

BLOOMFIELD GIRL MAKES HER BOW AT DINNER-DANCE

Among the June debutantes one, at least, can claim Bloomfield Hills as home, although she is living in Grosse Pointe at present, her family having leased a house there for the summer months. She is Miss Elizabeth Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Slocom Nichols, of East Long Lake road, and she was presented at a dinner-dance at the Country club Tuesday evening.

The receiving line formed in the blue room, where the bud's gift bouquets were used as a background. The guests sat at small tables in the diningroom, which were decked with pastel tinted summer flowers and pink tapers. Dancing was on the terrace.

Miss Nichols wore for the occasion a frock of deep pink silk marquisette, the bodice being entirely of matching lace. The lace also edged the hem of the full skirt. Miss Nichols was attended in flowered crepe, a brief jacket topping her gown.

Seated with Miss Nichols at the table were Miss Susan Briggs, Miss Dorothy Looker, Miss Kravelt, Miss Tracy Fleming, Miss Ann Katherine Grose, Miss Mary Dykema, Jim Pinks, Ed Thompson, George Van Dyke, Otis McKenzie, Art Fomer of Chicago, Deane Rucker, Elliott S. Nichols, Jr., Steve Johnson and John Donnelly.

MISS EMERY'S PIANO PUPILS GIVE RECITAL Pupils of Miss Grace Emery appeared in recital Friday evening at Miss Emery's piano studio on Southfield road. The following pupils took part: Katherine, Sally and Billy Kemp, Yvonne and Janet Fosenkenner, Joan and Janet Sappington, Mary Welch, Fred Whelan and Mary Ann Mead. Refreshments were served to 40 guests after the program. Later in the evening, Miss Emery played several piano solos and Mrs. Emily Adams, who has just been admitted to the violin section of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, was heard in violin solos.

League Of Catholic Women Holds Its Annual Lawn Party And Bridge Tea

In a picturesque setting of velvety green lawn, and spreading trees, members of the League of Catholic Women and their guests gathered for the organization's annual lawn party and bridge tea Monday afternoon. Mrs. Martin J. Wendell of Tiverton road opened her garden for the party, where fortune telling vied for honors with alfresco tea and bridge.

The tea table, placed attractively under the trees, was laid with a pink gauze cloth. In the center was a large bouquet of delphinium in various shades, relieved with small pink blossoms. Mrs. Henry M. Foley, in a soft brown and cream flower print and a hat of natural straw, and Mrs. John H. Savage, in powder blue crepe with white accessories, presided at the tea.

Mrs. J. Darby Taylor looked most attractive as she paused for tea. Her brown net frock was relieved by a white bolero, and her striking picture hat of brown straw topped the ensemble.

Miss Kathleen Bethel of St. Louis, a former resident of Birmingham is making an extended visit with Miss Alice Painter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Painter of Watkins street.

DRURY - PORTER VOWS TOLD IN OREGON HOME

From Medford, Ore., comes word of the marriage of Miss Laura Drury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Drury of Medford and niece of B. E. Drury of Pleasanton. The bride is a former resident of Birmingham, and attended Baldwin high school while here. The bridegroom is Morris Porter, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Porter, of Medford.

The Rev. Ernest S. Barham read the service in St. Mark's Episcopal church at 8:30 Saturday evening. An altar banked with white blossoms and greenery, illuminated by white tapers in gilded candelabra, served as a background for the bridal pair.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a starched white lace gown over tulle. Her finger-tip tulle veil was crowned by a halo cap, garlanded with valley lilacs. More lilacs, with baby's breath and gardenias, fashioned her bouquet.

Miss Barbara and Miss Mildred Drury attended their sister's bridesmaids, wearing yellow and turquoise blue starched lace gowns respectively. Both were princess style, with collars of seed pearls. The sisters wore Juliet caps to match their gowns, and carried bouquets of tulle and roses. Small Tana Bawden, as flower girl, wore an accordion-pleated gown of pink tulle.

Tom Fuson Jr. served as best man and ushers were Fred Underwood, Robert and E. H. Porter Jr., brothers of the bridegroom; and Otto Frohnmayer.

A reception for about 60 guests followed the ceremony. The affair was held at the Drury home. After the reception the young couple left for the Pacific coast. In the latter part of August they will leave for Flat, Alaska, where they will be territorial district teachers in the community school.
