PERSONALITIES IN MUSIC
HARRY VON TILZER, A.S.C.A.P.
The Old Songs Never Die

STANDARD-SELLERS OF HARRY VON TILZER
On a Sunday Afternoon

WAIT TILL THE SUN SHINES NELLIE

By Daniel L. McNamara

MORE than two million copies of his first published song were sold and his entire share of the profits was just fifteen dollars, for Harry Von Tilzer's "My Old New Hampshire Home" was turned out long before the creators of song had allied themselves into the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for mutual protection.

Von Tilzer's first song was published early in the Gay Nineties. Since then he has made and lost several fortunes. Now the performing rights alone of his hundreds of popular songs are worth a great value. No popular song folio is complete without at least half a dozen Von Tilzer numbers. No review of old-time songs is heard without a "Wait Till the Sun Shines Nellie" or "When the Harvest Days Are Over" or "Dear" and "Down Where the Warburgers Flow."

Harry Von Tilzer ran away from his native Detroit in 1884 at a boy of fourteen, to join a circus. He became an actor with repetitive shows and at the same time a seasoned player as well as composer and singer of original songs.

Used by the famous opera star, Lottie Gilson, to develop his hair for songwriting, he came to New York from the midwest, earning transportation as a groom in a carload of horses. He reached the goal of his dreams in 1892 with $1.45 in his pocket.

At Tony Pastor's—the music hall de die of the period—he found customers for his unpublished original songs, at two dollars and up. When at last he induced publisher to take one of his songs, Von Tilzer's first payment of eight teen dollars was five dollars down.
