Benjamin Gigli, the distinguished Italian operatic and concert tenor, will be heard in the Choral Union Series, Hill Auditorium, Thursday evening, Jan. 19, taking the place of Kirsten Flagstad, whose Ann Arbor concert engagement was cancelled on account of illness.

The return of Benjamin Gigli, said to be the world's greatest tenor, is an outstanding event of the current musical season. As leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, he was looked upon by critics as heir to the role of the late Enrico Caruso.

When it became known that he would return to America after six years' absence, so great was the demand for his services, that his original tour was lengthened by two months. For the past two seasons he has devoted himself in large measure to making motion pictures in Europe, and two of his most recent successes were "Ever Yours" and "Forget Me Never." He has been heard in Ann Arbor on two previous occasions, once in recital and once in a May Festival.

Concertgoers are respectfully reminded to present for admission to this concert, coupon number 4, reading "Flagstad."

Bartlett and Robertson, the distinguished two-piano team, will be heard on Jan. 25, instead of the Budapest University Chorus, whose American tour was cancelled on account of European conditions. Both are natives of Great Britain, and have made enviable reputations not only as soloists, but particularly in due recitals, in London. Ethel Bartlett is recognized as one of England's most beautiful women. Her husband, Mr. Robertson, is a graduate of Edinburgh University.

Batopet Chorus coupon number 10, for admission.
