Fashion Tips

From Paris comes the news that felt and velvet berets are extremely popular. They come in all sizes and colors. A feature of many new evening dresses is the sleeve set close to the decollete. The sleeves are draped and have a backward sweep.

Some of the new evening frocks are molded closely about the figure but have wide and sweeping skirts. Satin and crepe are favorite materials. A model of transparent material has low hoops and shows the tights fitting snugly through the outer skirt.

Dinner dresses for restaurant wear are made with separate waists and skirts. Blouses of crepe or metal brocade are worn with skirts of dark wool, velvet or satin.

A new stocking that has a special mesh section at the back of the knee, gives when the knee is bent and prevents those runs that are so common in that area. New black suede belts are very narrow and trimmed with rhinestones or other brilliants.

The new collures are bringing combs back into style. Small ones are being used to keep the hair in place during the daytime while high Spanish types and Empire tiara combs are being used for evening.

Wool and leather are combined to make snappy sport suits. One model has a green leather jacket with a striped tweed skirt and knitted sweater.
