Baby Pictures Of Baldwin Gridders Have Students Guessing In Contest

"Now, let me see. That must be Charlie Fiske. It's that same gorgeous physique and golden blonde nose." And this is surely George Mullin. He has that same "quizzical expression right now." And that big one is Hughie Mack or Ted Snyder."

All sorts of random remarks were made about the new contest at Baldwin high school, last week. The baby pictures of the football team were on display in the trophy case in the front hall. The first person with a perfect list of names will receive a reserved seat ticket for the football game Thursday, while the second prize is to be an autographed football program.

In case anyone was unable to guess the handsome lad on the tricycle, he was none other than Bill Robinson. And believe it or not, the adorable little baby in the carriage was Bill Holmes.

The very happy youngster in the play suit was Dick Wenzell, while the little nodule was actually the immature Marge McGilvray. Ted Snyder was perched high on a stately pony. George Mullin was easily recognized by his chubby nose and quizzical expression.

Of course there were many other interesting and hard-to-guess pictures of the team. Among these were probably pictures of Jim Bennett, Clark Pardee, George Baldwin, Hugh Mack, Colin Gowans, Art Miller, Charles Adams, Pete Hendricks, Gene McCullough, Horace Cole, Francis Bodard, Charles Polk, Raymond McBride, Adolph Bruni, Dick Neely, Robert Eade, Lorne Robinson, and Russell Fisher.

Sports Showup

By Wylie Pearson
Many of the Birmingham fans will be surprised tomorrow when the Birmingham starting lineup is revealed. It is quite possible the reserve team will start the game. However, if the reserve squad does not start there is likely to be several changes in the lineup. Coach Wurster will use the backfield during the game.

The starting one will be composed of Bodard, Gowans, Mack, and Garlitz. Garlitz is a newcomer to the starting lineup, but due to the impressive showing he made in the C. Clemens game he will, in all probability, start.

The second backfield will be composed of Wenzell, Pardee, McGilvray, and other. Holmes or Hendricks, Wenzell will shift over from end position and Neely will take his place. Pardee has recovered from his injury to the extent that he may see a bit of action. Holmes's work in the last few games has not been satisfactory and Hendricks is quite likely to take his place.

In the line Neely, Herbst, Eade will all be playing.

The Maple Leafs have been drilling on pass defenses during the week. Coach Wurster is confident that the squad can more than match any running attack that the Royal Oak can show. However, the Leafs let loose a barrage of aerials at Ferndale, which made quite an impressive showing.

One of the largest crowds in the history of the school is expected for the game. Members of the 1937 squad are here to help celebrate the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the game between the two schools.

Royal Oak will go in the game slightly favored to keep the little Brown Jug for another year. But the Birmingham boys will give them such a fight that the battle of the Marne will seem like a picnic!

In the People's Column of this paper appeared an article signed by a 14 year old boy. This article charged that the students of Baldwin lack sufficient spirit and pride to sing the school song and to aid the cheer leaders in their efforts. It is our song to be sung whenever and wherever it is played. So you students who come to the game tomorrow show the people of Royal Oak and of Birmingham that you are not afraid to sing the school song. Also let's really give the team some yelling!

After much deliberation and consultation of the stars and the moon the prediction for tomorrow's game is a Birmingham victory by 7 points.

BALDWIN HI-LIGHTS

By Ann Nominous

Annie's been doing some investigating and more interesting does turned up! All about the male elite. Perhaps it would be a good idea to pass it on so here goes. The first type is pretty o.k. You can't figure him out exactly but you can tell that you'd like him from his looks. If he's tall, you can tell quick like that he's probably got oodles of letters in track and you're just certain that you'd like to be the girl-friend of this dancing dervish. His preference is blonde, brunette, or redhead.

Let's go on from there. It's almost always easy to talk to him about anything and everything. He's the kind that'll take you any place you want to go. If you decide to stay home instead, you'll have just as good a time. He's more darn fun anytime! He'll want about his past infatuation and never realize you're curling up inside. He'll tell you his secrets, compliment your new dress and aid and abet you in all your roguishness. He even runs errands for your mother. Just go on being his best friend and confident 'til he wakes up to the fact that having you around is pretty nice. Start sleeping nights and hang on to your appetite.

Then there's the "man of action." He always acts as though he had to be dragged out to meet you. He looks at you under scraggly eyebrows. Gradually you realize you're a woman-hater. He's the kind who thinks parties and dances are a waste of time and when you succeed in dragging him to one, he goes into a huddle with another Type 2 male. He talks football, horse, and engines; so you must—

if you want to get along with him. Talk about his interests if it kills you—and it probably will. He's plenty keen when you get to know him though; if you like that type!

The last guy who lives far away is the one that gets under your skin. You usually chop your life in two and live from mail delivery to mail delivery. Nothing about the old town seems worth bothering about and all the boys seem so young in your semi-stalled state. But wait 'til the gang hears that you've gone head over dancers about a lad who's far, far away. Your torch-carrying will be an invitation to let you sit right on the shelf. So one of your reverie and let "out of sight, out of mind" be your motto as far as the crowd is concerned. After all, you can still languish in the private of your own room!

The very best type that we found in our extensive research is the fellow that's quite human but oh, so perfect. He can dance like a trapeze artist and talk about sophisticated things—you know, new movies, swing music, and how fetching you look tonight. In fact, dating him is just about the same as stardust in your eyes! He's a boy that everyone likes and he's a lot more polished than the general run of boys. He sends girls flowers for their wrists or hair, or a necklace of posies just to be different.

He's up on the news, knows good music and likes opera. He never fails to hold doors open and do all the little things a boy should do. He's not a sissy; so hang on tight. You may have to read every book printed and go to every movie, concert, and opera that comes to town, but gals take it from Annie, it's worth it!

There are more types than we have room or time to discuss. So here's to bigger and better conquests.

Yours for more serious research, Annie.

HOME ROOMS AID NEEDY FAMILIES IN BIRMINGHAM

Many hearts will be lighter Thursday due to the fine spirit displayed by some 20 home rooms at Baldwin high school. A committee from each home room has consulted with Mrs. Julia Lally of the Birmingham Community House and obtained the names of 20 or 30 unfortunate families from her.

The home rooms are treating the matter in several ways. One group is planning to send a turkey to its family. Another home room has a group of industrious boys that are going hunting rabbits in an attempt to furnish the family with rabbit for dinner. The same home room is sending a Thanksgiving dinner and enough food to last several days.

Chickens, turkeys and roasts will be the "piece de resistance" in most cases. Fresh and canned fruits and vegetables; nuts and potatoes; bacon, eggs, butter, and do all the little things a boy should do. He's not a sissy; so hang on tight. You may have to read every book printed and go to every movie, concert, and opera that comes to town, but gals take it from Annie, it's worth it!

Student photographers will take pictures of all the baskets for "The Piper." Baldwin high school publication.

Drama Club Foils Villain And 'Lives Happily Ever After' In Old Time Play

"Curse you, Jack Dalton," an old fashioned melodrama, was presented by the Baldwin dramatic club last Thursday during activity period in the Baldwin high school auditorium.

The play, directed by Theo Pirih, was accompanied by many boos and hisses from the audience for the villain and villainess, and cheers and handclaps for the hero and heroine.

In its first presentation of the year, the dramatic club showed that it will have many capable actors and actresses for future presentation. John Bathgate took the part of the villain, "Egbert Van Horn," and at times had the audience believing that he was Dracula himself. However, his scheming was foiled by the hero, Ed Fairberg, who took the part of "Jack Dalton." Bertha Blair, a maid in the home of Mrs. Donna Dalton, portrayed by Virla Devitt, proved to be the heart interest of the play. Constance Peck was charming in the part.

The "scheming woman" in the play was Jane Gibbons who had the part of "Ann Alvarado." Anna and Egbert were fellow conspirators each wanting to marry into the wealthy Dalton family. Richard Blair, (James Dahl), the long lost brother of Bertha showed up in time to foil their plot, however, Gertrude Egbertson, who played the part of "Eloise Dalton" to perfection. Eloise was a rather slow witted type of person whom Egbert was trying to marry. Gertrude's portrayal of the part drew many laughs from the audience.

Mary Elizabeth Walker, Margaret Coryell, and Tom Cummings were in charge of the properties. The program committee consisted of:

PLANS UNDER WAY AT BALDWIN HIGH FOR 'PIGSKIN PROM'

The "Pigskin Prom," annual football dance to be held in honor of the Baldwin high school football team, will take place December 10 at the Baldwin gymnasium. The dance is sponsored by the Baldwin Athletic Congress.

The chairman for the dance, Emilie Giffels and George Mullin, have announced that Bruno Peters and his orchestra have been engaged to furnish the music.

The decorating committee consisting of Ward Cruickshank, Virginia Stanley, Digging Farrar, Bill Cobb, Herbert Moore, Leroy Braisted, George Mlin, Milton Gibson, Max Carney, and Emilie Giffels, has elaborate plans in store for decorating the auditorium.

The advertising committee, headed by Bob Myers, is planning its posters and other advertising material. Other members of this committee are Virginia Stanley, Marilynne Ely, Jeanne Wakelid, and Bill Seligman.

A ticket agent, being planned by Margaret Gardner. The tickets are being taken care of by George Mullin.

Free tickets are to be issued to those football players who have played in a varsity game and are still on the team.

Patrons for the dance will be announced later.

Here's What Team Has To Say About Big Game

Who will win the big game Thanksgiving? That is the biggest question of all. Nobody knows the answer—but here are a few opinions.

"I really think we're going to town," said Art Miller, big tackle on the Birmingham squad. "We plan to bring back that 'Little Brown Jug' after an absence of five years."

Such were the general ideas of the members of the football squad when asked last Thursday.

Ted Snyder said, "Our chances? Well, we're going to beat them. They haven't got anything so much and with good playing we'll beat them."

Bob Eade, tackle on the team, said, "I think our chances are pretty good. Unlike other teams Royal Oak doesn't outweigh us. Their running attack is weak but their passing attack is good. We can beat them."

Jim Bennett, guard replied, "I think they are darn good. With good backing such as we have had in previous games we're a cinch to win."

Bill Hopkins, back, "If our pass defense clicks, we'll beat them sure."

"No kidding," said Dick Wenzell, end on the squad. "I've seen Royal Oak play Fordson, and if we can break their pass attack we've got them."

Charley Fiske and Bill Holmes both believe Birmingham can win by a touchdown.

"Our chances are good," they all agreed.

BRELSFORD SHOE IS SYMBOL OF TRACK VICTORIES

One of the running shoes of the greatest high school half miler that the state of Michigan ever produced, is on display in the Baldwin high school trophy case.

The shoe is the one that Quentin Brelsford used in setting many new state and national records. It is the one he wore in his undefeated running career. It is mounted on a walnut board, and the shoe itself is painted with a bronze metal, making a very distinguished looking trophy.

The trophy was conceived by Coach Franklin W. Whitney. It is his intention to present the trophy to Brelsford as soon as the National Ratings are released in New York. At the present time Brelsford is ranked as the third highest high school runner in the United States. However, his record run in the A. A. U. last summer will not count in the rating as the race was run against college competition.

It is not known at this time whether Brelsford will present the trophy to the school.
