"Love" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, July 30.
The Golden Text (Luke 1:21) is: "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."
Among the Bible citations in this passage of John 1:9: "And who has known and believed the love that God hath for us: God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are: "The Father is Love" (1:1); "Love alone can impart the limitless life of God" (1:10).

From the Women's Angle

By Nellie Hurley Minifie
What is to become of the girl who is growing up today in the midst of drinking and ribaldry, sin and iniquity? Why nothing, of course!

Michigan's crusading governor is worried for us and by pointing to the evils that face us properly leads us from the "hellish brink for unprotected girls." So much for Mr. Dickenson's plans and just a word about the realities of the situation. To my way of thinking there is no problem. I think if you were able to look closely into the mind of your jitterbug daughter, with all her amiable cheer, her harum-scarum ways, you might be surprised to find her a pretty sane and sensible miss. Perhaps she can blow better smoke rings than Dad yet fundamentally she is no different from her grandmother. I have a notion that Grandmother may have done things once that might shock little Miss Know-It-All today.

The question is entirely a personal one after all is said and done. It is decided first by the parents and later by the girl herself whose actions are a direct reflection on the training and instruction she has received at the parental hand.

Personally I hate to think that the governor is spending his time worrying about me. I would like to do my own worrying. It is so stimulating.

Why not leave those baby-like styles and careless coiffures to the teenage girls and their sisters in the very early twenties? After all, they can get away with them and nine chances out of 10, if you are a woman beyond this age limit, you can't. And there are other fashions far more becoming to the older figure, even though through diligent diet and exercise or by sheer luck, the swelt lines of 17 have been retained, and more flattering, too, to the more mature face.

Unpalatable as the fact is the years do write a story on every face, though not necessarily detracting from its beauty. And it is best to remember that those cunning labrunkas tied under the chin, those knee-length skirts, those smokers' anklets are not for you if you are over 30. Neither are the tucking curls over the forehead, the long lob, nor the tiny bows tucked into the hair.

Naturally, I do not advocate donning lavender and old lace at 30, nor at any age for that matter, but I do urge you to effect changes which are more dignified, more youthful, not babyish. Play up to your personality by accenting certain fashions most coming to your type and see how interesting you become. So try being your age in dress as well as in your attitude and watch the pleasant results. Of course, you may look like your daughter's mother instead of her sister, but I think you will be more attractive and probably look even younger than you did in styles too young for your years. And I've a hunch that daughters will be pleased, too, to be allowed an individuality of dress separate from yours.

There is no more dangerous practice in bringing up a family than to allow youngsters to alibi themselves out of situations. They try being your age in dress as well as in their attitude and watch the pleasant results. Of course, you may look like your daughter's mother instead of her sister, but I think you will be more attractive and probably look even younger than you did in styles too young for your years. And I've a hunch that daughters will be pleased, too, to be allowed an individuality of dress separate from yours.

It will not only weaken his morale, but will turn him into a chronic provocator. Accuracy and truth will mean so little to him he will have difficulty in distinguishing them from the fiction his mind habitually manufactures.

He may get by, because he "improves" with time and experience. He speaks to emotion, works on sympathy, maligns others, deceives himself, and finally develops into a first class liar.

But the sham is bound to be detected sooner or later, and the result will be a gradual distrust of that individual, a breaking down of confidence in his reliability, and the knowledge that instead of assuming responsibility, he will let it slide from his shoulders while he is working himself into character to dramatize a good alibi.

Parents who blindly allow such a habit to grow in a child are the child's worst enemies. It may be they have encouraged this practice by defending the child against all odds, and offering sympathy instead of discipline. To obtain sympathy and avoid discipline is incentive enough to start the child out well on the path of preparation.

But there is still truth in the old saying that he who is good at making excuses, is seldom good at anything else.

PONY EXPRESS

never have been able to enjoy them, the Railway Express today occupies the unique position of being the only express company in the United States. It is the same company that first used the horse for the transportation of mail.

And it is through this service that residents of Birmingham receive all the varied products of the world. Cigars direct from Havana, pottery from Italy, so they go.

Home Romantic Now
Home may not be as romantic as Paris or New York, but when the best the world has to offer can be delivered to our doorsteps, it can't be such a bad place after all. Thirty minutes with Fred at 282 S. Woodward is a delightful visit to the crossroads of the world. Surprising, isn't it, how quickly the Champs Elysees lost its glamour? Or has it?

Mrs. William Miller Funeral on Saturday

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the S. O. Wylie Bell Funeral Home for Mrs. William H. Miller, who died Thursday at her residence on North Woodward avenue in Bloomfield Hills.

Mrs. Miller was born Amelia Paul on Sept. 28, 1873 in Angola, N. Y., and moved to Detroit 44 years ago. She was married to William Miller, Sept. 14, 1898, and the last 24 years of her life were spent in the locality of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. Mrs. Miller was christened and confirmed in the Lutheran church in Angola.

Surviving besides her husband is a sister, Mrs. Earl Shepard of Angola, and three brothers, Walter Paul of Buffalo, Carl of Schenectady, N. Y., and Lewis of Dunkirk, N. Y.

Why You Spend Less Money and Get More Good Foods at A & P

The answer to A&P's policy of selling fine foods at unusually low prices is really very simple. We go direct to the source of supply—to farmers, growers and producers and lay down cash for our purchases. We ship all merchandise at lowest rates and cut shipping costs. We employ time-saving and money-saving methods. We avoid expensive credit losses by selling to all on a cash basis. In short—we do everything a big, efficient organization can do to get fine foods to you as close to actual cost as is possible. We need but a very small profit for ourselves because we serve so many million customers every day. That's why you'll find every item in A&P Markets very low in price—and all our prices are kept low every day.
