ANN ARBOR RITES INTERESTING TO LOCAL RESIDENTS

Of interest here is the marriage of Miss Alice Esther Woodruff and A. Louis O'Connor Jr., both former residents of Birmingham, which was read by the Rev. W. P. Lemon of the First Presbyterian Church of Ann Arbor, at five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, in the chapel of the Women's League at Ann Arbor. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Oliver Cope DuChaine of Ann Arbor and James Frederick Woodruff of Pasadena, Cal. Mr. O'Connor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Louis O'Connor of Grosse Ile.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her mother, spoke her vows in a pale blue gown of slipper satin, quaintly fashioned with a shirred bodice which laced up the front, and a long, full, skirt. The bodice was topped by a square neckline, and the long sleeves were leg o'mutton style. She wore a panache hat of matching satin topped with a cluster of white roses. Her flowers were white sweet peas and bouvardia, in a colonial bouquet.

Mrs. Robert W. Murray of Muskegon, matron of honor, and Miss Catherine Pardon of Ann Arbor, wore identical gowns of velvet. Mrs. Murray's ensemble was wine colored and Miss Pardon's, purple. Their panache hats, of matching velvet, were trimmed with gardenias. Wrist bouquets of white narcissus and yellow roses completed their costumes.

Joseph H. O'Connor of Grosse Ile attended his brother as best man. Seating the guests were James F. Woodruff, brother of the bride, and F. Allen Upson, of Ann Arbor.

Following a small reception, also held at the League, the bridal pair departed for a sojourn in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. On their return, they will be at home in Grosse Ile.
