SCHOOL days are here again, and children will spend an increasing number of hours indoors—studying, reading and writing under artificial illumination. Has YOUR child a good study light?

The lighting of a child's study desk should receive careful con-The lighting of a child's study desk should receive careful consideration, because this is a place where young eyes are being used constantly on tasks requiring close visual application. Children tend to be careless of such things as proper light ... and abuse of the eyes through poor illumination often results in eyestrain and impaired vision. This is doubly regrettable when GOOD lighting is so cheap and easy to provide.

An I.E.S. reflector-type table lamp, equipped with a 100 or 150-watt bulb, makes an ideal study light. There are also many excellent Pin-It-Up lamps on the market—using the principle of the reflectorbowl under the shade—that furnish good lighting. (These lamps may be pinned on the wall directly over the child's desk.) Perhaps you have a floor or table lamp of your own, one that is perfectly good but which was purchased some years ago and lacks the advantages of a reflector-bowl under the shade. In this case you may buy for very little money a clever new unit called an "I. E. S. adaptor," which transforms the old lamp into one utilizing the principle of a modern Better Light Better Sight lamp. A diffusing bowl under the shade eliminates glare and assures soft, pleasant illumination.

Our Home Lighting Advisors will be glad to help you with any lighting problem you may have. Call your Detroit Edison office. The Detroit Edison Company does not sell lighting fixtures or light adaptors. See them on display at department stores, lighting fixture stores or electrical dealers.
