a bid estimated to earn, allowing for sale less than par, six per cent interest. City officials believe they can better this proposal by dealing direct with Washington.

before the right officials there," stated John E. Maritz, Mayor, yesterday. "The project is needed, in order that the city may be able to provide work for the unemployed."

(Continued from Page 1, Part 1) on the basis of likes and dislikes, rather than upon a more mature decision arising out of a study of the supply and demand of the every-day affairs of the world.

Common Denominator "There is a common denominator in life which I believe, if simply cooperation, learning to work with others, learning to understand and intelligently proper human relationships. Mere ability in a given line is no guarantee to success; rather an I of the belief that many people with less basic knowledge of a business or profession get along better because they can work cooperatively with others."

THIS AND THAT

(Continued from Page 1, Part 1) doesn't like hypocrisy in any guise—yet he finds himself in the paradoxical position of trying to support a friend and neighbor in coming political campaign that is bound to be muddy, in spots.

It seems to me that Mr. DeFoe, believed in and beloved by his community and thousands of others in his State of Michigan, is entitled to a clean bill of health in any further support he gives to Fitz; so are many others, including myself, entitled to a clear-cut, unequivocal statement from Frank D. Fitzgerald on this key-note question.

For, unless Mr. DeFoe gets such a statement from the Grand Ledger gentleman, it seems that the former's only recourse is to withdraw politely from the coming political scene; his conscience won't allow him to plead the cause of a situation—even in politics—that does not stack up with his personal and private code.
