BITS OF BHAM

Rain or shine, snow or sleet, Birmingham's Baldwin high school board for years has given its services to hundreds of local activities. Whether it be on the football field, track meets, service club activities or street parades. That is why the newly formed local committee of parents is interested in obtaining sufficient funds to buy 50 new crimson and white uniforms this spring, to take the place of the nine-year-old ones now worn by the band members. The present uniforms consisted only of the capes and hats, the members wearing various white-trouser materials of their own getting.

Not since the dog ordinance was put on public hearing last summer have civic-minded citizens attended a City Commission meeting as they did Monday night when a public hearing was held regarding the purchase of 15.69 acres of land on the east side for park and recreational purposes. The Commission members were so happy to have so many in the audience—they talked about it for two, or three, sections of the commission were interested. Good-natured bantering back and forth, by those from other than the northeast area, was in evidence. It was the "personal or partisan." It again proved that Birmingham can remain a united Birmingham.

Kroger Store Will Demonstrate Cooker

The free waterless cooking demonstration being conducted at the North Woodward Kroger store is attracting housekeepers who sense an opportunity to acquire expert, practical information on cookery and the ways to cut fuel costs, and, at the same time, retain the nutritive value and flavor of the various foods prepared.

Joseph Lemke, manager of the store, is extending a cordial invitation to the housekeepers to visit the store and take advantage of the opportunity offered them in learning to cook the waterless way in the Majestic Waterless Cooker.

Mrs. Gloria Parquer, food expert, is conducting these demonstrations. One of the features of the school is its informality, for the daily demonstrators are chosen in a manner more like a neighborhood gathering.

The equipment used is explained by the demonstrators and its particular value demonstrated, as are the latest ways of preparing delicacies for the home table. For Thursday, Feb. 2, she will cook a ham, potatoes, beets, carrots, and upstate-downy cake and biscuits and also illustrate the low heat required by cooking over an ordinary electric light bulb.

Obituary

G. P. Artz
Funeral services will be held Friday at 9:30 a. m., in St. Mary's church in Royal Oak for Gustave P. Artz, who died Tuesday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. M. Williams in Royal Oak.

THE RESIGNATION of Miss Freida Huggert, biology teacher in the Baldwin high school since September 1927, was accepted by the Board of Education Tuesday night. Miss Huggert will leave January 27, and will assume the post of home supervisor for the Federal Farm Security Administration, with offices in Ann Arbor. Her place will be taken over by Miss Frances Looney, who is a graduate in science and biology in the Pierce school. Miss Looney has five years of school teaching experience.

Continuation of the visual method of piano instruction in the Baldwin high school since September 1927, was accepted by the Board of Education Tuesday night when Howard Crull, superintendent of schools, reported that 266 students are taking the course.

A course in book design and binding is being offered on Thursday evenings of the spring semester at Wayne University. Under the instruction of Paul McPharlin of Wimbledon drive, known not only for his puppets, but for being a member of the American Institute of Graphic Arts, and the designer and publisher of three dozen books during the past nine years. The course will cover problems in book typography and printing, and give practical experience in book lettering, illustration and binding. Anyone who has occasion to see books or pamphlets through the press, or to analyze them from the physical standpoint, will find it useful.

Gordon Watts of 55 West Maple avenue is in charge of local arrangements for a complimentary exhibition match between the English and American champions. The contest, sponsored by Reese Crumpton, will be held at Northwestern High School in Detroit, at 7 p. m. on Saturday. There will be no charge for tickets. Playing, will be Walter Kramer, American national champion, and Noel Radford, ranking English champion.
