TRAVELERS WILL APPROVE OF NEW LIBRARY BOOKS

For those who think of travel during vacation time rolls around, new books at the Baldwin Public Library will open up novel and exciting vistas. There could be no more unusual vacation than following either of two particular books in real life, and the volumes will make fascinating reading for stay-at-homes. Other books in the new-arrivals are on a variety of subjects designed to stimulate jaded summer outlooks.

"Vagabond Voyaging" by Larry Nixon is one of the most tantalizing of the travel books. It not only makes you want to start for the other side of the world but it makes it seem that there is no earthly reason why you shouldn't do so. If you yearn to be one of ten or a dozen kindred spirits owing to all these new purposes, a 6,000 ton yacht and wandering leisurely about the world, Mr. Nixon shows you how to do it in a clear and concise fashion. And even if you can't travel, this book makes it fun to play with the idea.

"Swanee River, Strange Green Land," by Cecil Hulst Matschett, is a book of varied subjects. It is the "strange green land" of reptiles and seldom penetrated swamps; there are the primitive folk who live there, and their curious customs; there are strange and haunting tales of animals and "hunts"—and there is some very fine nature writing as the author follows the river along its course.

For serious reading, "Man Against Himself," by Karl A. Menninger, is recommended. Here one of America's leading psychiatrists presents an arresting picture of a sickness affecting the entire world. The question which confronts the author and his co-workers is: "Can the will-to-be encouraged and self-fulfilling conquest?" The intelligent reader will find in this book explanations of a startling number of psychological irregularities which he has discovered in himself or observed in others.

"Yoga Explained," by F. Yeats-Brown, is a book that will interest those who scoff at the whole idea. With his vast knowledge and experience with the Oriental psychology, Yeats-Brown is the obvious author for such a volume as this. And the notes he puts in the front of his book demonstrate his faith in the subject: "Yoga—a religion, but a mental and physical approach to a fuller life. Yoga is a scientific regime for fanatics, but a simple, concrete discipline which anyone may learn. Yoga is a potent, dignified, and universal but a calm and dignified approach to a true knowledge of body and mind."

"Day of Battle," by Vincent Sheehan, is so steeped in knowledge of the time that the characters are like familiar associates. The great figures of the day, including the exiled Scotch and Irish, fighting with the French for the Stuart restoration, march through these pages. The story itself is detailed and vivid, often real to the point of brutality.

"Queen's Folly," by Elsworth Thane, is another engrossing semi-historical work. Before Elizabeth was Queen of England, a young man did her a service at risk of his own life. For a few unforgettable moments, Anthony Brand stood in her presence and she gave him her hand to kiss. Some years later, after he is hopelessly in love with her, there is another brief interview between them and Elizabeth both gives him the house with which his family is started. Later she is indirectly responsible for his death. The house and the family live on however, and their history is carried down to 1936.

"A Mighty Fortress," by LeGrand Cannon Jr., has for its theme a young man's growth from a selfish to an unselfish attitude towards life; a growth forced by events but determined by his inherited honesty. It tells of Zake Peete from New Hampshire, apprenticed to an itinerant minister. The accounting of his unsuccessful marriage, his life in the city and his participation in the Abolition movement make engrossing reading.

Teachers, Too, Take Trips, And Make Their Plans For Vacation Play Or Work

HEADS LIONS

Boys and girls aren't the only ones to look forward to the time school closes. Teachers, too are glad of vacation, and it is interesting to note what they do when summer comes. The teachers at Bloomfield Hills School are right up to the minute in plans.

How would you like to go to France? So would we. That's just what Miss Dorothy Winkler, French instructor at Bloomfield Hills is, and what's more, she went on the Normandie.

There are three on our own country to explore. Kenneth Ollis, English teacher, after having made a quick tour of the New England states is spending the remainder of the summer in the southwest.

Helien West, Music teacher, and Joseph McCulloch, high school Science teacher, are up at Camp Sherwood in northern Michigan, engaged in supervising, and Hazel MacGirr, elementary supervisor and teacher of grades I and II, is in charge of the Summer Activity program at the Bloomfield Hills School. The teachers are engaged in those Friday, August 5. Miss Marjorie Johnson, girls' physical education director, is engaged for the second year as playground supervisor and swimming instructor at the South Bend Camp for Crippled Children, located at South Bend, Indiana.

Some teachers like school so well they attend in the summer. Among these are William Shuck, Director of the School, who is engaged in teaching in the Kachkan School of graduate study, at the University of Michigan, Richard Spurr, high school principal and director of the boys Physical Education, who is also taking graduate work at the University of Michigan, and Samuel Tilden, Latin teacher and guidance director, who is enrolled in the graduate school at Harvard University where he is taking work in Latin and Educational Guidance.

And other teachers stay at home during the summer in Birmingham and vicinity. Dorothy Thurston, teacher of grades V and VI, is spending the summer in Birmingham and vicinity, and Kathleen Wright, teacher of grades III and IV, will be in Pontiac all summer.

Gundry Transfers Old Age Pensions

Lansing, Mich., July 27, 1938—Auditor General, George T. Gundry, announced today that on August 15, the task of writing Old Age Assistance checks would be transferred from his department to the State Welfare Department.

Mr. Gundry explained that due to new auditing methods set up by Social Security Commissions, it was necessary to make the change.

He emphasized that his department would still audit the amounts covered him by the Welfare Department and that his staff would check all pension accounts thoroughly before they were received by him for signature.

Observers pointed out that Gundry's department would no longer be responsible for the mailing of Old Age Assistance warrants to the recipients as this work would be done by the Welfare Department. It is expected that under the new methods of procedure, administrative costs of the Auditor General's Department will be materially decreased.

MORRIS SEEKING RE-ELECTION AS PROSECUTOR

Franklin E. Morris, who has held the office of Prosecutor for Oakland County for the past two years, has filed petitions for re-nomination and re-election. Mr. Morris has been practicing law for the past 15 years in addition to his term as prosecuting attorney. He received his legal training at the Detroit College of Law, having graduated from Pierce College in Philadelphia.

Mr. Morris is a taxpayer of Oakland County, is married and the father of two children.

"In seeking this re-nomination and re-election, I do so realizing full well the responsibilities and duties and the obligations, which this office owes to the public," Mr. Morris said in announcing his candidacy. "Although I have not been harsh or unfair in the prosecution of cases, I have prosecuted all cases of citizens equally, and our records disclose that this office has handled more cases and secured more convictions than any prosecutor's office in the past several years."

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—
Mrs. Stella E. Fisher, 515 East Maple Avenue: "I would like to have it known that I am not standing in the way of the State Highway Dept. in its program to complete the pavement on the new Woodward cut-off through Birmingham. The highest I ever asked for my property was $35,000, and a recent condemnation jury awarded me but $19,500, so I have appealed from this decision. Not long ago I spent $5,000 in improvements on my home. I am willing to move the house to another location, too, if the State will give me what I deem a fair price for the land."

MOTORISTS FAVOR NEW HALF-YEAR LICENSE PLATES

The half-year stickers that were used last year instead of metal plates have frequently been the cause of embarrassment to Michigan motorists, who were stopped in other states and required to explain. The half-year plates are self-evident.

The decision of Leon I. Case, Secretary of State, to use metal license plates, instead of windshield stickers that were made outside the state, has met with universal approval.

Sales for the period ending June 29, 1938, of half-year plates have reached 597,789 units as compared to the sale of 487,924 windshield stickers for the same period last year, or an increase in half-year licenses of 159,765 units or approximately 40 per cent.

Branch offices report that economy rather than necessity has been the cause of the increase in sales of the half-year plates. Many persons to whom the windshield stickers had been affixed in the past, have purchased the half-year plates without hesitation. Owners of trucks, where the license fee runs into the higher brackets, have used this half-year plate extensively.

Michigan officers generally recommended the plates instead of the half-year stickers; Michigan being the only state with the half-year license privilege.

The half year plates expire August 31, 1938.

GLENN WATSON CHOSEN FOR DUTY AT FT. MACKINAC

Glenn Allen Watson, of Bird Avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew N. Watson, represents Birmingham in the group of fourteen selected Eagle Scouts from the Detroit Area Council, who will be on duty this week at Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island. Each summer since 1929, a group of Eagle Scouts known as the Governor's Honor Band, have performed this duty. For about five hours a day the Scouts serve, then have the rest of the time to themselves to swim, play baseball, tennis, hike, and hold campfires. The project was promoted this year by the Mackinac State Park Commission at the request of Governor Frank Murphy.

The other Eagle Scouts are: Walter G. Brakeman, Luman Slavick and Clark Stayman, of Highland Park, Dean Vanlandingham, of Plymouth, and James E. Thomas, Donald Carlton, Robert Hay, Earle W. Hess, Leon Olkewski, John S. Post, Robert E. Rutherford, William M. Sax, and Francis D. Carlson, of Detroit.

Do These Answers Describe the Home You're Looking For

- Q. Was it built to sell or to live in?
- A. Built by the owner to live in.
- Q. Is it old or young?
- A. Old enough to look mature and have price. Young enough to be modern in equipment.
- Q. Has it a good address?
- A. The best in Quarton Lake Estates.
- Q. How big is the lot?
- A. More than 80 ft. wide by 150 ft. deep.
- Q. Is the landscaping and natural foliage attractive?
- A. As lovely as you'll find in Birmingham.
- Q. Are the rooms large and home-like?
- A. Yes. The living room is 15 ft. x 24 ft. with 9 ft. bay for the grand piano. The study or children's living room is 12 ft. x 14 ft. The dining room is 15 ft. x 17 ft. and has two built-in corner cupboards.
- Q. What about the kitchen and shelf space?
- A. The modern convenient kitchen, the breakfast nook and extra shelf space will bring joy to any woman's heart.
- Q. What about the upstairs?
- A. The huge master suite has a fireplace, three exposures and its own bath. (Yes! There are TWO closets!) There are two other sleeping bedrooms with a bath, and a maid's room with connecting bath. Then there's a big storage room over the garage that's a help.
- Q. Will it cost a fortune?
- A. Far from it. It can be financed to suit your requirements.
- Q. How can it be seen?
- A. By appointment only. But the folks who own the home are very accommodating.
- Q. Is it really as attractive as it sounds?
- A. Only YOU can answer that question. Won't you call us today and we'll make an appointment for you.
