NON-PARTISAN STATE NEWS LETTER

LANSING, Dec. 8.—Who killed Cock Robin?

Resentment of farmers and business men against the recession, says Gov. Frank Murphy. Resentment of citizens in general against "too much leniency" by Governor Murphy toward the sit-down strikers, says Edward J. Foy, chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

And there, in a nutshell, you have the current controversy among two democratic factions in Michigan as to the cause of the administration's reversals at the polls last Nov. 8.

Lines are being drawn somewhat along those existing nationally—liberals vs. stalwarts (or conservatives).

139,964 Fewer Votes
Analysis of the November ballots shows that Fitzgerald received 139,964 more votes this year than he did in 1936, while Murphy received 139,964 fewer votes.

Percentages of the total vote reveal that Murphy got 47.1 per cent and Fitzgerald 52.9 per cent. Four years ago it was 51.4 to 48.6.

Five voters out of every 100 changed their views between 1936 and 1938. This switch meant the defeat of the Michigan "New Deal" and the return of the Republicans to power at Lansing.

In the judgment of State Chairman Fitz, a practical politician who looks at elections in the light of getting results, "our first job in the coming two years is to convince the independent vote that the Democratic party stands, as it always has, for a fair deal for labor, but also a fair deal for industry."

Resentment of the public against the sit-downs was of too recent origin for us to make progress.

No Diversion of Funds
At a meeting of the American Road Builders association, of which is president, Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner of the State Highway department urged citizens to adopt amendments prohibiting diversion of highway funds.

Significance of the Michigan amendment is seen in the experience of Wisconsin. Last July 1, according to the Wisconsin Taxpayer, $23,114,563 was "available" for highway needs—but there was only $14,151,644 in the treasury. Obviously, nearly $9,000,000 of the money due the Wisconsin highway department was not available at all. It had been spent for other purposes.

Quoting the Milwaukee Journal of Nov. 25: "The plain truth is that Gov. LaFollette has used press for extravagance elsewhere—extravagance which he did not have the courage to finance through other taxation. He could do this because the so-called highway fund can be used surreptitiously as a budget balancing device."

Five Hunting Deaths
The 1938 promises to be remembered as one of safety achievement for Michigan.

The deer-hunting season closed with only five fatalities from misdirected gun-fire, as compared with 14 deaths last year. Casualties were:

ties were 17 wounded as compared with 12 in 1937.

P. J. Hoffmaster, director of the state conservation department, enthused also over the reduced toll in slaughter of deer.

Michigan in 1935 legalized 14,499 deer hunters; by 1938 the red clad army had grown to 160,000. Yet the conserved supply of deer today furnishes a potential problem of providing enough grazing land to tide many of them over the winter months. Upwards to 40,000 deer die each winter because there are too many for their food supply.

Traffic Toll Cut
Michigan leads also in reduction of traffic deaths.

With a decrease of 36 per cent in highway fatalities, the state stands next to Pennsylvania in having the best automobile safety record for 1938 to date.

The National Safety council, mindful of increasing drinking during holidays, is asking police departments to step up traffic enforcement and to post trusted officers at night clubs and other gay life spots to dissuade drinking drivers from taking the wheel.

As a part of its safety program, the state highway department has been studying the need of further grade separation.

No Overstocking
Department officials at Lansing have been instructed by Governor Murphy to take safeguards against overstocking prior to Jan. 1.

Edward W. McFarland, chairman of the liquor control commission, was given a $3,000,000 limit for inventory on the inaugural office-changing day. It was a fat-tailed inventory of nearly $7,000,000 in liquor stores which the Murphy administration insists it inherited on Jan. 1, 1937. However, the high inventory permitted the government to realize over four million dollars for deficit-reducing purposes in 1938.

Civil Service Injustice
Many veteran state employees, because they failed to pass qualifying examinations, lost their jobs this year. The plight of these workers was heightened by the lack of a pension system. State employees are not benefited by social security taxes in any way.

A pension study commission is considering an optional retirement age of 65 and a compulsory retirement age of 70 on pension.
