From the Women's Angle

An orchid to the League of Women Voters! It is an organization which lives and breathes and goes places, and in short, does considerably more than produce annual reports for annual meetings. It is an organization aware of its environment and of what is going on around it.

Recently, a delegation from the League set aside an evening, which might easily have been devoted to other pursuits, to attend a meeting of the Board of Education. The object of the delegation was to present to the Board resolutions adopted by the League in the belief that such measures would aid in solving the city's educational problems.

Regardless of what it was—they had some-thing to say and they said it. This is the kind of public-spirit that comes down off the platform and goes to work. It is a form of public-spirit born of an alert interest in community affairs. It is a public-spirit, not satisfied with the mere belief of something or other should be done, but that which gets busy and endeavors to learn why it isn't being done.

We congratulate the League on the possession of civic interest with a backbone. However, there is nothing to imply that only organized groups such as the League, have a corner on this particular kind of up-and-doing public-spirit.

Among the resolutions which might easily have been devoted to other pursuits, to attend a meeting of the Board of Education. The object of the delegation was to present to the Board resolutions adopted by the League in the belief that such measures would aid in solving the city's educational problems.

They have turned their enforced leisure into the very best kind of social training. Each one attends a class ranging from dramatics to interior decorating. Their nightly beauty campaigns give them invaluable lessons in the art of good grooming. They exercise regularly and practice sports together at least once a week.

Their program is what makes me predict that these girls will one day take their place in society as regular queens, without ever having to serve that long and heart-breaking apprenticeship which is so often the lot of adolescent girls. And I'd admire and respect any girl, young or old, who did follow the same campaign.

But what happens? Do these smart gals get moody and neurotic because they aren't out dancing? Do they use their secluded lives as an excuse for looking and acting as unattractive as possible? Do they let self pity rob them of any chance of happiness? Absolutely not! And their solution to the problem is what gives them UMPH.

Suits will be unusually good for spring. The majority of the skirts have kick pleats or are gored. Jackets are no particular length but the younger members of society wear their shorter than the older ones do. Blouses are particularly attractive. One number of triple sheer has a demure collar, tucks down the front and big blousy sleeves gathered at the wrist on a narrow cuff. There are tailored blouses, also. One of striped taffeta with wing collar and neat bow is charming with a harmonizing suit. Blouses feature short sleeves or full full ones. The full ones are on the dressier type blouse and are worn on more festive occasions.
