistline into a long train. The long veil of ivory tulle, which extended beyond the shoulders, was held in place by a Juliet cap of ivory illusion, edged with satin. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Betty Jane Johns who attended her sister as maid of honor, wore a gown of deep blue velvet, simply fashioned with V-neckline and short puffed sleeves, and held in place by a Juliet cap of deep blue net, banded in a matching shade of velvet, complemented her costume, and she carried a sheaf of white gladioli.

Wine colored velvet was the contrasting shade which formed the gowns of the four bridesmaids, Adelaide Ely of Toronto, Barbara Spalding, Eleanor Swan and Alice Osterman of Bloomfield Hills. The gowns were similarly made, on princess lines, with puffed sleeves and V-necklines. Their hats were like that of the honor maid, but in wine colored net and matching crepe. They also carried white gladioli.

John McKee, Jr., performed the duties of best man for Mr. Shepherd. Seating the guests were Fred Cushing, Gahn Kinnison, Fred Schwarz and Jack Taylor, all of Birmingham.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Johns selected a gown of deep green imported crepe, with V-neckline and elbow length sleeves and skirt on straight lines. Her hat and accessories were in matching crepe. Mrs. Shepherd's gown was of royal blue crepe, with matching jacket. Her hat was also in the same shade as the costume. Both Mrs. Johns and Mrs. Shepherd were corsage bouquets of gardenias.

A reception at Plum Hollow Golf Club followed the ceremony. Disposal of white asters and gladioli were used about the club, and in the dining room, a wedding cake centered the table, flanked with silver candlesticks in long white tapers.

Folk Dancers Start Capers On Tuesday

Enthusiastic followers of the old European and early American folk and country dances; anyone who likes entertaining exercise or even those whom Nature has endowed too generously, and who would like to lose weight, can profit by the knowledge of Mrs. Fred D. Farrar.

Mrs. Farrar, who spent the summer in intensive study and practice of the traditional "long ways" dances, has resumed her classes teaching them, and will henceforth dispense her knowledge at the Village Players playhouses, Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Allied Youth To Give Dance

Friday, Oct. 16, is the date chosen by Birmingham Post Number 7 of Allied Youth, for its convention dance, to be held at the Community House. Harold Gessie and Harry Conwell are in charge of obtaining an orchestra for the event.
