

The Birmingham Eccentric

(Founded in 1878)
 Published every Thursday at Birmingham, Mich., in The Eccentric Building, 121-23 North Main Street, Birmingham, Michigan. Telephone 11,112 and 13.
 GEORGE B. AVERILL, Editor and Publisher
 PAUL H. WILSON, Business Manager
 M. J. WINGFIELD, Production Manager
 CLAUDE E. WALKER, Circulation Manager

Entered as Second Class Matter in the U. S. Postoffice at Birmingham, Michigan.
 SUBSCRIPTION RATES
 (In Oakland County) (Outside Oakland County)
 One Year $2.00 One Year $2.50
 Six Months $1.00 Six Months $1.25
 Three Months $0.50 Three Months $0.60
 All rates in advance. Single copies 10c. Payment in advance. All orders must be accompanied by cash or check payable to the order of the publisher. Office by Thursday noon to obtain insertion for that week.

The Eccentric is a member of:
 National Editorial Association, Michigan Press Association, University Press Club, and Oakland County Weekly Press Association.
 THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1938

NOTE: The Eccentric is pleased to publish stories of events which have new value and which are written by persons not connected with the editorial staff of the paper. The right is reserved to accept or reject any material. The right is reserved to edit and to make such changes in the copy submitted as are necessary to the style of the paper and as are required because of mechanical limitations in the composing room. Headlines written by the author will be printed as such unless otherwise stated. Any erroneous reference upon the character, standing or credit of any person or organization mentioned in the Eccentric will appear in the columns of the Eccentric if the publisher is notified upon being brought to the attention of the publisher.

MURPHY
 M. is for the middle class of government;
 U. is for the "unknown" spending spree;
 R. is for the reign of lawless CIO;
 P. is for the "pap" doled by Frankie;
 H. is for the horror of "recession";
 Y. is for the youth whose hopes are thin—
 Put them all together, they spell MURPHY.
 The chap who keeps us in the state we're in!

An American citizen recently received a letter from one to whom he owed a sum of money, and in the way he answered the request:
"... So He Sold The Wolves!"

In reply to your request to send a check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to federal laws, state laws, county laws, city laws, corporation laws, liquor laws, money-laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, and out-laws.
 Through these laws I am compelled to pay a business tax, amusement tax, head tax, school tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, sales tax, liquor tax, car tax, pet tax, income tax, food tax, furniture tax, and excise tax. Even my brains are taxed. I am required to get a business license, car license, truck license, not to mention a marriage and dog license.
 I am now required to contribute to every society and organization which the genus of man is capable of bringing to life, to women's relief, the unemployed relief, and the gold digger's relief. Also to every hospital and charitable institution in the city, including the red cross, black cross, purple cross, and the double cross.
 For my own safety, I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance and fur insurance.

My business is so governed that it is not an easy matter for me to find out who owes me. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, defected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, and compelled, until I provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race.
 For my family because I refuse to donate to something or other, I am boycotted, talked about, rebuffed, held up and held down, and rebuffed, until I am almost ruined.
 "I can tell you honestly for the miracle that happened I could not enclose this check. The wolf that comes to money nowadays just had pups in my kitchen. I sold them and here is the money."

Friendly note to Homer Martin, President UAW: "Now that you have succeeded in directing the organization of thousands of workers in this area, how are you progressing in perfecting the organization itself? Kinds hard, isn't it, to make yourself understood and believed by even those you are trying to help? Which is much the more you are trying to confront employees themselves. But here's hoping you keep sweet, clean, and pure—undefiled by your observation of the mob's howling. When you have a few more years of such experience you will probably understand better that when you saw in hate—even a kind of honest and sincere hate—you reap only the chaff of the mob's ingratitude."

Note To Homer Martin

President Roosevelt is happy "because a majority of the United States Senators cannot be bribed by a paid barrage of telegrams." That is what he had to say about his re-organization bill's successful passage last week. The President failed to add that he is equally happy that the same majority succumbed to the bribery of the Executive's tremendous patronage barrage.

GERMANY TODAY is frenzied in its attempt to survive. You may put it down that Hitler will never stop until he has given his country some portion of the earth that is rich in natural resources. The Nazi chief is like a hungry bear in the ancient Roman Coliseum, ready to satisfy its ravenous appetite upon the captive Christians.

"IT SEEMS AS THOUGH the whole damned world is going nuts," lamented H. J. Links, of Big Beaver, as he leaned up against the gas station, watching the cars go by. "I'll bet there was more downright peace in this country when the Indians had it, than there is today."

"FOUR SCORE and seven years ago our fathers founded upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal..." So began Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. But that was before the Wagner Act set up the National Labor Relations Act, with its iniquitous and iniquitous support only of unionism, and mostly the CIO phase of it, at that.

Every Red-blooded American ought to read and memorize the few lines we are re-printing below.

Every American Should Read This!

Washington, D. C. It is vitally related to current affairs; it ought to be read at every dinner table for the next eight months—here it is:
 "Empires are not created by men of fine ethical preceptions, but by individuals whose conscience, if they have any, are dulled by their lust for power. Their tendentious is not with justice, but with success. Force, lawlessness, is their god, and they pay allegiance nowhere else."
 "Three of the great nations of the earth, the so-called 'Have-Nots,' Germany, Italy, and Japan, are running amuck. The democratic processes in each and every one of them have ceased to function. They have concentrated such resources as they have in armaments. They have looked about to see whom they might attack with comparative immunity. They are making a new earth; not some geographically, but in terms also of economic and political power."

Justice Francis Martin, of the New York Appellate Court, urges a limitation of law schools and students. His method, but effect, tends to pay, unless persons have overcrowded the field until there is a "mad scramble" for business, lowering the prestige of the bar.

A Judge Talks 'chavng' and similar types Of The Bar

The jurist recalls that "the bar earned and held the respect of the community for generations," but that "men with no standing in the community have come into our ranks." With pay, but education, tends to pay, unless persons have overcrowded the field until there is a "mad scramble" for business, lowering the prestige of the bar.

Apparently conditions in New York are like those everywhere else. There are so many lawyers turned loose that competition for business leads to lowered ethical standards on the part of those morally qualified to uphold the great principles of the law. Because there is nothing required in the way of character qualification, the bar is also peopled by men interested in nothing except to use the machinery of justice as a personal racket.

We do not propose a solution of the problem. It is not the function of the press to tell lawyers how to clean up their house. It is refreshing, however, to know that many eminent attorneys are concerned over the present disrepute of "the law" in the eyes of the public generally.

Once upon a time there was a man, who lived in a town, and spent all his money away from home. He was sure that he could take care of himself, and that his town didn't mean anything to him.

Once Upon A Time

After a few years, his business wasn't at keen as he had hoped it would be, his friends didn't seem to have liked he was quite as important as he thought he was, and trade seemed to flow by his doors. He began to watch his competitor, who he found was an intelligent advertiser, a contributor to the public press, a man anxious to give some of his time and thought to community projects, and a believer in the fact that it pays to keep money at home, where it can keep floating around between the stores and businesses there.

And after noting all these factors, he continued to wonder why his business was not doing so well as the newcomer, and why almost everybody had the idea that he was a tightwad and his competitor a public-spirited leader of community life.

Man's Greatest Problem Is "Man"

Special lenses and films, the photo-electric cell and aluminum surfacing, will extend the vision of the 200-inch "eye" of the Palomar observatory "billions of miles farther in 1938."
 Scientists tell us that the 100-inch mirror, now at Mount Wilson, in conjunction with the photo-electric cell, is so sensitive that it can detect the light of a candle, burning 3,000 miles away! The light mirror will do much more in revealing the universe to the astronomer than the present equipment available.

Man is undoubtedly making vast strides in the field of intelligence. He begins, to discover the facts, upon which the mystery of life depends. Moreover, in mechanical fields of endeavor, man is making the impossible easy, and invention daily increases the scope of human power.
 All of this should be translated into better living conditions for human beings and the development of understanding among men. Unfortunately, this does not seem to be true and the question arises whether the character of man has grown in proportion to his advancement in other lines.

The pessimist doubts it and the optimist takes it for granted. Sober thought, however, leads to the belief that there is much to be done by human beings in that which the mystery of life depends. Without it, other advances may prove dangerous, and they will continue, regardless of the effect upon the human race.

Congressional Comment

By Representative George A. Brown of Michigan
 (of the Michigan District)

When the appropriation bill providing $2,500,000 for construction, purchase, and maintenance of transmission lines and purchase of easements and rights-of-way in connection with the Bonneville power project was up for consideration in the House of Representatives, I introduced an amendment to reduce that amount to $1,450,000 to correspond with the original recommendation contained in the report of the Director of the Budget.

No new facts were brought out and no change of physical or economic conditions had occurred since the time of the original budget estimate which would justify an increase of $2,050,000, with one exception. On page 510 of the hearings, in a letter by Mr. Bell, Acting Director of the Budget, to the President of the United States, there is one line, and I quote that line: "Since the transmission of Congress of the 1930 With pay, but education, tends to pay, unless persons have overcrowded the field until there is a "mad scramble" for business, lowering the prestige of the bar.

Apparently conditions in New York are like those everywhere else. There are so many lawyers turned loose that competition for business leads to lowered ethical standards on the part of those morally qualified to uphold the great principles of the law. Because there is nothing required in the way of character qualification, the bar is also peopled by men interested in nothing except to use the machinery of justice as a personal racket.

We do not propose a solution of the problem. It is not the function of the press to tell lawyers how to clean up their house. It is refreshing, however, to know that many eminent attorneys are concerned over the present disrepute of "the law" in the eyes of the public generally.

Once upon a time there was a man, who lived in a town, and spent all his money away from home. He was sure that he could take care of himself, and that his town didn't mean anything to him.

Once Upon A Time

After a few years, his business wasn't at keen as he had hoped it would be, his friends didn't seem to have liked he was quite as important as he thought he was, and trade seemed to flow by his doors. He began to watch his competitor, who he found was an intelligent advertiser, a contributor to the public press, a man anxious to give some of his time and thought to community projects, and a believer in the fact that it pays to keep money at home, where it can keep floating around between the stores and businesses there.

And after noting all these factors, he continued to wonder why his business was not doing so well as the newcomer, and why almost everybody had the idea that he was a tightwad and his competitor a public-spirited leader of community life.

Man's Greatest Problem Is "Man"

Special lenses and films, the photo-electric cell and aluminum surfacing, will extend the vision of the 200-inch "eye" of the Palomar observatory "billions of miles farther in 1938."
 Scientists tell us that the 100-inch mirror, now at Mount Wilson, in conjunction with the photo-electric cell, is so sensitive that it can detect the light of a candle, burning 3,000 miles away! The light mirror will do much more in revealing the universe to the astronomer than the present equipment available.

Man is undoubtedly making vast strides in the field of intelligence. He begins, to discover the facts, upon which the mystery of life depends. Moreover, in mechanical fields of endeavor, man is making the impossible easy, and invention daily increases the scope of human power.
 All of this should be translated into better living conditions for human beings and the development of understanding among men. Unfortunately, this does not seem to be true and the question arises whether the character of man has grown in proportion to his advancement in other lines.

The pessimist doubts it and the optimist takes it for granted. Sober thought, however, leads to the belief that there is much to be done by human beings in that which the mystery of life depends. Without it, other advances may prove dangerous, and they will continue, regardless of the effect upon the human race.

LITTLE RAY OF GOLDEN SUNSHINE

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
 National Chairman
 Sentinels of the Republic

Partisan Smoke Obscure Issues In Reorganization Bill

WASHINGTON—The approval of a reorganization bill by the House of Representatives has set off a partisan battle in which the issue of the bill's passage is being obscured by the issue of the bill's content. The bill, which is known as the Executive Reorganization Bill, is a measure which would give the President the power to reorganize the executive branch of the government. The bill is being opposed by many members of the House, who are concerned about the loss of checks and balances. The bill is also being opposed by many members of the Senate, who are concerned about the loss of the Senate's role in the reorganization process. The bill is being passed by a narrow margin, and it is expected that it will be vetoed by the President.

Random Remarks

Bernard M. Baruch, statesman, says: "I have found in forty years experience in Wall Street, that the only safe investment is in the stock of the United States."

Tara Shimazu, Japanese poetess, says: "The Japanese have no sense of humor in relation to the United States."

Neville Chamberlain, British Minister, says: "The present situation of democracy, which means the loss of liberty, I would not touch."

Thomas Kennedy, I. O. O. F. leader, says: "The only way to get rid of the labor problem is to get rid of the labor union."

Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain, says: "Just now the best investment is in the stock of the United States."

Adolf Hitler, to British Minister, says: "I have a great admiration for the American Navy, which is the superior of any navy on earth."

Herbert Hoover, after many weeks in Europe, says: "The principal nations will be ready with their preparations for two or three years."

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, says: "Isolation is not a means to security; it is a fruitful source of insecurity."

Frederick J. Libby, peace advocate, says: "I am in favor of peace at any price, but I do not believe in a foreign war."

Henry C. Tiegens, Congressman from Minnesota, says: "The only way to get rid of the labor problem is to get rid of the labor union."

Frederick Sewer, former U.S. Senator from Oregon, says: "Business executives must not forget that the people are the foundation of the nation, and that the people are the foundation of the nation."

Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist preacher, says: "The only way to get rid of the labor problem is to get rid of the labor union."

James W. Wadsworth, Congressman from New York, says: "The only way to get rid of the labor problem is to get rid of the labor union."

Melvin J. Maas, Congressman from Minnesota, says: "The only way to get rid of the labor problem is to get rid of the labor union."

Herbert Hoover, after many weeks in Europe, says: "The principal nations will be ready with their preparations for two or three years."

Happenings of Long Ago

Fifty Years Ago
 New spring millinery? Hats in vogue and higher prices than ever before.
 If the usual amount of local does not appear this week—it's the electric doser knows!
 It will surprise his friends to know that Ed Lamb has a pair of fish in his house and it will surprise his friends to know that instead of two solid Democratic voters he has a pair of fine English pugs pup.

There was no blare of trumpets or sound of drums; the earth trembled and there were no convulsions of nature with speaking of when Jim Stoen, editor of the Red Book, was walking into the rink of the great moral engine one day last week and saw a pair of fish in his house and it will surprise his friends to know that instead of two solid Democratic voters he has a pair of fine English pugs pup.

Twenty-Five Years Ago
 Mrs. Ruth Rutherford is the mother of her own money. She is a very successful business woman and she is a very successful business woman. She is a very successful business woman and she is a very successful business woman.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

Mr. Arthur Faint, through the office of the Chicago Tribune, has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago. He has secured a fine big and windy city of Chicago.

WABECK STATE BANK
 BIRMINGHAM, MICH.
 Directors: W. M. CORNELIUS, FRANK COUZENS, LEONARD L. HEALY, HENRY T. EWALD, G. B. JUDSON, W. R. YAW.
 "Your Bank in Birmingham"
 COMPLETE BANKING FACILITIES