Mrs. Hascall's fellow officers will include Mrs. Earl G. Potter, first vice-president; Mrs. Ford Penabody, second vice-president; Mrs. Howard E. Reid, recording secretary; Mrs. G. W. Mack, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Edward H. P. Elliott, treasurer. Mrs. Pratt was named as a director of the organization for a two-year term.

Luncheon was served at the meeting and a varied program was presented by Delphine (Mrs. A. L.) Newcomb, dramatic reader. Mrs. Newcomb presented a charming picture in a bouffant floor-length frock of crisp white-eyel embroidered material. Fashioned in redingote style, the gown was bound at the edges and relieved in front with an underskirt of pale blue. The sleeves were short and very full.

She opened the program with four short poems, all pertaining to spring. For this portion of the entertainment she wore a picture hat with long streamers in a matching shade of blue. Next she told the traditional fairy story, "Blue Roses."

In a playlet, "The Curtain Fell," she portrayed life backstage with a famous actress, who relinquished the dream of a lifetime rather than spoil two other lives by grasping at an opportunity which she had once refused. She concluded the program with two humorous monologues; "The Society Girl and the Policeman" and "The Girl at the Fashion Show."
