

Society Invited To Meet Summer Bride

Mrs. Charles Gahn Kinnison, who was Miss Betty Gullam before her marriage, an event of midsummer, will be introduced to Birmingham society at a tea, to be given by Mrs. Charles F. Kinnison and her daughter, Miss Mary Jane, mother and sister of the bridegroom. The affair will be held on Saturday afternoon at the Kinnison home on Hawthorne road.

Full flowers will be used as decorations about the rooms, with an unusual motif planned for the table. Mrs. Kinnison will heap vivid fruits in a huge bowl and the arrangement with tape in harmonizing autumn shades.

IN AND ABOUT YOUR HOME you probably have a variety of articles such as: Furniture, garden tools, for box, baby carriage, musical instruments, electrical appliances, and numerous other odds and ends. We know that there is a market for these things and offer to turn them into cash. Telephone 21, before 11 o'clock Wednesday of each week. Ad. 20-25

STREET DANCES TO CONTINUE IN WINTER SERIES

A football dance will mark the first in the winter series of community dances, an outgrowth of the street dances presented during the summer by the Summer Recreation Committee. The affairs met with such success that the street dance committee, headed by Mrs. S. L. Johnstone, gave the young people of Birmingham an opportunity to discuss, on Thursday evening at the Baldwin Library, the possibility of continuing the dances indoors during the winter. About 25 representative members of the school set attended the meeting and chose the evening of Friday, Sept. 23, as the date of the first dance.

The date is of special significance, since the first football game of the Baldwin High School season of the played that afternoon. Ray H. Bechtold, principal of Baldwin, attended the meeting and placed the high school auditorium at the disposal of the committee. His offer was accepted.

Charles Lawler was elected chairman of the planning committee which will organize the dances for the season. A carefully considered plan for a working committee of young people to run the dances was also set up by the group, including tentative regulations for the administration of the dances.

Informal dress will prevail at all dances, it was decided. The schedule will be working out in cooperation with public school authorities, so as not to conflict with school plans.

Committee chairman in charge of arrangements for the first dance include Bill Cole, general chairman; Marian Noel, refreshments; Ed Wolfe, floor arrangements; Jane Gibbons, publicity; Ted Johnson, public address system and music.

Members of the Birmingham branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association will hold a real farrow-to-summer at their forthcoming meeting to be held on Monday, Sept. 19. A varied program has been planned and, weather permitting, most of the activity will take place out of doors.

Members will congregate at the Cranbrook Institute of Science, eleven o'clock in the morning. There Mrs. Marjorie Bingham of the Institute staff will conduct a botany walk. Afterwards the group will adjourn to the home of Mrs. Henry Foster on Hingham road, for a pot-luck luncheon.

If the weather is good, luncheon will be served in Mrs. Foster's garden, which has achieved much notice for its brilliance and execution. In the event of rain, the group will meet at the Foster barn, for an informal barn party. Members are invited to attend the luncheon whether or not they participate in the walk, in order that the occasion may serve as a real mid-summer reunion.

Among those who are working on arrangements for the meeting are Mrs. Harry Denney, Mrs. Roy A. Hansen, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Atwood B. Oatman.

Jane Alexander Becomes Bride At Elaborate Garden Wedding Ceremony

With the garden of the bride's home as a background, Jane Elizabeth Alexander and John Alexander McPherson exchanged their vows at eight o'clock Saturday evening. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dean Alexander of Glenary road and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Frances Crowl Paterson of Detroit. The Rev. Robert W. Woodroffe of Christ Church Cranbrook officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in white bridal satin, fashioned Empire style, with a fitted yoke and a flared skirt, ending in a long train. Flowers, centered with seed pearls, adorned her skirt, and the neckline was edged with a yoke of alexander lace. Furled at her sleeves, puffed at the shoulders and fitted tightly from elbow to wrist, a crown of embroidered satin confined her long luxuriant veil. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of white orchids and bouvardia.

Miss Dorothy Alexander attended, wearing a taffeta gown of honor, ten rose. Starting from the heart-shaped neckline, a matching panel of velvet extended to the hem of the skirt, which was full. Velvet banded the short puffed sleeves, and a row of white buttons, set with a row of white buttons, fell into long streamers, fastened by pale peach dabbings.

Miss Marjorie Kidder, Miss Yvonne Gay, Miss Kathleen Belknap and Mrs. James Hirschfeld, the bridesmaids, wore similar gowns in shades of rose. Shired veils, fashioned their off-the-face bonnets, crowned with matching ostrich tips. They bore arm bouquets of peach gladioli.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander were hosts to 100 guests, for a reception at their home. Mrs. Alexander received her guests in a square, neoclassical gown with a sapphire blue lace short puffed sleeves and a full skirt, fashioned in train. She wore a coronet arrangement of purple orchids.

For her son's wedding, Mrs. Paterson chose a hyacinth blue crew gown, with a shoulder cascade of orchids. Mrs. Frank Crowl, grandmother of the bridegroom, was dressed in wine-colored velvet, with an orchid corsage.

Immediately after the reception, the bridal party departed for New York, where they will sail for Bermuda. A forest green sheer wool suit, with a bolero of lavender, was Mrs. Paterson's choice for traveling. Her handbag was of the same color, and the fur accessories were also of green.

On their return, the young couple will call at home to their friends on Lincoln avenue.
