Expect Big Crowd At YMCA Pageant of Group Activities

According to Raymond H. Peck, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Young Men's Christian association Pageant of Group Activities, to be shown Friday evening, at the Community House, the total number of group members, parents and friends attending is expected to exceed 450. E. W. Allen and Oscar Peterson, other members of the committee, are busy rounding up extra tables, chairs and dishes to accommodate the anticipated crowd.

Robert D. Lynd, "Y" secretary, announces that a complete public address and lighting system has been arranged for in order to enable everyone to see and hear all that takes place on the stage.

Among those expected to attend representing various groups are George R. Averill, publisher of The Eccentric, Mayor John E. Martz, Ralph A. Main, Boy Scout commissioner, Mrs. Julia K. Lally, of the Community House, Mark Hardin of the Board of Education, Howard D. Crull, superintendent of schools, the ministers of the various churches, representatives of luncheon clubs, and others interested in the youth of the community.

Dr. John K. Ormond, president of the Y. M. C. A., will preside at a brief pageant of a board of directors' meeting on the stage to start the program. He will welcome the guests and introduce the secretary, Mr. Lynd, who, in turn, will introduce the leaders and groups as they participate in the presentation of the various "Y" activities. Every group member, present at this occasion, will play a part in the portrayal by his group of the particular phase of program it chooses to present. Eugene Hubbard will show pictures of Camp Mahn-go-tah-see, Y. M. C. A. camp.

After the Pageant, a few group and mass games will be played and then the order group members and parents will dance.

Beyond Measure Is Christ's Love, Says Clergyman

"Beyond Measurement" was the subject of the Rev. John Edward Martin's sermon last Sunday, at the First Methodist church. The text was "To know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge."

Dr. Martin began his discourse as follows:

"That the love of Christ is beyond knowledge is indicated by the language of the text. A love which is beyond the knowledge of man is indeed a wonderful love. God's love is wonderful. St. Paul asks men to measure its breadth, its length, its depth, and its height. And when we have tried to do this, men find that it passes knowledge. Set, if you will, this love over against the brutal force of men and find which in the end accomplishes more. You will find that love still rules the universe. But you say—the power of force is mighty—see what it is doing in the life of our world.

We answer that when the law of force has spent itself and destroyed the countless lives of men and reduced their cities to ashes, when the brutality of force has made of our world a wilderness of suffering, pain and misery, then love will go forth in power to bind up the wounds force has inflicted, to rebuild the cities of men, and to give birth to deeds of kindness in relieving suffering, driving out pain and misery."

Proof of His Love

Continuing his sermon, Dr. Martin said, "We have every proof of God's love in the provision he has made for his children. Stored away in the bowels of the earth we find the riches of a world of the material. Is there a mind so depraved that it can think in the terms of taking these material treasures for which nations hunger and fight to possess that they might make them into tools for destruction? Its ore to make into armament for the annihilation of human lives, its oil to lift the machines of deadly destruction above cities to rain death on its civilian population, its gold and silver to finance a world bent upon desolation and death?

"I ask if, by the wildest use of the imagination of man, we can think in the terms of God's storing these treasures and thousands of others like them, for generations of time, to be used to destroy the happiness and the peace of his children, to turn their earth into a world of death, to take their heaven and change it into a hell? No, God's nature of love saves us from such thoughts as these. Every provision is made for a blessed ministry to man's life. His food is there, his shelter, the warmth and comfort, his healing, his welfare, but men have used the law of hatred, of persecution, of brutality, to turn God's world into a place of horror and torment, of death and destruction. Such men know not the law of love."
